New All-Time High Helping Build Record

Cigarettes Smoked By The Billion

Cigars, Pipes Compared

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International Copyright and all other rights reserved.)

—WE ARE PROUD to note that we assisted in the hanging up of a new American record last month.

The bureau of internal revenue, in Washington, reports that the production of cigarets in this country in February set an all-time high.

A total of 12,328,242,420 cigarets was turned out in that month, as against 10,766,349,680 in February, 1936. We must have sat up later than usual last month.

The February production of large cigars in 1937 was higher than the same month last year, but there was a falling off in the production of small cigars. However, we claim no part in the cigar records.

We are strictly a cigaret fellow. Sometimes when we wish to give ours[illegible] a business man aspect, we light up a big steamer, or cigar. We doubt that we fool any real cigar smoker.

We handle a cigar about as gracefully as a cub bear would handle a stove pipe. There is a certain skill and finesse to cigar smoking that we never have been able to acquire.

IN THE FIRST place, we inhale the cigar smoke from force of habit. That chokes us, and hurts our throat.

In the second place, we gnaw on the end of the cigar as if it were a piece of rubber, a practice that we fear is a throwback to the days when we enjoyed munching on what is known as chewing tobacco.

This is an enjoyment that you generally forego soon after committing matrimony. It seems that in this era, the ladies, in arranging their houses, make little or no provision for gobboons, or cuspidors. A fellow who chews tobacco nowadays has to live at an open window, and in cold weather, or when the mosquitoes are bad, this is apt to be inconvenient.

Anyway, we do not like cigars. We do not like the taste, or the odor of cigars. This is probably why we invariably draw the restaurant table next to a vigorous cigar smoker, with the wind in our direction.

But we admit to a certain envy of the fellow who knows how to smoke a cigar with grace and enjoyment. It makes him look important.

WE NEVER MADE much headway against a pipe.

We can manage one in a pinch, but indifferently. We are not the pipe type. Our face does not fit a pipe. We lack the air of calm meditation that goes with a pipe.

A new pipe bites our tongue, and an old pipe carries an aroma that makes us seasick. We are not knocking pipe smokers. We deem them among the manliest of the tobacco users, but we do think there should be a law requiring them to carry a deodorant around with them.

Magazine editors are much given to pipe smoking. They claim that a pipe is a convenience to them in reading manuscripts submitted by authors because the pipe is well removed from their faces and the smoke does not interfere with their reading.

It is our conjecture that the real reason is that the odor of the editorial pipe keeps a sensitive author, calling to inquire into the fate of his

DUKE OF WINDSOR CUTS SERVANT LIST

VIENNA, March 27.—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor cut his servant problem down by practically two-thirds tonight, preparatory to moving to the Austrian Tyrol.

That will save him quite a bit of money from what he has been spending while living at rambling Enzesfeld castle.

One of the Duke's seventeen servants who asked to be taken along from Enzesfeld said an adjutant told him he was "sorry, his royal highness must economize."

He will get along with only six servants at his new quarters at the modest Appesbach at St. Wolfgang in the picturesque Tyrol. Three of them, including the chef and his favorite castle kitchen equipment, will be taken from the group of 17 that has served Windsor at Enzesfeld.

It was reported from St. Wolfgang that a heavy snowfall in the Salzkammergut region of the Tyrol raised some doubt as to whether an automobile trip Monday would be advisable.

The duke, however, was ready to go. He gave up his downtown suite in the Bristol hotel, and said goodbye to Dr. Summer Moore, London dentist who came from England to treat his toothache.

Eight Feet Of Water In Hold And Pumps Inadequate To Meet Need

HONOLULU, March 27.—(AP)—Ships in a wide area of the northwestern Pacific turned today to aid the leaking and helpless American freighter, Volunteer, with a crew of about 40, which was fighting a losing battle against the sea 840 miles off Japan.

A second distress call within four hours turned the big liner Empress of Canada off her course to the rescue. Several Japanese freighters began a race to the Volunteer's side.

The British freighter Fresno City neared the scene in a 240-mile run she started when the Volunteer sent her first call for help at 12:30 a.m., Pacific standard time.

A second call for help at 4 a.m., to the Empress of Canada said:

"The Fresno City is coming to my assistance. Water is gaining fast. Requests you come also."

The Empress of Canada was 635 miles from the Volunteer.

Various messages indicated the Volunteer's crew had been fighting trouble since being buffeted by a severe storm two days ago.

"We've shipped eight feet of water in our No. 1 hold and our pumps are unable to control it," said a roundabout message from the Volunteer shortly before noon. "We are proceeding at reduced speed at latitude 25:35 north, longitude 153:45 east."

Under command of Captain W. W. Geldert of Algiers, La., the 7,717-ton ship left New Orleans February 7 for the Pacific coast, and then headed for Kobe, Japan, via Honolulu with a cargo of cotton and merchandise. She is owned by the Lykes Brothers-Ripley Steamship company.

The Volunteer was the fourth ship to encounter trouble in the Pacific in

TEFLIS GROTTO TO HOLD PARTY

Annual Easter Hunt Will Be Conducted At Forsythe Park Today

Promptly at 2:15 p.m. this afternoon, at Forsythe park, a gun will be fired and at the sound of this signal, thousands of youngsters whose ages range from one year to 15 years will eagerly seek to discover 5,000 gaily colored Easter eggs that have been securely hidden in sequestered places in the park. Those who are fortunate enough to find eggs that possess numbers that correspond with numbers on 225 or more prizes, will be made especially happy over their discoveries.

The Easter egg hunt at Forsythe park has been a feature of interest to all north Louisiana for four years and each year there is increased interest shown. This year, sponsored by Teflis Grotto, and aided by other groups inclusive of the members of

REFINERY WORKER KILLS BRIDE, SELF

SHREVEPORT, La., March 27.—(AP)—Dr. Willis P. Butler, Caddo parish coroner, said today that W. S. Kirby, 51, a refinery worker, shot and killed his 20-year-old bride of three months, Mrs. Effie Kirby, and then killed himself.

The shooting took place in the home of the couple in the Jewella section. A shotgun was used by Kirby.

The police said jealousy was the cause of the slaying and suicide.

CLAIBORNE WELL STIRS INTEREST

Brings Oil Production Within 63 Miles Of Monroe; Second For Field

The completion last week of the Patton No. 1 well near Lisbon, Claiborne parish, brings oil production within 63 miles of Monroe and has aroused considerable interest in this city among oil and gas operators.

The well, known as Oden and Evans' Patton No. 1, located in section 36-21-5, was drilled in last Thursday with an estimated production of 34 barrels an hour of high gravity oil through 7-16 inch choke. The contractor in charge of drilling operations is the Crescent Drilling company of Monroe.

This is the second producing oil well in the new field, the discovery well having been completed last December. Production is said to be from the Glen Rose lime and the well is bottomed at 5,375 feet. It is located one location north of the E. T. Oakes well, which was the discovery well. The new oiler started to flow after swabbing and flowing 275 barrels of oil by heads during the first 16 hours.

BATON ROUGE LAD KILLS PLAYMATE

BATON ROUGE, La., March 27.—(AP)—Robert Akenhead, Jr., 12, accidentally shot and killed his 8-year-old playmate, Eugene Seefield, today as they were playing with forbidden weapons.

The children, inseparable pals, gained entrance into a room, locked against them, by crawling through a downstairs window. Eugene grasped a sword, Robert a .22-caliber rifle, and they played "war."

Robert's rifle clicked harmlessly enough when he pressed the trigger the first few times. The hammer found a loaded chamber and Eugene crumpled, shot in the breast. He lived only a few moments.

A coroner's jury decided the shooting accidental.

Congressman Ben K. Focht Dies Suddenly In Taxicab

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Representative Benjamin K. Focht of Lewisburg, Pa., died at Emergency hospital here tonight.

Hospital attendants said Focht was brought to the hospital in a taxicab and was dead upon arrival.

With him was his secretary, Miss Lottie Stetler, with whom he had been dining at a hotel. Attendants said Miss Stetler noticed the representative appeared to be ill when they were leaving the hotel. She accompanied him to the hospital.

Dr. George W. Calver, capitol physician, said Focht had been suffering from heart disease and had been under a doctor's care for some time. He said the representative told him yesterday he "felt great."

Focht, a Republican from the 18th Pennsylvania district, began his service in 1907 as a member of the 60th congress. The present was his tenth term but he had not served consecutively. He was 74 years of age and was the son of a Lutheran minister.

His widow, a son and a daughter survive.

Mr. Focht was editor of the Saturday Press, published at Lewisburg. He had served three terms in the Pennsylvania assembly, four years in the state senate, was state water supply commissioner and deputy secretary of the commonwealth.

INCOME OFFICIAL WILL VISIT HERE

State Revenue Man Will Assist Individuals In Preparing Returns

A representative of the state department of revenue will be in Monroe May 4-15, for the purpose of assisting individual to prepare their state income tax returns which will be due May 15, according to a report made Saturday by the Louisiana revenue department.

Under the Louisiana income tax law, the following persons are required to make income tax returns:

Every individual having a net income for the taxable year of $1,000 or over, if single, or if married and not living with husband or wife.

Every individual having a net income for the taxable year of $2,500 or over, if married and living with husband or wife.

Every individual having a gross income for the taxable year of $5,000 or over, regardless of the amount of net income.

All partnerships and corporations are required to file returns regardless of the amount of their net or gross incomes.

The income tax official will be at the following places for the purpose of assisting persons to make income tax returns: Rayville, April 5; Delhi, April 7; Winnsboro, April 9; Columbia, April 12; Tallulah, April 14; St. Joseph, April 16; Jonesboro, April 19; Ruston, April 21; Farmerville, April 23; Bastrop, April 26; Oak Grove, April 28; Lake Providence, April 30.

While in Monroe, the income tax official will make headquarters at the courthouse. Persons who desire to do so, may make out their income tax returns at any time and forward them to the state department of revenue at Baton Rouge.

BREATH-HOLDING PAYS MONEY FAST

LONG BEACH, Calif., March 27.—(AP)—A breath-holding incident, as reported by the U. S. S. Hoosier, ship's paper of the cruiser Indianapolis, cost Ensign Roy S. Thompson $82.

Thompson, of the battleship New Mexico, bet $1 his shipmate, Ensign Edwin L. Kyte, couldn't hold his breath 70 seconds. Ensign Kyte accepted, with the provision he receive a dollar for every second over 70.

Kyte stuck his head in a bucket of water and held it under for two minutes and 32 seconds.

RIVER CAPTAIN TO FACE TRIAL

Carter S. Smith, Veteran Boatman, Charged With Killing Youth

BATON ROUGE, La., March 27.—(AP)—Captain Carter S. Smith, 47, river boatman for the past 35 years, will go on trial Monday in district court charged with murder in the slaying of Dwight Lymen Rester, 19.

Fellow river boatmen are supporting Captain Smith's defense, having raised almost $400.

Rester was shot fatally in an outlying section of the city last February 18. Arrested, Smith readily admitted the shooting, sheriff's officers said, but "only after Rester had taken off his coat and vest and advanced upon me." The officers said Captain Smith resented attentions Rester paid one of the pilot's young daughters.

Pilot of many famous river steamers, Captain Smith rang the last whistle on the "Kate Adams" as she was returning from making the motion picture "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He acted in the picture.

"You oughta seen how they had me decorated up with whiskers and a coat like they used just before the Civil war. I couldn't have recognized myself in that rig," he said in his jail cell where he has been held since the shooting.

He piloted the last Mardi Gras trip on the steamer Queen City in 1929 from Pittsburgh, Pa., to New Orleans and return.

Regarded as one of the best low water pilots on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, Smith says he has been in every flood from 1913 to the one now passing into the gulf.

The captain has been married twice and has 11 children.

A promise of courtroom fireworks appears from the fact the opposing attorneys are political opponents. Dewey J. Sanchez, who became district attorney in January, will handle the prosecution. John Fred Odom, whom Sanchez succeeded as district attorney, will head the defense.

MONROE TO JOIN REST OF WORLD IN CELEBRATING GLAD OCCASION

Cantata Will Be Presented Tonight At First Methodist Church

PEOPLE OF MANY LANDS IN CEREMONY IN JERUSALEM

First Baptist Church Seeks To Bring Attendance Up To 1,000

The Lord is risen!

This will form the keynote of all church services held in Monroe and West Monroe today. Amid the choicest flowers of springtime, with which the altars will be decorated, and the outpouring of gladsome music from choirs that will be in many cases largely augmented for the occasion, pastors will preach sermons reflective of the Christian's hope of immortality.

At least one church will present an Easter cantata, that being comprised in the program of the First Methodist church, Rev. W. C. Scott, pastor, at the night service at 7:30 o'clock. "Rabboni" will be the theme of the cantata.

There will be a special service for Knights Templar at 11 o'clock at this church, members attending in a body. At 4 p. m. infant baptisms will be conducted.

Efforts are being exerted to bring attendance at the First Baptist church Sunday school up to 1,000 today. The pastor, Rev. L. T. Hastings, will preach in the morning on the topic: "Come, See . . . Go Tell." The choir will sing "King of Kings."

At the First Baptist church in West Monroe, the subjects announced by the pastor, Rev. E. E. Huntsberry, are as follows: Morning, "The Risen Lord;" evening, "The Blood and Remission."

Grace Episcopal church, Rev. E. F. Hayward, rector, will have elaborate music and the Holy Eucharist will be celebrated at 7 a. m. There will be preaching at 11 a. m.

HUNDREDS SLAIN IN SPANISH WAR

Battle Rages For Hours Before Insurgents Drop Back To Old Positions

MADRID, March 27.—(AP)—Government troops clung to positions on the Pozoblanco front tonight, after, their commanders said, they had withstood an insurgent charge in which hundreds of attackers were killed.

Correspondents said the insurgents, driving across the western part of the Sierra Morenas, smashed successfully against government lines and won control of the mountain watershed.

Dispatches to Madrid related the government militiamen held the ground they gained in the last two days' offensive, in the face of a severe onslaught by insurgent tanks and airplanes. The battle raged for hours before the insurgent fighters, reinforced by soldiers from Seville, finally fell back to former positions.

LECHE WILL ACCEPT BUST FROM FRENCH

BATON ROUGE, La., March 27.—(AP)—A historical mission from France will dedicate Monday a bronze bust of Robert Cavalier de La Salle in Memorial hall of the state capitol.

Governor Richard Leche, is to accept the bust for Louisiana. Members of his staff will attend in full uniform.

The French delegation is touring the country in commemoration of the 250th anniversary of La Salle's death and of the 30th anniversary of the birth of Pere Marquette.

ECONOMICS REAL DISPUTE BASIS, EXECUTIVE SAYS IN RADIO TALK

'Constitution Strained Only When Poor Folks Getting Money'

ASSERTS MILLIONS GIVEN TO BANKS UNPROTESTED

Thinks Pinch Came When 'Economic Royalty' Pried Loose From Coin

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—Governor Richard Leche of Louisiana, speaking tonight in favor of President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan, said that when banks, not poor folks, got federal money there was no talk of "strain" on the constitution.

"The real basis of the present issue," he said over radio, "is neither legal nor constitutional but economic. You will recall that prior to the first election of President Roosevelt, during the period when 'prosperity was just around the corner,' that government money was passed around in considerable amounts.

"Millions of dollars were given to banks and corporations. At that time there was no mention of any strain on the constitution or any impairment to the foundation of the nation. At that time no amendment to the constitution was agitated.

MEXICO APPEAL ISSUED BY POPE

Asks Greater Intensification Of Christian Life Of Clergy And Laity

VATICAN CITY, March 27.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI appealed directly to the clergy and laity of Mexico for "greater intensification of the Christian life" today while bells of more than 400 Roman churches pealed forth joyous Easter tidings.

The pathway to "true peace and prosperity," said the pope's third encyclical in nine days, lies in the faithful practice of the principles of Christianity, and "an integral Christian education."

As his words went to the world, thousands of eastern pilgrims thronged Rome, hoping for a promised glimpse of the holy father about noon on Sunday.

That is the hour when special Easter masses are concluded. Weather permitting, the pope will appear in the loggia of St. Peter's Basilica and intone his apostolic benediction to the crowds in the huge St. Peter's plaza.

Loud-speakers were installed around the obelisk in the plaza to carry his benediction clearly to the throngs—expected to total 100,000 persons.

$200,000 NEW YORK SYNAGOGUE BURNS

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—The West End synagogue was destroyed today by the third fire discovered within it in less than 12 hours.

Rabbi Nathan Stern estimated the loss at $200,000. He said the scroll of Torah, also burned, "had an historical value that made it priceless."

Deputy Chief Inspector Francis J. Kear at once ordered 50 detectives to search for possible clues to the mysterious series of fires. The synagogue was one block from Rodeph Sholom synagogue which was marked with swastikas two weeks ago.

Caretaker Albert Kinderman, who lives in the synagogue, told officers he was awakened by smoke at 1:45 a.m. and discovered a pile of chairs in the basement, under which newspapers were burning. He extinguished the fire and then found another on a classroom platform where drapes, a rug and two chairs piled together were blazing. This, too, was extinguished.

Shortly after noon, he said, he found the main auditorium in flames. The fire had gained such headway that, despite three fire alarms, there was no chance of saving the building.

V. F. W. WILL HOLD SPECIAL MEETING

Joint Session Planned April 1 To Celebrate Founding Of Post

The Rodney J. Hobbs post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the auxiliary will meet in a joint session to observe the seventh anniversary of the post's founding on April 1, which will be the regular meeting night. The program will comprise speaking and entertainment and will terminate with a chicken spaghetti supper.

A history of the post will be given by G. N. Mills, department historian and the post's first commander, and others connected with the organization, after which guests of honor will be called on for talks.

Among those to whom invitations have been extended are the following: Ray B. Griffin of Bastrop, department senior vice-commander; W. H. Todd, Jr., of Bastrop, past department commander, and members of the post and auxiliary there; Lawrence Himel of Rayville, department chief-of-staff with members of the post and auxiliary; Theodore Robinson of Winnsboro, post commander there, together with post members and the auxiliary; Ben J. Rosenthal, department hospital chairman; Mrs. Mildred Duggan, department hospital chairman for the auxiliaries, and a delegation from the Johnson-Brown post of Alexandria; J. B. McConnell, post commander, and members of the Shreveport post, together with city and parish officials and state officials from many places in Louisiana.

A feature will be the introduction of all post and auxiliary members who attended the first organization meetings.

BIG AIRPLANE WILL CARRY PASSENGERS

A large tri-motored airplane, all metal in construction, and having 1,000 horsepower, with capacity of 16 passengers, will make trips from the municipal airport all day today with the exception of hours when church is in session. The public will be afforded an opportunity of taking rides for a nominal charge.

Allen Scott, who has had more than 8,000 hours of flying experience, will be the pilot.

Navy Sowell, parachute jumper who has 486 such feats to his credit, will make double descent parachute jumps during the afternoon from the plane.

YOUTHS TO HELP GAME PROTECTION

New Association Will Enlist Boys As 'Junior Game Wardens' In State

One thousand junior sportsmen of Louisiana will be appointed "junior game wardens" by the Louisiana Game Protective association, Inc., it was announced last night by Noel Kilpatrick, Farmerville, president of the association, in a statement given out here.

"As part of our educational program among the school children of Louisiana, teaching them to study the game laws and to become true sportsmen, we have decided to give every boy from the ages of 12 to 18 an opportunity to become a 'junior game warden.' Every member of the Louisiana Game Protective association, Inc., will be given an opportunity of naming some boy in his community who will be required to meet certain stipulated rules and regulations, especially as to his interest in outdoor life and that he pledges himself to respect the game laws of our state. Each boy who receives this appointment will be issued a commission and a beautiful badge bearing the inscription 'Junior Game Warden.' We expect to name one thousand junior sportsmen during the next 90 days. These boys will become unofficial game wardens and will cooperate with the official game wardens of the state in helping them to enforce the laws. Meetings will be held from time to time and classes for the purpose of studying the game laws will be conducted and it is hoped that this program will so stimulate interest that more respect for our laws will be had throughout the state among the senior sportsmen," Mr. Kilpatrick said.

"The Louisiana Game Protective association, Inc., is undertaking the gigantic task of eliminating the wholesale disregard for our present game laws, the dynamiting of our streams, the slaughtering of our wild game and re-vamping our laws so that Louisiana will become known as a land of true sportsmen. We are not criticizing the honest efforts of our conservation department but we do know that the enforcement of our game laws has reached low ebb for the reason that the general public has paid little attention to the question of cooperating with our officials in seeing that the laws are enforced," declared Mr. Kilpatrick.

A meeting of the officers and founders of the association will be held within the near future in Monroe for the purpose of outlining a state-wide program for the association.

POSTAL BUILDING LEASED

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27.—(Special)—Postoffice department officials announced acceptance of a five-year lease at Hodge on present quarters, between Oak and Pine, from Southern Advance Bag and Paper company. The lease contract includes equipment, safe, water, parcel post and postal savings furniture.

Louisiana Congressmen Interested In Paintings

Representative Mouton's Extensive Gallery Causes Scurry

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 27.—(Special)—Congressmen are by habit fond of hanging pictures on their office walls, but since Representative Robert L. Mouton came to town with a regular gallery of paintings of his garden, the whole Louisiana delegation has been agog about it.

'Of course, the more established members take it more easily than the newer ones, but the Mouton collection overshadows them all and there is something of a scurry going on to catch up. Hanging cheek by jowl on the wall and stacked several deep on the floor, his pictures need room to expand.

The fame of his collection has spread all over the capitol and while he takes some "ribbing" from perhaps jealous members who do not have as many, he is justly proud. The best ones are those of his own garden—"Les Jardins de Mouton"—painted by Mrs. O. L. Hebert. In gorgeous oils, nooks in the garden and flowers are portrayed. They make a riot of color in his office, but are too plentiful to show off to advantage. He has one scene in particular that he likes. It is backed up against a window so the light can go through the canvass, bringing out unexpected colors and effects.

Besides these, which make him famous here, he has pictures of such things as St. Martin's church in St. Martinsville, Packenham Oaks, Grand Lake, the oaks in the New Orleans city park, and others.

Most of the delegation have at least one picture of Huey P. Long, Governor Leche, a view of the Vieux Carre (compliments of the Southern Pacific railroad), the Shushan airport and Louisiana swamps.

Representative Joachim O. Fernandez's office abounds in New Orleans pictures, the river and developments along it and historic places nearby: Packenham Oaks, Chalmette national monument, Villere's mansion, De La Ronde's mansion, the New Orleans skyline. Going a step farther than the others, his office abounds with stuffed birds—a pelican, bluejays, ducks—a squirrel and several plants.

Representative Paul H. Maloney has abandoned a somewhat ratty pelican—dilapidated from long use—and has shoved it into a back hallway, the while waiting for a new one promised him. He likes to have a stuffed pelican sitting around as symbolizing his state.

Besides pictures of the New Orleans waterfront and historical scenes, Maloney has two of which he is extremely proud. One is from Huey P. Long, addressed "To my friend, Paul H. Maloney, the ever faithful." The other is a WPA project painting of the New Orleans Cathedral, done by Georgette A. Thompson.

Representatives Newt V. Mills and A. Leonard Allen have not had much of a start yet. Mills is going around viewing the success, or lack of it, of the other members and making notes on how to get good pictures. Allen has a few, notably one of the late Governor O. K. Allen, in a large gilt frame. At the moment it is balanced by a big map of Louisiana. He has written around to various railroads, the national park service, WPA and the forest service to see what pictures can be had for his bare walls.

Louisiana's senators have thus far not yielded to the picture craze very extensively. Senator John H. Overton's private office is adorned only by a picture of all the senators, a map of Mississippi flood control projects and a view of the Shushan airport. The New Orleans Association of Commerce supplied the outer offices with local scenes and there is a WPA painting of St. Louis cathedral. Governor Leche hangs on the back wall, looking at you when the front door is opened.

Senator Ellender's collection of pictorial art is limited to a WPA painting of a mailboat on a Louisiana bayou, a "Carry on the Work of Huey P. Long and O. K. Allen" campaign poster in a frame, and a picture of Postmaster General Farley in conference.

Representative Rene L. DeRouen, being chairman of the house public land committee, has to cater to national demands in his picture tastes, but has managed to work in some from Louisiana. Along with a whopping big picture of Chief Iron Breast (whereabouts unknown), a bust of George Washington, pictures of President Roosevelt, the capitol and Washington monument, are found some of Lake Charles, Evangeline oak and a rice field.

Representative Overton Brooks is just starting in with pictures of airplanes; (he is on military affairs committee), a banquet, a Burlington railroad calendar with an Indian whacking a tom tom, a map of Shreveport and an airview of Barksdale field.

Representative John L. Griffith has probably the largest variety of the lot, topped off by a WPA painting of a crawfish fight, hanging on the wall in a jest for Mouton, who is being "ribbed" for his knowledge of crawfish. A favorite in the office is another WPA painting of a rural Louisiana scene, complete with mud road, mail box, horse and buggy and tumble-down houses. Another which merely fills up space and adds color looks like a surrealist painting of a New York street scene. Then there are photos of places in the district, bayou liberties, logging in St. Tammany parish, Bogalusa sawmill and a reforestation project.

BOY SLIGHTLY HURT WHEN HIT BY AUTO

Vincent Savaña, 6, who lives at 104 South Twentieth street, was slightly injured when he was hit by an automobile driven by L. H. Davis of Swartz Saturday morning shortly after 11 o'clock.

The accident occurred at the corner of DeSiard and South Twentieth streets when the child was said to have run into the path of Davis' car while attempting to cross DeSiard street.

Mr. Davis stopped his car and picked up the child, taking him to the office of a local physician, who reported that the boy was only slightly hurt. He suffered bruises and contusions about the left side of the head and left hip.

Reporting the accident to the police, Mr. Davis, who was not held, said that he was driving west on DeSiard street and that he failed to see the child when he darted into the path of his automobile.

CANTATA PRESENTED AT MARTIN TEMPLE

Dubois' Lenten cantata, "The Seven Last Words of Jesus" which was presented at the Martin Temple C. M. E. church on Good Friday, will be presented again Easter Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the church, according to Hayward Jackson, director of the cantata.

Because of the heavy rain on the night of Good Friday when the cantata was presented many people were unable to attend. Requests that it be rendered again were received from a large number of music lovers of both races and today's presentation will be given so that those who were unable to attend the last performance may be able to enjoy this musical treat today.

Good Friday night's presentation was dedicated to Mrs. Blanche Oliver who was presented with a lovely bouquet of flowers by the singers. With the opening of the program a beautiful red cross was projected against a white background and gave a visible portrayal of the service. A special arrangement of flowers by Harvey Lamb added to the beauty of the scene.

A chorus of more than 40 voices will sing the cantata this afternoon and the soloists include E. James Hamilton, Pershing Foster, Ethel Harris and James Cook.

Besides singing the cantata, the chorus and soloists will sing other numbers including Dett's "Listen To De Lamb," and "I'll Never Turn Back No More."

Five hundred seats will be reserved for white and colored patrons for today's performance.

His Entire System Toned By Gly-Cas

New Herbal Remedy Amazing In Restoring Mr. Landry To Good And Glorious Health; Rheumatism Gone Entirely; Indigestion, Nervousness Yields To New Remedy.

"Within the first fifteen days after I began Gly-Cas there was as much difference in my health as there is between daylight and darkness," said Mr. Oge Landry, 803 East Vermillion

MR. OGE LANDRY

St., Lafayette, La. "I actually feel fifteen years younger today. I had what must have been the worst case of stomach trouble. I had to be careful of my diet, attacks of indigestion and sour stomach were almost unbearable at times. I could get but little sleep at night, was restless and nervous and felt worn-out every morning, had no energy for anything. Rheumatism also settled in my leg and pained so I thought I would surely break. Regardless of what I tried I was steadily growing in a more critical condition and as medicine after medicine failed in my case I became worried over the outcome. But finally I began Gly-Cas and it was a REAL BLESSING to me."

"I was a new man fifteen days after I began Gly-Cas," he continued. "The poisons that were affecting my whole system were removed, my stomach soon began to digest all foods properly and I can now eat the most substantial foods without any distress afterwards. My nerves are quieted, sleep well and feel refreshed. I seldom if ever have a touch of rheumatism now. And to prove how well I am, I am now doing the most trying work of my life and even after eight hours' work I feel 'great.' Too much cannot be given Gly-Cas."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard St., and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns. (Adv.)

CCC WILL ENROLL 1,230 YOUNG MEN

Monroe Area Allotment Of 181 Will Be Taken In Early In April

The civilian conservation corps will begin enrolling 1,230 young men in Louisiana in April, it was announced Saturday by James H. Crutcher, state WPA administrator. The Louisiana enrollment is a part of the nation-wide schedule that will offer camp life and employment to more than 100,000 youths and war veterans to replace vacancies existing at the beginning of the fifth year of CCC activity in the United States.

Following are the dates, places of enrollment and the allotments: April 6, Shreveport, 237; April 6, Monroe, 181; April 7, Alyexandria, 185; April 8, Lake Charles, 134; April 9, Lafayette, 95; April 10, Baton Rouge, 84; April 12, Hammond, 125; April 13, New Orleans, 189.

Applicants must be between 17 and 28 years of age, unmarried, unemployed and citizens of the United States. The young man must have needy dependents on public relief rolls or eligible for relief to whom he is willing to allot a major portion of his cash allowance. All enrollees must pass a physical examination for fitness. An applicant who has been previously in the CCC is eligible for re-selection one year after the date of his discharge, provided he was honorably discharged and meets other eligibility requirements. All enrollments must be voluntary.

Selections will be supervised jointly by the FERA and the state department of public welfare, prior to the enrollment dates. Applications may be filed in the offices of the parish departments of public welfare.

STORAGE VAULT OKEHED

Monroe Steam Laundry
American Institute of Refrigeration and found to be properly equipped for the protection by storage in cold, dry air of Furs, Garments, Fabrics and Rugs against damage by moths and other insects as well as summer heat
This Certificate expires December 31, 1937
General Secretary

The above is a reproduction of the original certificate recently received by the Monroe Steam laundry. This certificate shows that the Monroe Steam laundry's cold storage vault has been inspected by the American Institute of Refrigeration—the national organization designated by the United States Government to represent this country in the International Institute of Refrigeration. The Monroe Steam laundry's cold storage vault for the protection of fur and fur-trimmed garments, has been in operation since the early spring of 1936. The certification of this vault is an added feature for the further protection of the public.

VANDALS DESTROY FLOWERS IN CITY

Mrs. Elmer Richards, Jr., calls attention to the fact that many beautiful flowers, aza'-as and other choice blossoms of springtime in the gardens that surround many homes of the city, have been ruthlessly picked and bushes have been mutilated.

One of the places that has been thus visited by vandals is that of Mrs. Allan Sholars, 1006 Riverside drive, where one of the choicest displays of azaleas in the entire city is to be found. The flowers have been in many cases plucked and carried away by thoughtless persons.

Mrs. Richards stated that when flowers are thus plucked their value is lost to the general public. "Would you want to have your flowers thus treated?" is the question she asks of young vandals.

Proper home training and the emphasizing of property rights, are regarded as calculated to instill into the minds of the young the requisite attitude which will be a safeguard against acts of vandalism, it was stated.

T. L. HARRIS HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Blinded by the glare from the headlights of an oncoming automobile, T. L. Harris, 48, 211 Louise Anne avenue, sideswiped a parked automobile belonging to L. F. Flanagan, living at the Alvis hotel, and was severely injured. The accident took place shortly after 11 o'clock Friday night at the corner of Pargoud drive and Lee avenue.

Mr. Harris, who suffered a fractured rib on the left side of his body and a bruised right knee, was rendered unconscious by the impact. He was taken to St Francis sanitarium. His car, which bounced backwards after striking the parked automobile and hit a telephone post at the corner, was completely demolished.

MARTIN'S TEMPLE WILL REPEAT EASTER CANTATA

An Easter program, "The Seven Last Words of Christ," given Friday night at Martin's temple, C. M. E., will be repeated this afternoon at 4 o'clock. In spite of inclement weather, a large audience, including many white friends of the singers, attended. The program will be given again in order to permit others unable to be present to hear the cantata, which is described as one of the most effective presentations ever given in the city. The singing of E. J. Hamilton and James Cook, soloists, was especially capable, it was stated by those who heard them Friday night.

BAPTISTS WILL ATTEND MEETINGS AT WINNFIELD

Many members of the First Baptist churches in Monroe and West Monroe will go to Winnfield this week to attend two meetings which will be held there. A special session of the general Baptist state convention will be held there Monday. The Women's Missionary union convention opens there Tuesday night and closes Thursday noon.

The purpose for the holding of the special session is to discuss the "Greater Louisiana College Campaign."

HOME CLUB MEETS

OKALOOSA, La., March 27.—(Special)—A talk on the subject, "Refreshments," was given by Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, Ouachita parish home demonstration agent, at a meeting of the Okaloosa Home Demonstration club, held at the home of Mrs. W. A. Griffin. The club's nutrition leaders, Mrs. H. P. McBride and Mrs. F. J. Crowell, gave a demonstration of making tarts and orange bread. These delicancies were served to the club members, with Mrs. Griffin pouring tea. The next meeting of the club will be held April 28 at the home of Mrs. McBride.

FIRE DAMAGES HOUSE

A small dwelling house and restaurant at 1402 DeSiard street, occupied by Willie Waits, was badly damaged Saturday night by a fire which originated when a coal oil lamp exploded. Fire companies 1, 2 and 3 answered the alarm and remained at the scene for about an hour.

LEGUMES BRING LARGE PROFITS

Parish Agent Invites Farmers To Join In Tour On April 2

A profit of $100,000 can be earned by farmers in Ouachita parish next year by turning under 10,000 acres of winter legumes for soil improvement before planting cotton or other crops on the same land, according to a letter addressed Saturday by E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent, to Ouachita parish farmers, inviting them to join a farm tour of winter legume crops which are ready to be turned under in this parish. The tour is slated for April 2 and will be under the direction of J. W. Bateman, director of agricultural extension at L. S. U., and R. A. Wasson, extension agronomist.

Mr. Strahan, in his letter, invites Ouachita parish farmers to join in the tour in order to make a first hand study of some of the winter legume crops about to be plowed under, including old fashioned bur clover, early giant bur clover, Austrian winter peas and Oregon common vetch. The schedule of the tour has been arranged to include demonstrations on hill land and river land.

The following is a schedule of the demonstrations where formal stops will be made, crops examined and round table discussions conducted relating to time and method of planting, saving and securing seed, and disposition of crops:

8:30 a. m.—P. M. McDonald's farm (11 miles northwest from Monroe and one half mile south from Drew school).

9:30 a. m.—Dr. Calvert's farm (near the western limits of West Monroe on Natchitoches street).

10:30 a. m.—W. A. Calloway's farm, near Bosco.

11:15 a. m.—N. W. McHenry farm on Columbia road.

1:30 p. m.—Dr. Frank Collins farm on the Sterlington road near Lamkin.

2:30 p. m.—R. L. Moore farm on the Sterlington-Bastrop road, 15 miles northeast of Monroe.

3:45 p. m.—Guy P. Stubbs farm, 10 miles east of Monroe on highway 80.

Other demonstrations to be viewed during the tour but at which no formal stops will be made include the farms of Walter LeJeune, Robert Cann, J. T. Austin, Jr., Alex Landrum, M. S. Dixon, Henry Hinkle, Sam Hunt, J. M. Day, Blanks Parker, Robert Layton and J. W. Standley.

HOLD EGG HUNT

Departments of the Sunday school of the First Methodist church held their Easter egg hunt in the church annex Saturday afternoon. The hunt had been planned for Forsythe park but because of the inclement weather it was decided to hold it indoors.

SUNRISE MEETING

The senior department of the First Methodist church will meet at the church this morning at 5:30 o'clock and proceed by automobile to the home of Mrs. D. Crawford Young at Cheniere, where a worship service will be held with breakfast served out-of-doors by the young people.

COLLEGE TO RE-OPEN

The Northeast Center of Louisiana State university will re-open Tuesday morning, having been closed for the Easter holidays since last Wednesday.

JOINS STAFF

John Windham (above), of Laurel, Miss., recently assumed a position here as member of the footwear department of the Palace department store. Thoroughly experienced in his profession, Mr. Windham already has become popular with the clientele of his department. During the past several years he was connected with one of Mississippi's largest retail stores.

RADIO FARM TALK SCHEDULED MONDAY

An electrical transcription of a talk made by W. R. Tolley, administrator of the agricultural adjustment administration, will be made over radio station KMLB Monday at 2:30 o'clock. Farmers and others interested in agriculture are urged to tune in and hear what Mr. Tolley has to say.

This is an innovation introduced by the United States department of agriculture and if it proves effective it will be made a regular feature of the weekly Farm Flashes, radio script which is furnished to all cooperating state stations. Morse Salisbury, chief of radio service, U. S. D. A., Washington, D. C., sent the transcriptions to the agricultural editors of the agricultural department, Louisiana State university, and they in turn relayed them to the local station.

Persons listening in are urged through this medium to give their impression of this service by writing to the local station or by addressing their communication to the agricultural editors at University Station, Baton Rouge. A true expression of public opinion is what Mr. Salisbury is desirous of procuring.

The air will be cleared at 2:30 p.m. today so that all Louisianians interested may get an intimate closeup of Mr. Tolley's views on agriculture, Mr. Salisbury said.

PROGRESSIVE MEN TO HOLD EASTER DANCE

The Progressive Men's club, composed of young Italian-Americans, will hold its annual Easter dance tonight at the Columbus Social club hall, 703 DeSiard street.

The dance is an outstanding feature of the club's activities and the entertainment committee has made every effort to assure its success. There will be a floor show given which starts at 10 p.m. Members of the club are urged to attend the dance.

PLANS MADE FOR SMITH REVIVAL

Thousands Expected To Attend Services Beginning Next Sunday

Sunday April 4, a week from today, Rev. Gipsy Smith, world famous evangelist, will open a two weeks' series of revival services in the First Baptist church in West Monroe. Preliminary plans have been arranged for the holding of the services, the pastor, Rev. E. E. Huntsberry, announced.

At the morning and evening services next Sunday it is expected that 3,000 to 3,500 persons will attend. Letters of inquiry concerning the meetings have been received from many cities and towns of north Louisiana, south Arkansas and Mississippi, it was reported.

In order to care for the large throng that is expected to be present, not only on the opening day but throughout the two weeks, public address systems have been installed in the Sunday school rooms and the banquet hall of the church. Should these not prove adequate to accommodate all who come, the Crosley school auditorium will be also secured and will be provided with public address system by use of loud speakers.

An augmented choir will provide music which is always one of the leading features at Gipsy Smith services.

There will be no cottage prayer meetings held in advance of the revival series, but the hour of 9 a.m. has been set aside this week as the time when church members are asked to hold private prayer in their homes, seeking success for the meetings proposed.

Gipsy Smith is no stranger to Monroe. About nine years ago he conducted a similar series of meetings in a large tent erected on the campus of Barkdull Faulk school, and his appearance at that time was sponsored by the First Presbyterian church.

While the services this time will be directly sponsored by the First Baptist church of West Monroe, all Protestant churches of the Twin Cities are cooperating in every possible manner toward making a complete success of the meetings.

While the meetings are in progress in West Monroe, Gipsy Smith will make his headquarters at Hotel Frances.

The Message Of Easter

Strange doctrines have been builded upon a foundation of faith, and men have lived by them and died for them. Great deeds have been done for faith's sake and wise things spoken by its inspiration. Yet the faith, which is "the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things unseen," cannot sustain alone the courageous and confident spirit. Man needs some certainties on which to found his faith. He must renew his faith, at times, by new certainties.

Herein lies the enduring confidence of the coming of spring, known to all times and peoples without necessity of teaching or argument. By every appearance the long winter denies the miracle of enduring life. It is leafless, colorless and cheerless. Death is in its bitter cold, its stormy strife of wind and rain. Many ancient legends of gods and heroes tell of its triumph over life and heat and happiness. There is the tale of Persephone doomed to wander half the year in the dread dark of the underworld. There is the Norse legend of Baldur, bright son of Odin, slain by craft in the twilight of the Gods.

"I heard a voice that cried,
'Baldur the Beautiful
Is dead, is dead!'
And through the misty air
Passed like the mournful cry
Of sunward-sailing cranes."

These are plain parables of the most familiar phenomenon in human experience—the fading of summer into the twilight of autumn and the cold night of winter. Yet since the world began the perennial rebirth of spring has proven them false. With every Easter season, no matter by what name it has been known, has come comforting assurance of life outlasting death, of beauty born again amid the cheerless devastation wrought by the long winter.

Therefore, the hearts of men were ready and eager to believe in the miracle of Easter morning, nearly twenty centuries ago, when one in white raiment told the women at the sepulcher, "He is not here, for He is risen, as He said. And go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead." And certainty and reassurance of that moment became the foundation stone of Christian faith and doctrine. The story of simple folk who came "as it began to be dawn," hoping and believing, yet troubled by doubt and grief, is the gospel of Good Friday and of its fulfillment in the mystery and glory of the resurrection. Theirs is the testimony of witnesses who saw and heard. That, in truth, is the teaching of all the Gospels, which are not written in the spirit of prophecy but as a record of human experience. Centuries of doubt and dissension have not shaken their testimony, but strengthened it by the simple faith and dedicated lives of uncounted millions who have believed that a Savior was born into the world and lived and talked with men. "Go quickly and tell His disciples," said the angel at the tomb. Today their tale is told again in a world far distant and different from their own, yet in words that the wise and simple in heart may equally understand.

So a single certainty, revealed first to "Mary Magdalene and that other Mary," has kept faith alive and valiant through the temptations of twenty centuries. And the seasons in their faithful cycle recall and repeat its teaching. Death does not endure forever, dawn follows darkness, prophecy is fulfilled and hope is rewarded. The seed and stem and root are not dead, but sleeping, awaiting the resurrection of spring. Every flower of Easter, standing before the church altar or brightening the home, is symbol and proof of resurrection.

Every race's experience, beginning far earlier than all recorded history, approves the lesson of Easter morning. And in these days of doubt and change, when men may lose easily their faith and hope and charity, when they may too readily distrust their own courage and find no light among their fellows, it is time to take to heart the message of Easter morning.

There will come a new dawn and better day in the affairs of men, as surely as spring follows the long weariness of winter. There will be new beginnings arising from the wreckage of past failure and disappointment. There will be a bright tomorrow in the fullness of time.

To this the cycle of the seasons has borne witness since man first lived upon the earth. This the woman knew for a certainty when they went early to the sepulcher on Easter morning to find the great stone rolled away and "did run with fear and great joy to bring His disciples word."

A company of screen actors is leaving soon for a long stay on location in a South African jungle and we'd all appreciate it very much if, on one pretext or another, John Barrymore could be taken along.

There is still tenderness and loving kindness in the world. Listen to the radio man advertising beauty aids.

There isn't much to worry about when a "grave crisis" gets statesmen to talking instead of writing sassy notes.

Nations are like individuals. They can't feel horrified by the theft of property that belongs to the other fellow.

RHYME AND REASON

NINTH BEATITUDE

There is a ninth beatitude that sheds its magic grace;
Blessed is the man who has found his place.

Blessed is the man whose hands are strong;
Who works with a will the whole day long.

Blessed is the labor
he can do;
Blessed is his home
when work is through.

Blessed is the soul
that does not shirk;
Blessed is the man
who has found his work.

GOODS MAKE WEALTH

By BRUCE CATTON

After spending six years in a frantic effort to attain recovery this nation now seems to be worrying for fear that it may be recovering too fast.

Chairman Eccles of the federal reserve warns that we shall have trouble if prices and wages go on increasing too fast and too far. Secretary Wallace follows suit with a similar warning, and is followed by Secretary Roper.

Secretary Wallace summarizes the danger very neatly:

"There is danger from business men, in search of profits, cutting down production to a point that is bad for the general welfare.

"There is danger that labor, in search of higher wages and shorter hours, will restrict production to a point that is bad for the general welfare.

"There is danger of agriculture, in search of higher prices, cutting production to a point that is bad for the general welfare.

"If all three worked together, they would get more and more money for less and less goods."

It would be perilously easy for the nation to step off into this spiral—if, indeed, it has not already done so. And perhaps as good a way as any to fortify ourselves against it would be to remember just what it is that constitutes wealth, from the national standpoint.

The nation can be just as poor in an era of high prices and high wages as in an era of low ones. For it is not the figures on the ledgers that make national prosperity; it is the bulk of the country's production of goods.

It was recognition of this little fact, probably, that explains the early opposition to the NRA and AAA programs.

Everybody realizes that the farmer had to get higher prices. Everybody realized that the business man had to sell his goods at a profit. Everybody realized that if the working man didn't get decent wages, he could not buy the things business man and farmer were producing.

Yet balanced against those facts was the inescapable fact that the nation's wealth consists of the things it produces, and that the way to increase its wealth is to increase its production, not to decrease it. Offhand, one would certainly say that a nation which turns out necessities and luxuries enough to supply 100,000,000 people is considerably wealthier than one which produces enough for only half that number—regardless of price tags.

Just how to regulate those price tags so that the individual producer can prosper and the country as a whole can increase its wealth is a man-sized problem. We have been pecking away at it since 1930, or thereabout, and haven't solved it yet.

But solve it we must, before long, if we are to avoid disaster.

A BOOK REVIEW

FAMED STORY TELLER TELLS OWN STORY

The great army of people who were led into enchanted lands by Rudyard Kipling in years gone by can hardly fail to be deeply interested in his recently published autobiographical fragment, "Something of Myself."

For Kipling—however outmoded his imperialistic chauvinism may look to modern eyes, however inadequate his officer-and-gentleman standards may seem in this chaotic post-war world—was a true magician, after all.

If his hymns to the empire-builders sound flat these days, his stories of children and animals, of men and ships, still ring true. He was that great rarity, a born story teller. Such people appear on the scene all too seldom. Kipling enriched us all.

"Something About Myself" is just what its title implies—a book of reminiscence about his own life, especially about the earlier part of it. Here we see his boyhood—and a sadly unhappy one it was, in spots—his career as a youthful newspaper man in India, his observation and comment on men and events, his life in America, and so on.

You should be warned, perhaps, that Kipling's dislike of America and Americans gets full play, in this book. That may have been a shade ungenerous of him, considering the eager way Americans hailed his genius and bought his books; you will find spots where his judgment seems shallow and prejudiced.

But what of it? Here was a great writer, and his autobiographical jottings are lit with the authentic light of his genius. If you have ever come under his spell, you won't want to miss this book.

Prayer for Easter

By Helen Welshimer

THE crosses of Golgotha
No longer wound the sky
With skeleton reminders
Of three who had to die
One afternoon in springtime . . .
Long years have wiped away
The marks of blackened anguish
Upon a hill one day.

FOR there was no retaining
The Christ within a tomb.
He broke the weary fetters,
And now the lilies bloom
Triumphant on each altar,
To show death leads to life . . .
Oh, we who walk the tired ways
Of sacrifice and strife.

WE ask Thee, God, this Easter,
To break the binding clothes
That hold our hearts imprisoned,
And as the Christ arose,
May we stand on Golgotha,
And find the crosses gone,
While lilies spread white carpets
To greet a fresh, sweet dawn.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

No small town I have lived in had the unbridled tongue for vicious gossiping that characterizes New York, especially that section embraced in what is known as Broadway. Out yonder the back fence mongering was rarely reputation smashing. Mostly just a few high-nosed sniffs for this and that. Not very personal.

In New York they tear reputations to tatters nightly in the snack bars, night clubs and all-night places where the clans clot. So rampant has grown the viciousness there are increasing numbers who, quite sensibly, turn a deaf ear to all gossip.

I have heard things said about people of prominence I knew to be absolutely untrue yet it was prattled as casually as one discuces the weather. No one is immune to the vicious circle. The higher one ascends the more he or she is attacked.

Rarely is anything done about it legally, for slander suits merely accentuate the fib and widen the publicity. The depraved mongers know this and it gives them latitude.

People who attain sudden and spectacular successes are especially targets for the wretched darts. At first it stuns them but soon they learn it is a part of the New York celebrity fame and they must either endure or spend their time fighting a hopeless battle.

The Apostle James in rebuking the evils of his time, might have been speaking to the modern world, when he said: "For every kind of beasts and of birds and serpents and of things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind; but the tongue can no man tame."

The popular song writers are often accused of borrowing many bars from the old masters. Yet the moderns had nothing on the old masters according to Bruno Walter, famous orchestra conductor, who declares:

"No great artist—I don't care in what medium he creates—bothers his head for an instant over the question whether what he says, writes, paints or sculpts is original. Speaking for music, you will find 'quotations' in all the greatest and now unquestionly accepted masters. Wagner used themes from Liszt; Mozart wrote a fugue and variations on a phrase from Handel, so forth and so onward.

"The true artist does not stop to think whether he is being original or not. The same man in any line of thought or endeavor does not worry about the 'originality' of his ideas. A serious man says what he feels to be true, does what he feels to be genuine, no matter how many others have said or done the same or equivalent thing before him."

Financial follies: When I came to New York 28 years ago the two prime investments were those of an ice company and a street railway line. People who had these securities in sufficient quantites were believed fixed for life. Today both are in bankruptcy and their stocks and bonds worthless.

I notice that with her most recent book, "Married People," Mary Roberts Rinehart has written 48 books and collaborated on three more. A tremendous output, yet she has had time to rear a family, attend the domestic duties and travel extensively.

I like the old Irish Wish heard via the radio today: "I hope you are a half hour in Heaven before the divvle knows you're there."

Despite Moscow and Spain there are still inspiring touches of religious fervor in the old country. Hear former President Masaryk as reported by Emil Ludwig:

"For me religion is not a blind authoritarian belief, but a conviction as to the the existence of God and the immortality of the individual, with hope arising therefrom, and courage through all the vicissitudes of life. I consider religion to be the most important and most profound social force which keeps men in organic union, not only with heaven but with their fellow men. Belief in God and immortality, in its manifold forms, supplements and governs faith in the things of this life."

The Christian Science Monitor, which seldom waxes even mildly facetious editorially, could not resist printing this:

The historic Alexandria, Va., house of John L. Lewis, the labor leader, is to be shown during the coming charity tour of Alexandria homes. Now, if there is anyone who would like to sit down on Mr. Lewis' property——.

Reading Ruminations: For those who like a touch of horror in their reading, there is plenty of it in Gilbert Frankau's "Experiments in Crime." I found "A Chink in the Armour," by Mrs. Belloc-Lowndes, revived and highly ballyhooed by Alexander Woollcott, distressingly insipid. The best of the recent gush of Mexican books on Mexico is Max Miller's "Mexico Around Me."

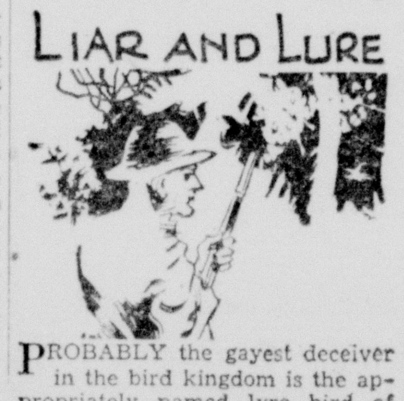
LYRE BIRD ALSO LIAR AND LURE



PROBABLY the gayest deceiver in the bird kingdom is the appropriately named lyre bird of Australia. Its tail feathers curving upward in the form of a Grecian lyre, this unusual bird is one of the most deceptive and elusive creatures on earth. As a mimic it has few equals, and as such it has lured strangers deep into the forests, when they thought they had found a way out.

The reason for that is the bird's mimicry of such common sounds as the bark of a dog, an ax cutting into a tree, a train whistle, the sawing of wood, and the calls of other birds. In addition, the bird is an accomplished actor. It will stand on a mound of earth and wait until all is quiet, then begin to dance. It will alternate its dancing with imitations of other birds, and various sounds, and at no time will it permit a person to come near it. There is only one case of its ever being tamed.

LASALLE PARISH FARMERS WILL FORM ORGANIZATION

JENA, La., March 27.—(Special)—A meeting will be held on Friday afternoon, April 9, at the Jena courthouse by the farmers of LaSalle parish for the purpose of organizing a farm bureau. Carl Kimmerly, farm organization specialist, and Floyd W. Spencer, assistant director of extension, will be present and participate in the meeting.

A cooperative organization is the aim of the farmers, who hope to combine with other farm bureaus in the state to send a representative to Washington. County Agent J. V. Hinton, who has charge of the meeting, has extended a cordial invitation to all farmers and business men in the parish to be present.

ENTERTAINMENT POSTPONED

DOWNSVILLE, La., March 27.—(Special)—The play and cake walk scheduled for Saturday night, April 3, at the Eureka school, has been postponed until Saturday night, April 10, and will be held at Aulds chapel, in the Eureka community, according to an announcement made by the Eureka Home Demonstration club, sponsors of the entertainment.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

(Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

When the fact that a person has infantile paralysis is once established, it next becomes necessary to examine the various muscles carefully to determine which are involved. Methods of treatment depend largely on the results of such examination, since ways are known in which the muscles may be strengthened and recovery hastened.

The infantile paralysis victim must have absolute rest in bed. Such rest aids recovery and obviates unnecessary irritation to the affected tissues.

Nursing must be exceedingly gentle, and must minimize as much as possible any movement of the patient. Any functioning or working of inflamed tissue is dangerous.

A specialist will usually fix the patient's limbs and tissues in such a position as to prevent movement and, at the same time, to have them in the best possible condition after the acute inflammation has passed.

From six to eight weeks of such treatment may be necessary, to permit the damaged nerve cells to make as much recovery as possible.

It has been said that even the weight of bedclothes may provide dangerous pressure on weakened tissues. Simply propping the patient up in bed may cause a disturbance in the back. Placing of a pillow under the patient's knees may start a deformity. It is especially important, therefore, at that stage of the disease to avoid the use of home methods of treatment. Children frequently are rubbed with all sorts of liniments or lotions. Cultists or quacks of one type or another attempt manipulations or vibrations of the tissues, which invariably harm the patient.

Only after all the tenderness and pain have left the affected tissues should manipulations be undertaken, and even then they must be made most cautiously. The paralyzed child will be encouraged gradually to move his joints and muscles, but should never be permitted to do it to the point of fatigue.

Far too often parents who do not understand the condition will urge the paralyzed child to move or permit him to be massaged by incompetent healers, with the result that complete recovery may thereby be ultimately prevented.

COLLEGES TO EXCHANGE ART WORK EXHIBITIONS

PINEVILLE, La., March 27.—(Special)—Professor Stuart R. Purser, head of the art department of Louisiana college, and Professor Don Brown, of Centenary college, Shreveport, have arranged to exchange exhibitions of the work of the students of each institution. Each college will show the visiting exhibition on April 19 to 24.

The work sent by Centenary will consist of charcoal drawings and paintings, while that sent by Louisiana college will include designing, painting, charcoal drawings and crafts. Only the best pieces of art are to be exhibited by the institutions.

Professor Purser said that this is an attempt to unify the art work of the different colleges of the state and to show the students what others are doing.

BERNICE BOOSTER CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION

BERNICE, La., March 27.—(Special)—Following a report from the nominating committee, of which M. A. Price is chairman, the Bernice Booster club, at an annual meeting, appointed the following officers for the coming year: Mayor J. M. Talbot, president; Guy McDonald, vice-president; Leon Boyd, secretary; and W. E. Patrick, treasurer.

George D. Grafton, Bernice High school athletic coach and president of the club during the past year, the first year of its operation, had requested the nominating committee not to consider him for appointment for another year, because his various school activities would not allow him to devote sufficient efforts to affairs of the club.

Lunch was served at the annual meeting by the Women's Missionary society of the local Baptist church.

SCHOOL HAS EGG-HUNT

CALHOUN, La., March 27.—(Special)—Each room at the Calhoun High school held an Easter egg hunt Friday afternoon. Some of the grades enjoyed picnics along with their egg hunts.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska and a rubber band, which he snapped loudly on a pad of paper, became one of the chief sensations of early senate hearings on the Roosevelt judiciary plan.

Unless something is done to correct the impression, historians are likely to believe that these snappings—which almost disrupted the hearing and did bring a mild reproof from Chairman Henry Ashurst of the judiciary committee—were the oblivious fiddlings of an absent-minded, nervous old gentleman.

The plain fact is that Norris who is 75 and was himself once chairman of the judiciary committee, was only trying to work off his emotions of impatience in some relatively quiet way.

Senator William H. King of Utah, a youngster of 72, was engaged in questioning a witness. During long years here, King has developed a peculiarly individualized style of questioning. It knows no equal when judged by standards of irrelevance, verbosity and complexity.

The usual custom among spectators when King gets started is to relax, yawn, grin, whisper and read newspapers. The witness finds his best course is to say "yes" automatically whenever King stops.

But Norris had questions of his own to ask and had to get away for an appointment. It was King's victory. Norris just "couldn't take it."

Congressmen Reach 70, Too

The seniority system, under which both houses of congress are run by the men who have been there longest, doubtless is as effective as any other which might be devised. Yet, the arguments that Roosevelt applied to the question of supreme court justices over 70 years old, applies with equal force—if any—to aged legislators. Everybody knows that some of the most valuable men in congress are over 70 years old, just as everyone knows that Justices Brandeis, Holmes and others have done some of their best judicial work long after 70. On the other hand, congress has septuagenarians in powerful posts for no other reason than the fact they have served many, many terms.

Chairman Robert H. Doughton of the house ways and means committee, sometimes called "Muley Bob," is a North Carolina congressman, aged 73. When Chairman Marriner Eccles of the federal reserve board tackled one of the most critical issues confronting the administration, suggesting higher taxes to prevent inflation, Doughton replied to seekers of comment with an answer which doubtless will be embalmed as one of the statesmanlike utterances of the current era.

"Oh, you mean Mr. Heckles!" said Doughton with a laugh.

"He's heckling us."

F. D. R. In Fish Business

Roosevelt, who insists on having his own little joke oftener than anyone else, was saying recently to Senator George Radcliffe of Maryland:

"George, remember when you and I were in the fish business together?"

Radcliffe admitted remembering. Not that either of them was ever actually down among the fish, as Al Smith was in the old days of Fulton street. But once upon a time Roosevelt was representative of a Baltimore trust company, working for Radcliffe, the company's vice president. And the two had to administer the affairs of a bankrupt fish company in New England.

Buy More Hughes' Books

The Senate Library has had to buy new copies of the book, "The Supreme Court of the United States," by Charles Evans Hughes.

The volume was recently printed in a dollar edition, and it was a large supply of this edition which Senate Librarian Jim Preston bought to keep up with the demand.

Members of congress, when asked for a treatise on the president's supreme court plan, are likely, if they oppose the plan to send you the majority report of the New York City Bar association's committee on federal legislation. If they favor the plan, they'll probably send you the minority report.

Among more extended attacks on the proposal, the most effective according to common opinion here, have been the speech of Senator Burton K. Wheeler at Chicago, and the speech of Senator David L. Walsh in New York. If you want what seem the most effective arguments submitted by proponents of the plan, get the Chicago speech of Chairman James M. Landis of SEC, next dean of Harvard Law school, or the senate committee statement of Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson.

STEGALL GETS POSTAL APPOINTMENT AT DELHI

DELHI, March 27.—(Special)—J. W. Stegall, for the past two years acting postmaster at Delhi, has received a telegram from Senator Allen J. Ellender advising that his appointment had been approved by the senate and that his commission, signed by the president would be forwarded to him at an early date.

4-H MEDALS RECEIVED

FARMERVILLE, La., March 27.—(Special)—Medals for 4-H boys and girls who won honors in the cotton and corn contest of Union parish have been received. The cotton contest winners were Reagan Andrews and Eugine Love, both of Linnville. Winners on the corn contest were Earline Beasley, Rex Haile, Victor Love, Byrum McKinnie and Burton Russell, all of Linnville. John Willie Frazier of Union Gin, and Travis Cherry and Preston Telford of Spearsville.

CALHOUN YOUTH INJURED

CALHOUN, La., March 27.—(Special)—Ben Brownlee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt Brownlee, is suffering with a fractured collarbone sustained while playing ball on the school ground at Calhoun. Dr. H. O. Taylor treated his injuries immediately. His condition is not considered serious.

Anton Chekhov, Russian playwright and short story writer, named his two dogs "Bromide" and "Quinine."

GRAND JURY FOR LINCOLN REPORTS

33 True Bills And 42 No True Bills Returned After Investigations

RUSTON, La., March 27.—(Special)—Findings and recommendations of the Lincoln parish grand jury, which convened Monday, were reported to Judge E. L. Walker of the district court here at 9:30 a. m. Saturday.

The grand jury examined 79 complaints, returned 33 true bills and 42 no true bills, and continued four complaints for further investigation. Although most of the true bills were said to involve minor law infractions, specific reference to the cases publicly will be withheld until probably some time next week, it was stated. The cases will be tried before the district court in April.

Prompted by the recent explosion at the New London, Tex., school house, the grand jury recommended "to the officers and bodies in charge of all public buildings of Lincoln parish that an immediate investigation be instituted, by competent men, of all such public buildings for the purpose of determining whether there exist any defects or danger in natural gas lines and heat equipments used in said buildings, and be reasonably certain that no catastrophe will result."

Liquor law enforcement in the parish was considered by the jury, which recommended "that the town council of Ruston and the Lincoln parish police jury pass the necessary ordinance and take such action as will enable the peace officers and the district attorney to perform their duties in an intelligent way on the liquor question."

Believing that persons allowing stock to run at large may not be familiar with the statute pertaining to the matter, the jury advised that "citizens be readily and fully informed in regard to the extent and effect of the present stock law."

District Attorney T. C. Bergeron of Farmerville was lauded by the grand jury "for his promptness and efficiency in attending and presenting the state's evidence to our body."

The jury also commended Sheriff Bryan Thigpen, Deputy Sheriff Fred Wilder, Superintendent of Schools H. L. Campbell, and Eddie Evans, secretary of the Lincoln parish police jury, "for the neatness of their books and office records," and added that "we find the general conduct of the crime situation is very well handled."

No attempt was made to audit the books of the various public officials, the report stated, since the books "are audited regularly by a representative of the state supervisor of public accounts."

Bonds of the public officials of the parish "were found to be in the amounts required by law."

The courthouse and jail were examined and reported by the grand jury to be "clean and well kept."

J. D. Holland of Ruston was foreman of the grand jury, which included the following members: George L. Nicol, J. M. Kirkland, S. F. Fowler, E. C. DeFreese, Roy L. Haralson, R. S. Larance, J. O. Calhoun, J. P. Owen, R. H. Trussell, V. L. Donald and Charles Naylor.

ORPHANAGE GIFTS TO BE RECEIVED

Methodist Churches To Take Special Collections For Ruston Institution

Following the plan followed for many years in the Louisiana annual Methodist conference, Easter Sunday has been set aside by action of the conference for the taking of collections in all Methodist churches throughout the state for the Methodist orphanage at Ruston.

"Harvest day" in October, and Easter Sunday are the only two days when funds are sought. The entire support of the institution therefore must be met through the generosity of the public on these days. It is stated that there is need that every Sunday school and every congregation in the Methodist church in Louisiana today contribute to this cause.

The plan, Rev. R. W. Vaughan, superintendent, stated, has been justified in the results achieved in years gone by. In this way every dollar contributed by the people goes into the work of the orphanage. Not a cent is used to pay salaries of solicitors or agents. For 25 years, right through the depression, this plan has been used successfully to carry on the work of the home.

Superintendent Vaughan stated that the emergency fund is practically exhausted, but the orphanage is still out of debt, and it is hoped with returning prosperity that the fund can be rehabilitated.

L. L. MATTHEWS NAMED POSTMASTER OF VIDALIA

FERRIDAY, La., March 27.—(Special)—L. L. Matthews, acting postmaster of the Vidalia postoffice, has been appointed postmaster of the office. He succeeded the late Postmaster D. V. Wigner as acting postmaster several months ago. He had served for several years as the assistant to the postmaster prior to the latter's death.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

BLIND FISH.—The fish in Echo river an the River Styx in the Mammoth cave of Kentucky are blind. They have lost their sight after millions of generations of life in complete darkness. There are two types—Chologaster Agaesia, with well-developed sightless eyes, and Amblyopsis Speleus, the most numerous, with greatly degenerate eyes. Both are colorless, with cartilege instead of bones, 3 or 4 inches long, and said to be viviparous.

WOODEN MONEY.—When Mr. Jeff McCord called on the job for his money for lumber dressing, the Goodwater Hardware company, not having a check, made a check out of this wood shingle for $36.75 and delivered same to Mr. McCord. Mr. McCord endorsed same and paid to the Alabama Power company, Mr. J. G. Willoughby, agent, for his electric bill. Mr. Willoughby deposited the check with his cash and other checks and the bank credited the Alabama Power company, and billed the Goodwater Hardware company, as if this check had been made on the regular bank form.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR TO ATTEND CHURCH

The annual Easter service of the Knights Templar will be held at the First Methodist church, today at 11 a.m. They will assemble at the Masonic temple at 10:15 a.m. and will don full uniforms preparatory to marching from the temple to the church.

The main part of the auditorium will be reserved for the knights, and the sermon will be preached by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Scott. The sermon will be appropriate to Easter and to Knights Templar. "Easter Dawn" will be the theme of the sermon.

NORMAL COMMENCEMENT SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

NATCHITOCHES, La., March 27.—(Special)—Announcement of a three-day commencement period embracing the annual baccalaureate sermon, the spring festival sponsored by the Fine Arts club, the dedication of the Governor Richard W. Leche library and graduation exercises at the Louisiana State Normal college here on May 23, 24 and 25, was made today by President Albert A. Fredericks.

Originally set for May 29, the annual graduation ceremonies were changed to accommodate two special features of the season this year, the fine arts program and the dedication of the new library recently constructed on the campus. The annual home-coming day will be held at the termination of the spring quarter on may 29.

LOUIS L. PETERS, PRESIDENT
M. M. WELSH, V.-PRES. & MGR.
PETERS
INDUSTRIAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., INC.
MONROE, LA.

TO THE PUBLIC:

We are pleased to announce to the General Public the formation of this Company, whose purpose is to issue Industrial Life Insurance and Funeral Benefits to its Policyholders at a very low rate.

This Company was formed because its officers feel that the mass of people are interested in getting adequate protection at a very small cost through an insuror licensed by law, authorized by the State to conduct an insurance business, regulated by the State and depositing a reserve with the State Treasurer in order to protect its policyholders so that they may be assured of its ability to perform its obligations.

This Company is organized as a Stock Company and should not be confused with a Co-operative, Assessment, or Mutual Company, as we have deposited with the Treasurer of the State of Louisiana, sufficient United States securities to protect amply every policy written by this Company.

We would be pleased to send our representative to your home to fully explain the details of this new policy, upon receipt of your letter or phone call. A prompt response will be given each inquiry.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) LOUIS L. PETERS, President

WANDERER SAYS HE KILLED MAN

Confesses Slaying Foe After Three-Day Quarrel 27 Years Ago

HOUSTON, Tex., March 27.—(AP)—A grizzled old man, a penniless wanderer for years, told officers today he shot a man in Kentucky 27 years ago and was ready to go back and face trial.

The 69-year-old, white-bearded man, who gave his name as Frank Gray, signed a statement saying he shot a farmer named Harper near Russellville, Ky., told his family of his act and "left that part of the country."

He made the statement to Homicide Captain George Peyton after making a verbal report to Captain George Mitchell of the city prison farm, where the aged man was held on a vagrancy charge.

The prisoner waived extradition and said he was ready to return to Kentucky with Sheriff J. Will Stewart of Russellville, who will arrive here tomorrow.

In talking with officers and newsmen, the prisoner said the shooting resulted from a three-day quarrel and claimed he shot in self-defense. He indicated, however, that he had not known whether Harper had died. He said he immediately left his family, a wife, two sons and a daughter.

"People all around saw the whole thing," he said. "I told my family what I'd done and left that part of the country. I haven't seen my family or heard from any of them since. I don't know whether they are living. I cut ties at Newport, Ark., awhile; then I moved around from place to place."

Police records here showed the prisoner escaped from a city farm at Omaha, Neb., several years ago after he was arrested on a minor charge.

SHERIFF LEAVES TO RETURN ACCUSED MAN

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., March 27.—(AP)—Sheriff J. Will Stewart of Logan county left today for Houston, Tex., to seek the return of a man booked by Houston police as Frank Gray, 67, for a slaying near here more than 20 years ago.

Police Homicide Captain George Peyton and Detective L. C. Deweese of Houston said Gray confessed killing a Logan county man named Harper.

The officers said a written statement was made by Gray after Captain George Mitchell of the Houston prison farm, where Gray was confined as a vagrant, overheard the man discussing a slaying with another inmate.

The statement attributed to Gray said, in part:

"I was farming five miles south of Russellville between 20 and 25 years ago. I had an argument with a man who lived across the road from me and I killed him with a .45 caliber pistol. I told my family what I'd done and left that part of the country."

Deputy Sheriff Reuben Kemp, in the absence of Sheriff Stewart, said the slaying occurred on the Morgantown road. He said Gray disappeared immediately afterward. The first trace of him was obtained last year, Kemp said, when he was arrested in Omaha, Neb.

"He escaped the city prison farm there, though, before we could bring him back," Kemp said.

The deputy said he could not recall the first name of the man Gray is alleged to have killed.

The English ministry of transport is attempting to get the "old crocks"—extremely dilapidated automobiles—off British roads. It is estimated 700,000 cars more than five years old are still in use.

It's hard to tell whether Mrs. Denny Shute, wife of the national P. G. A. champion, is delighted or horrified at what she's got there in her hand. It's a giant crawfish and she caught it off Key Largo, Fla. You might say that when it comes to fishing, she's a howling success.

the Eastern Star lodges and the merchants of Monroe and West Monroe, good weather alone is required to make the event of unusual interest.

Boys will be assigned to the part of the park that lies immediately north of the old street car tracks. The girls will have the area south of the tracks in which to hunt for eggs. Little tots, ages one to five years, will hunt in a space roped off immediately east of the legion home.

When prize eggs are found they are to be taken to the legion home. The prizes will be awarded by a group composed of members of the Order of the Eastern Star and Teflis Grotto.

The first prize for girls will be a diamond ring, donated by the R. and A. Jewelry company; the second prize for girls will be another diamond ring, presented by the Ray Jewelry company; the first prize for boys will be $5, donated by R. L. Phillips of Sterlington; the second prize for boys will also be $5, donated by the Buckhorn bar. The little tots' prize will be a huge Easter rabbit, donated by the Y's Men's club.

It is emphasized that the hunt is not for grown ups, and only those 15 years or under are allowed to participate. Parents are asked not to aid their children in their efforts.

During the afternoon, Teflis Grotto will furnish a musical program of band numbers.

Eggs were donated by merchants and were colored by members of Dixie and Louise McGuire chapter of the Order of Eastern Star.

Merchants of Monroe and West Monroe generously donated the 225 prizes that will be awarded. In West Monroe the committee engaged in securing prizes comprised Lloyd Warren, W. C. Fisher, Ford Hines and Fred Bennett. In Monroe a similar committee was headed by Captain H. E. Roberts and Bill Perhamus.

The eggs were donated from merchants at the solicitation of Henry C. Ray, Jr.

Members of Teflis Grotto are asked to report at the Temple on DeSiard street today at 1 p.m. They are requested to wear their fezzes.

NO COMPROMISE ON COURT SEEN

Ashurst Closes Door By Calling For Victory Or Defeat For Bill

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, debonair leader of the fight for the Roosevelt court reorganization bill, emphatically closed the road to compromise tonight.

At a time when the several opponents of the bill are advancing a number of compromise suggestions, generally as constitutional amendments, Ashurst declared none would be accepted.

Earlier opponents discussed a suggestion that they go to the White House in a body to see if the president cannot be persuaded to accept one or another of the alternative proposals.

But, said Ashurst, "the president should not and will not make any changes in his own plans." For himself, he added:

"Never shall it be said that I slipped through the meshes of a compromise. I am against compromise. I want a clean victory or a clean defeat."

The week-end brought, too, a concerted radio drive for the bill by the governors of four southern states. Governors Leche of Louisiana, Graves of Alabama, Rivers of Georgia and Johnston of South Carolina urged enactment of the bill as the simplest and best method of resolving the conflict between court decisions and administration desires.

It will be impossible, first of all, Ashurst said, for the opposition to propose in committee that a constitutional amendment be submitted for the president's bill. Rules of parliamentary procedure forbid, he added.

"The bill must first be voted up or down," he added, "then they are at liberty to bring up any constitutional amendment they desire. But there must first be hearings on them."

He predicted hearings, in weekend recess today, would be short lived.

"Along toward Saturday, April tenth, two weeks hence," he said, "I think the hearings will close. Of course with the understanding that if a senator wants a citizen to be heard, that citizen will be heard. But I think two more weeks will wind them up."

Although barring compromises, he disclaimed any intention of "ramming anything down anybody's throat. Ample time for thorough consideration will be given," he said.

"I court delay," he added. "Time is my invincible ally."

There will be more votes for the bill in May than in April, more in June than in May and more in July than in June.

"The bill is a wholesome reform. President Roosevelt will be remembered for it far above any other reform he has brought about. I am not afraid to have the searchlights played upon it for weeks.

"A man with time as his ally would have a leaky brain pan to hurry along a matter in which time is fighting for him all the time."

He grew oratorical.

"Why pick a fruit that is now slightly green, when in mid-summer it will be fully ripe," he said. "When the vote is finally taken, it will be as though we are on a ship sailing majestically into port. So why should we jump overboard and try to swim ashore now."

Opposition leaders said tonight they had many witnesses yet to be presented. It would take a month at least, they thought.

In the high court's marble temple, the administration filed a brief asking for a speedy ruling on constitutionality of the federal social security act. Solicitor General Stanley Reed requested a review of a case filed by the Charles C. Steward company of Alabama in an effort to recover $46 paid as unemployment insurance taxes.

This increased the probability that a final decision on two administration laws will be forthcoming before the justices adjourn for the summer early in June.

A verdict on the Wagner relations act, which guarantees collective bargaining to workmen, may be delivered Monday.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH ANNOUNCES SERVICES

Easter services at the First Christian church at the corner of Oak and St. John streets, were announced by the pastor, Rev. Crayton S. Brooks, as follows:

At 9:45 a.m. the church school begins. Before that hour every teacher should be present. A great anniversary. It is a season for decision, for evangelism, for confession of faith. It is the time to line up with the church. Sermon at 10:50 a.m. "If Christ Be Not Risen, What?" Anthem. Communion service, closing at high noon. Two live Christian Endeavor groups meet at 6:30 p.m. Special Easter program at 7:30. Anthem. Short address, "Assurance of Life" (John 14:19). Board meeting Monday night. Bible study Wednesday night.

Tullos

The Tullos Methodist Missionary society met at the church for the regular mission study class. The meeting was opened by singing "Sweet Peace the Gift of God's Love," followed by scripture reading and prayer by Mrs. E. R. Brewer. Mrs. H. V. Dunford then taught the third chapter of the mission book, "Out of Africa."

Those present were Mrs. H. H. Russell, Mrs. C. E. Coleman, Mrs. H. B. Murphy, E. R. Brewer, Mrs. E. O. Brown, Fern Benson and Mrs. E. W. Day and Mrs. H. V. Dunford of Rochelle.

The R. A.'s met at the church for the monthly missionary meeting. The session was called to order by the president, Lensford Bass, after which the roll was called by the secretary, Junior Bass. Those taking part on the program were Junior Bass, Lensford Bass and Billy Norris. Others present were L. O. Richmond, Richard Smith, J. H. Ivy, Bobby Tyler, Elvie Long and the councellor Mrs. I. G. LeBaron.

The Baptist W. M. U. met at the church for the monthly missionary meeting. The meeting was opened by singing "Bringing in the Sheaves" after which the Bible study was given by Mrs. I. G. LeBaron. An inspiring program on "Witnessing for Jesus" was rendered. Those taking part on the program were Mrs. J. N. Waddell, Mrs. A. J. Juan, Mrs. E. A. Autrey, Mrs. D. E. Allbritton, and Mrs. Sam David. The mission study chairman, Mrs. Sam David, awarded cards and seals for the book "Follow Me" recently studied by the W. M. S. There were 25 members present.

FUTURE FARMERS, HOME MAKERS MEET

BERNICE, La., March 27.—(Special)—A joint meeting of the Future Farmers of America and the Junior Home Makers of the Bernice High school, was held at the school auditorium, at which members of both organizations entertained their fathers and mothers.

Thomas Flurry delivered an address of welcome and the response was made by A. C. Moore. The subject discussed at the meeting was "Agriculture, Home Economics and Their Relation to the Home and School." Those on the program included Miss Nelson, home demonstration agent for Lincoln parish; S. D. Reech, agricultural agent for Union parish; J. A. Ferguson, W. H. Hamberlin, Mrs. Guy McDonald, home economics teacher; Professor M. A. Price, W. H. Harris, Morelle Elliott, Lorene Copelan. Two choruses, directed by Miss Hilda Fuller, Union parish school supervisor, were rendered by the Glee club. Other music was furnished by the F. F. A. Glee club. Miss Evelyn McGee was in charge of the program. A plate lunch was served to more than a hundred guests after the meeting.

YALE FORESTRY STUDENTS STATIONED NEAR URANIA

JENA, La., March 27.—(Special)—Accompanied by Professors H. H. Chapman and R. C. Bryant, 14 Yale senior students of forestry are located near Urania for a 10-week stay. The students are in their own camp and have their own reforestation project area, both of which were donated by the late Henry E. Hardtner.

Every year for 20 years, the students have come to Urania to study the growth and care of pine trees in one of the largest reforestation projects in the United States. The students will get the classroom credit for their outdoor studies.

FARMERS GET CHECKS

DODSON, La., March 27.—(Special)—Approximately 225 Winn parish farmers have received checks from the seed loan office this season and about the same number are expected to apply for loans before the end of the season, according to Thomas Fost, Winn parish representative of the seed loan office.

ZIMBALIST GIVEN ARDENT TRIBUTE

Music Critic Of New York Sun Tells Of Artist, Here Tuesday Night

A tribute to the art of Efrem Zimbalist, who appears at the Parish High school auditorium Tuesday night under auspices of the Monroe Civic Music association, comes from that distinguished dean of American music critics, William Henderson of the New York Sun:

"Efrem Zimbalist is least of all things a fiddler. Above all things he is an artist of singular and self-effacing devotion to lofty ideals. He seems to love music better than he loves himself. When he believes in a composition he plays it again and again in the fond hope that he may eventually overcome the inertia of the public and move it in the direction of the altars of true art. He might possibly have gained for himself a larger amount of space in the daily prints had he utilized the modern power of ballyhoo. But those who have watched his career are well aware that he would shrink with aversion from such a method of celebration. He remains content with the deep respect and sincere affection of all those who reverence art as he does.

"The concert was memorable. Mr. Zimbalists's playing of the concerto was far and away the leading violin performance of this season and one of the greatest of any recent season. It was calm and unpretentious conquest of formidrble technical difficulties. It was a stream of lucent, rich, enveloping tone. And it was a reading which searched the secrets of the work and published them with authority as well as eloquence. It was a performance in which supreme musicianship went hand in hand with a noble dignity. It was a triumphant demonstration of the power of a patrician elegance of style to give adequate utterance to ideas of bold and aggressive virility. The audience awarded the artist many salvos of applause. The members of the orchestra, who well knew what he had been doing, applauded him long and warmly."

VIOLINIST HERE TUESDAY NIGHT

Efrem Zimbalist, one of the world's greatest violinists, who appears at the Ouachita Parish High school auditorium Tuesday night under auspices of the Monroe Civic Music association.

WEIL CLEANERS TO HANDLE FURS

Cold Storage Vault Capable Of Holding 900 Garments Installed

A cold storage vault capable of storing 900 fur garments has been installed by Weil Cleaners, Inc., at the plant on North Second street, and is said to be one of the finest of its kind in this part of the state. The company has also installed a fur drum, a piece of equipment made exclusively for the cleaning of fur garments, and claimed by furriers to be the only safe way in which furs may be properly cleaned.

The new cold storage vault for the storage of furs is enclosed in reinforced concrete, brick and steel, and is absolutely fireproof, according to D. B. Weil, president of the company. All furs and other garments stored in the vault are also protected by insurance against fire, theft, explosion, collison, flood and other mishaps.

"Our modern cold storage vault was installed because Weil Cleaners, Inc., believes in providing the best for its customers," Mr. Weil declared Saturday. "Before signing the contract for the work I made a careful survey of other cold storage fur plants in this section and decided on the one now completed as being the most efficient. It provides ample storage facilities for 900 fur garments and the plant is also equipped to properly store any other type of garment," Mr. Weil said.

13 RECRUITS JOIN ARMY DURING WEEK

During the past week 13 applicants were accepted for enlistment in the United States army by Sergeant Bruce Grantham, recruiting agent in the charge of the local recruiting office.

Leroy Johnson, Charlie M. Holland, Casey F. Burge, Berry Ball, all of Bastrop, and Robert L. Schneider, 401 K street, Monroe, were sent to the Panama canal zone. Gove H. Sandifer of Mangham, Garland Parker of Rayville, Wesley L. McCarver of Wallace Ridge, James D. Sharp of Jonesville, Otis C. Turner of Marion, Talmadge M. Payne of Winnsboro, James W. Guice of Jackson, Miss., and William M. Oxley, 507 South Third street, Monroe, were all accepted for the air corps and sent to Barksdale field, where they will be stationed for three years.

Other applicants desiring enlistment in the army may obtain information from the local recruiting office, 134 South Grand street.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY RETURNED IN LASALLE

JENA, La., March 27.—(Special)—After investigating 25 cases for the spring term of district court, the LaSalle parish grand jury returned a report of nine true bills, nine no true bills and seven cases lacking sufficient evidence.

Members of the jury were Dallas H. Brooks, Pleas Finley, I. B. Tarver, Joe Husbands, T. M. Francis, E. L. Tarver, Tommie Griffin, J. F. McCartney, A. W. Chevallier, S. H. Kees, R. L. Holliday and Steel Richardson.

MACHINE SHOP RAZED BY FIRE AT TULLOS

TULLOS, La., March 27.—(Special)—Fire believed to have originated from a short circuit in an electric welding machine completely destroyed the machine shop owned by the Placid Oil company at Tullos. The shop was located at the rear of the Placid warehouse. The loss was estimated at about $3,000.

The fire was discovered about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday afternoon and valiant efforts of volunteer firemen who battled the flames with a bucket line and fire extinguishers failed to save the building or its contents. The flames spread rapidly, destroying much valuable machinery, including a lathe and an electric welding machine. When the flames reached some barrels of oil which were stored in the building, efforts to extinguish the flames were futile. According to Superintendent T. M. Rabb, the machine shop will be rebuilt on the same site in the near future.

UNUSUALLY FINE VETCH CROP REPORTED RAISED BY RUSTON AREA FARMER

RUSTON, La., March 27.—(Special)—One of the finest, if not the very finest vetch crop within or without the Cypress creek watershed area, is a 10-acre patch on the farm of E. H. Causey, according to A. A. Breeden, project manager of the soil conservation service.

This winter cover crop was planted in October, 1936, after the completion of the cotton season. The plants enjoyed a good stand which permitted a substantial root system to develop before freezing weather.

"It has been a temptation to me to graze my cattle on this fine legume crop of mine, but I heeded the advice of the soil conservation agronomist and kept my cattle out," said Mr. Causey, in commenting on his unusually fine cover crop.

"Last fall was the first time I planted vetch, or any other cover crop, consequently it is a new experience to me. I feel that my acres were better protected against washing this winter and spring than ever before, and this important factor alone makes the crop worth while. When I turn the vetch under, which will be between the 10th and 15th of April, I intend to let it stay under the ground for at least two weeks before I follow it with cotton. I have been told that a winter legume crop such as vetch will also improve the fertility of the soil and I will find out when my cotton comes up," continued Mr. Causey.

Mr. Causey also stated that he fully intends to follow the cotton crop on the 10-acre patch with another winter cover crop of vetch. He hopes to have an even better stand in the spring of 1938.

WIN ESSAY HONORS

JENA, La., March 27.—(Special)—Three eighth grade students wrote prize-winning essays on "How Can Agriculture Be Best Improved in LaSalle Parish," according to J. J. Mixon, sponsor of the contest and agriculture teacher of Jena High school. Jack Lee won first place; Lamar Flaherty, second, and Alexander Russell, third. The contest, which was sponsored to create interest in improved methods of farming in LaSalle parish, was participated in by over 100 agriculture students of Jena High school.

Follow this Practical Guide to Better Control of Colds

1. To Help PREVENT Many Colds

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

At the first warning sneeze or sniffle or the slightest irritation in the nose—quick!—put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. This specialized medication is expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in their early stages.

2. To RELIEVE a Cold Sooner

VICKS VAPORUB

Of course, some colds strike without warning, or get by even the best precautions. Then you need your dependable Vicks VapoRub. Go straight to bed and massage it briskly on the throat, chest, and back for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer of VapoRub over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Long after you relax into restful sleep, VapoRub's famous poultice-and-vapor action continues hour after hour—loosening phlegm, easing your cough, relieving irritation, helping to break up local congestion.

Sickness from Colds Cut In Half!

The two simple steps outlined above, together with a few sensible health rules to build up and maintain resistance, are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. In the biggest colds-clinic ever held—with 17,353 people as subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds. It cut sickness from colds more than half!

MEXICO APPEAL

non-controversial in tone, followed upon others excoriating Communism and assailing what the pontiff called anti-Christian activities of the German Nazis.

Dated "the feast of the pascal solemnity, Sunday, March 28," the pope's apostolic letter said in part:

"* * * All must strive to promote the application of the principles of justice and charity—in order to assure to all at least that minimum of this world's goods which is indispensable for the safeguarding of human dignity and to eliminate abuses at the same time guarding against violent changes which only would cause harm instead of good."

The official English abstract of the encyclical, issued by the Vatican, said in part:

"Although his heart is greatly saddened by the condition of the afflicted church in Mexico, the holy father expressed his consolation at the affection shown by the hierarchy and clergy and the constancy manifested by Mexican Catholics under circumstances in which the open profession of one's faith can require really heroic conduct. * * *"

In a land where the long-time closing of churches, restriction of the number of priests, and more lately, a program of socialistic education has given Catholics deep concern, the pontiff urged the continual improvement of education in seminaries and added:

"An integral Christian eductaion and formation is required for success of all other activities if Catholics are to contribute to the prosperity of the nation. Such a formation is the strongest, surest defense of religious liberty.

"If we all strive together to live according to the dictates of their Christian faith, even at the close of sacrifice on the part of individuals, it cannot help but contribute also to the public welfare. * * *"

Bestowing "high praise on the American bishops who have come to the aid of their brothers in the Mexican hierarchy by providing for the erection of seminaries for Mexican students in the United States," the encyclical abstract added:

"His holiness concludes the letter by urging all to obey the directions given by the Holy See and the bishops. He appeals to the supreme commandment of love, inciting all to set aside personal differences in order that they may understand the necessity of forming but one body and one spirit."

Today, the Easter pilgrims and hundreds of tourists heard the bells of hundreds of churches—silent since Holy Thursday—ring forth in honor of the "Gloria in Excelsis"—an anthem sung within cathedrals and churches to prepare the faithful for celebration of Christ's resurrection.

In one of the picturesque ceremonies marking the end of the 40-day Lenten period, Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli struck sparks from flint and steel to light the "new fire" of St. Peter's basilica, symbolizing the advent of the resurrection.

Paschal candles were lighted in all churches, altars draped in sombre black and purple were re-decorated with their white and gold ornaments.

Hundreds of new priests were ordained throughout Italy as a part of joyful Holy Saturday ceremonies.

the last fortnight. On March 13 the British freighter Silverlarch, afire for several days, turned her eight passengers adrift in lifeboats 400 miles northeast of Honolulu as the U. S. S. Louisville raced to the rescue. The passengers were picked up by the cruiser. The freighter crept into Honolulu where the blaze was put out.

The motorship Fijian sank yesterday in equatorial waters off Aurh island in the Marshall group as the result of a gasoline explosion and resultant fire in her hold. The crew of 30 was saved.

Fire broke out in cargo of the motorship Penrith Castle as she docked in Manila today from New York. No one was hurt.

ORLEANS RECEIVES GELDERT'S MESSAGE

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—E. A. Jimison, marine department manager of the Lykes Brothers Ripley Steamship company, Inc., here late today received a relayed message from Captain W. M. Geldert, master of the disabled freighter Volunteer, 840 miles southeast of Yokohama, Japan, reading:

"Expect Fresno City reach me 12 p.m. March 28 (about 10 p.m. Central standard time). Twelve feet of water in number one hold. Unable to control."

CLAIBORNE WELL

Casing pressure was reported at 400 pounds.

About 12 feet of saturated formation was reported cored and casing was set about two weeks ago. About two per cent wash water and two per cent drill mud was reported with the fluid but operators pointed out that it would be some days before the well cleaned itself.

The new Lisbon area is the first operation in the prospecting of deep formations in northeast Louisiana during the last two years to develop oil production. Recent operations on the Simmsboro; Bear Creek, Cotton Valley and Sibley structures to date have developed huge gassers with high gasoline content but no oil production.

The crew which drilled in the Patton No. 1 well is composed of Monroe men and drives to and from work every night. They reported the new well definitely established the area as a new oil field.

to be given at the bottom, when the government money was paid in sums of $20 and $30 a month to the poor citizen, that the constitution became affected.

"When the economic royalty was pried loose from the receiving end it was then only that the great principles of our forefathers became involved and the constitution became endangered."

He said the "old order" preached that the supreme court is the "guardian of your liberties."

"Yet," he continued, "did you ever stop to consider that the watchman stationed at your door for your protection has but to turn about to become your jailer?

"We have today a government two-thirds New Deal and one-third reactionary, and perhaps that is the reason why we find today two-thirds of our people in comfortable circumstances and the other third ill-housed, half-clothed and under-fed."

YES, SIR! SHE IS SOME COW!

Yes, indeed, this is some cow! And she will be exhibited at Louisiana Tech on April 6 in connection with the annual convention of the Louisiana Jersey Cattle club at Ruston. Sultane's Magnolia Belle 665741, as she is listed in the bovine register, won the American Jersey Cattle club president's trophy last year, with a record of 1,043 pounds of butterfat in 365 days. The average Louisiana cow produces about 200 pounds of butterfat in a year, it is said. The champion Jersey belongs to the Arkansas A. and M. college at Magnolia, and will be brought from there to Tech for exhibition.

will close a two-week revival series with the two services today. The morning sermon, by Rev. J. M. Alford, will be suited to the occasion and at the evening service he will preach on "Moses' Choice."

Trinity Lutheran church, Rev. V. C. Grosse, pastor, will have special Easter services at regular preaching hours.

The men's and women's Bible classes of the First Presbyterian church will meet in joint session in the Paramount theater at 9:45 a. m. There will be special music rendered. At 10:30 a. m. in the Sunday school room of the church, new members will be received. There will be infant baptisms. "The Victorious Christ" will be the theme at the morning service while "The Man Who Overcame Handicaps" will be the evening service theme by Rev. E. D. Holloway, pastor.

The Nazarene church, of which Rev. G. M. Akin is pastor, will have special services. "The Resurrection" will be the subject of Rev. Jack Frost, evangelist, at the morning service.

St. Matthew's Catholic church will have masses at 6:30, 8 and 9:30 a. m. At the last named hour, St. Cecelia's high mass will be sung. Rev. M. F. Walsh, assistant pastor, will preach the Easter sermon.

The Sunday school department of the First Christian church will present an Easter service of song tonight at 7:30 o'clock. There will be a short talk by the pastor, Rev. Crayton S. Brooks.

All other churches of Monroe and West Monroe will observe the day in appropriate manner and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to unite in worship at the various places.

CHILLY EASTER WEATHER FORECAST

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—A bright but chilly Easter will greet the marchers of Dixie in tomorrow's outdoor parade.

Generally fair to partly cloudy weather was forecast for the annual Easter parade but it was predicted that the northern half of Dixie would shiver and it would be cold enough for wraps.

That pent up feminine spirit which awakens with the end of Lent scorned the idea of having to encase her fussy lace collar and vari-colored prints in furs, but she will be out just the same in the hope that the weather man was wrong after all.

Church-goers in general, sunrise celebrators and the throngs who display their new finery on the avenue were planning a sumptuous display.

New Orleans residents, emerging from forty days of Lent and penitence for the sins of the wild Mardi Gras season, were particularly active in plans for a gay Easter celebration mingled with deep religious fervor.

The peal of cathedral chimes will signal the joy of church folk over the resurrection of the Christ, while in the afternoon thousands were expected to lend a sporting flavor by attending the running of the Louisiana Derby, richest stake of the winter racing season at the Fair Grounds here.

Easter Sunday commemorated the 225th anniversary of the celebration of the first mass in the lower Mississippi valley, 30 miles south of Natchez, while LaSalle, the explorer, was voyaging down the Mississippi river.

Miami, Lake Wales, Fla., Memphis, Chattanooga, New Orleans, Hot Springs, Ark., and other cities were holding runrise religious services and pageants.

More than 20,000 persons were to assemble on the sands at Miami Beach for their annual observance of Easter and loud speakers were to carry the ceremonies to innumerable beach parties.

Hot Springs stages its annual sunrise pageant in the national park with an elaborate religious festival featuring a vested choir and cast of more than 10 voices.

Memphis and Little Rock had their annual Easter egg festivals in which thousands of eager children chased the bunny rabbit.

The celebration in the Atlantic coast states centered in the famous Moravian Easter sunrise service at Winston-Salem, N. C., which has been celebrated for 167 years in front of "God's Acre," or the home Moravian church.

In Memphis' Beale street, the flower of negro society in the south, the rainbow was expected to shine in all its brilliance because money has come in from a good cotton season.

There the tuxedo and the smart evening gown were expected to vie with a snapping on of spats and derbies.

RESURRECTION OF CHRIST CELEBRATED

JERUSALEM, March 27.—(AP)—Colorful processions and singing of Easter hymns marked celebration today of the supreme miracle of Christian faith—resurrection of Christ—at the place held by millions to have been its actual scene more than nineteen centuries ago.

Wearing a red cassock and red biretta, the Latin patriarch arrived at the vast old Church of the Holy Sepulchre just after sunrise.

Dark since Good Friday in sign of mourning, the glow of scores of lamps and candles lighted from "new fire" struck with stone and steel flooded the church.

Throngs of worshippers, men and women of nearly every race and many from distant lands, stood in reverent silence as the patriarch blessed the fire flickering over the charcoal in a brazen bowl. It signifies the light of Christ's message entering the world.

The patriarch then donned an ermine cloak with a train of red silk.

To a Te Deum sung by brown-robed Franciscan Friars and black-cassocked Canons of the Holy Sepulchre, the patriarch led a solemn procession to the tomb reverenced as that in which the body of Christ was placed after the crucifixion on nearby Golgatha.

A deacon, wearing gorgeous cloth of gold, blessed the paschal candle while chanting in Latin, "The angelic choirs of heaven rejoice."

The 12 prophecies were read by the deacon. The patriarch blessed the baptismal font. A long litany of saints followed.

At the consecration of the mass all the bells of the church began to ring.

Flags which had been at half-mast over consulates and other buildings throughout the city as a symbol of mourning were raised to full staff.

HUNDREDS SLAIN

Cordoba province about 150 miles south of Madrid, is the key to the rich mercury mines of Almaden, the product of which is used in making shells. The insurgents are intent on taking the mines; the government is equally determined to keep them. The insurgents are reported by government sources to include 10,000 Italians).

General Jose Miaja, the government commander who has sent his men in hard attacks at the enemy since he took complete charge in central Spain recently, had a new, column moving westward toward Airla, which is some 50 miles west of Madrid.

That force reached a point near Navalperal de Pinares, 15 miles east of Avila, and shelled the town throughout the morning.

Madrid's populace was thrown into a momentary flurry at noon when one shell crashed into a building on the Grand via, the principal thoroughfare.

It sent debris falling to the street but failed to cool the gayety of the militiamen home from the front for Easter. General Miaja took advantage of the comparative quiet in Madrid to go to the dentist.

Madrid's soldiers and populace were confident the tide of war had turned. For months the insurgents have lain at the very gates of Madrid without taking the city—and finally government troops have begun to win victories.

Thus the Easter week-end became one of near gaiety.

SUSPECT CAPTURED

SHREVEPORT, La., March 27.—(AP)—William Deitecker, 43, wanted at Tampa, Fla., in connection with the $125,000 robbery of the Jefferson Security and Loan company there two years ago, was in custody of Shreveport police tonight. He will be returned to Tampa today by Chief of Detectives W. H. Bush of Tampa, who arrived here Saturday noon to take custody of the man.

RUNYON

MSS., from lingering in the sanctum more than half a minute.

WHEN WE STARTED in on our first pack of "Old Judges," cigaret smokers were referred to as "cigaret fiends." The smoking of cigarets was held a vice closely allied to downright sin.

No one could then foresee that the cigaret would one day be big news on the radio, or that the time would come when a fellow would have to be mighty cute about hiding his cigarets from mother, and the girls.

The chap who smoked cigarets in our "Old Judge" day was viewed with suspicion. We regret to say we grew up under suspicion. Cigarets were called "coffin tacks" back in the period when you got pictures of actresses and baseball players with each pack.

It was said that every cigaret you smoked was another tack in your own coffin. On that basis, we fear our coffin would sink the Normandie.

FOR A LONG TIME we "rolled our own," as the saying was, when that form of cigaret smoking was extremely fashionable. We always change our cigaret smoking to conform to the fashion.

We acquired great dexterity in bundling a bit of granulated tobacco up into a cube of brown paper, after the manner of the old time western cow prodders. But we never became as skillful at this as the late Bill McGeehan, the sports writer.

To the day of his death, Bill never smoked any other kind of cigaret, and he would roll one after the other, with prodigal disregard for the tobacco. In fact, he would spill as much as he got in the cigaret.

We recall being on a hunting trip with Bill one time down in Georgia, and he lost his way in a swamp, but it was easy to trace him by the fragments of tobacco scattered along his trail.

WE DOUBT that our cigaret smoking has contributed anything to our health. They used to tell us that it would stunt our growth, and perhaps it did. Perhaps if we never had smoked, we might be 11 feet high, and would be making a good living picking coconuts in season.

Every time a doctor looks us over, he says that what ails us is cigaret smoking. Then we explain to him that it is the last of our few, simple little pleasures in this life, and the doctor says he understands how it is, and joins us in a cigaret, and says he does not have much fun any more, either.

We do not know just exactly what proportion of the new all-time record for cigaret production we are entitled to claim credit for. We judge, however, from the beefs around our house that it must be plenty.

We hear much talk of ashes on the rugs, and of people's carelessness in discarding cigaret butts, but we ask you, can a fellow pause to think of trifles when he is making a dash for a new record?

THE EVANS SLANT

Some baseball men believe the presence of a local boy on the home town club helps the gate. Others, who consider the future of the player more important, are convinced that the local hero should play elsewhere when he tackles pro ball. Billy Evans, former umpire and presently looking after the minor league connections of the Boston Red Sox, strings along with the latter school of thought.

Evans, in Little Rock directing a big Red Sox school of rookies, said as much in an interview in the Arkansas Gazette the other day. Billy believes too much is expected of a local boy and for that reason he is the target for criticism that otherwise would not be forthcoming.

Evans cited examples where home town boys who flopped in their native cities because of pressure from "friends" turned in a commendable brand after being transferred.

There's no denying that the pressure on the local product is terrific and it takes a tough-skinned athlete to take the razzing that's bound to come and still maintain his equilibrium on the diamond.

SHORT TAKES

William "Dutch" Fehring, who made many friends here and at Ruston on his two trips south with the Purdue baseball squad, is head baseball mentor at the Boilermaker institution now. "Dutch" recently succeeded Ward "Piggy" Lambert, who will devote his entire attention to basketball in the future. Fehring and his Boilermakers will invade Ruston Tuesday for a four-game series with Eddie McLane's Tech nine.

Walter Morris, the three-league prexy, made two unique records in the Texas league, one of which stood up for 35 years. Back in 1901, Walter handled 17 chances without an error. The next day he handled 11 chances and booted every one of 'em. Last year his 17 errorless chances record was tied. So far, no other shortstop has been able to boot 11 chances in one afternoon.

Eddie McLane brought over some swell guys last week. Monday night Fred Parker, Illinois Wesleyan baseball coach; Fred Young, famous football official who also handles sports on the Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph, and Bill Millard, sports editor of the Decatur Democrat, were in the party. Wednesday night Otto Vogel, the old big leaguer who's tutoring the Iowa baseball squad, and Dr. Bill Haynes, club physician, were Eddie's guests.

Vogel's visit was especially enjoyable. We dug up some mutual acquaintances around Chicago 'way back in 1921, and the do-you-remember session lasted well into the night.

Phil Lisotta told us last night that he was trying to book Oscar Matthews, the big Tallulah heavyweight, and Battling Monroe, the stinger from New Orleans, for a return match at the stadium. If he does, don't miss it. Their first meeting a couple of months ago was a pippin.

Monroe fans who go to Vicksburg today are elated over the fact that the Giants and Indians got that 10-9 affair out of their systems yesterday.

Charley Root, gnarled Cub mound artist, is feeling old age creeping up. Charley uses a foot stool when he eats.

Jimmy Dykes, boss of the Chisox, didn't do so well at Santa Anita this season. Jimmy recently told his friends: "I own at least three nags."

Frank Kennedy, staunchest of Cardinal fans in these parts, has climbed on the bandwagon again. "With Dizzy and Warneke in there, they can't miss," is the way Frank has it figured out.

The press box at Casino park will be built on the roof. A certain radio commentator is warned in advance. It takes pretty steady footing to get up there, and it's dizzy enough from those heights without anything that'll make you dizzier.

Speaking of radio, the Columbia Broadcasting system has asked permission for exclusive broadcasting rights to Miami's Orange Bowl game for the next five years. In view of the recent Southeastern conference ruling, Columbia may wish it hadn't.

The New York Giants had 95 trunks and golf bags in addition to at least one suit case apiece for each player when they left Havana for their exhibition tour through the south.

Bucky Harris expects a pair of rookies, Pitcher Dick Lanahan and Outfielder Freddie Sington, to "make or break" the Washington club.

Bill Terry swears he'll retire as an active player on April 19. And after

L. S. U. TRACKMEN COP S. L. I. MEET

Ten Tiger Cinder Stars Win Events; Rice Also Makes Good Showing

LAFAYETTE, La., March 27.—(AP)—Louisiana State university's 10 track men carried off honors in the eleventh annual running of the Southwestern Relay carnival today by placing first in the medley relay, discus, medley relay for freshmen, two-mile relay, high jump and mile relay for freshmen.

Rice university of Houston, Tex., took high honors in the record breaking field. Patterson cleared the high hurdles in 14.6 seconds, besting the meet record of 15 seconds set by Fisher of L. S. U. in 1934 and tied by Smith of Tulane in 1935. The record was not allowed, however, because of a stiff wind back of the runners.

In the 880-yard relay, the Rice team, composed of Ellington, Steakley, Sanders and Moser, established a new meet record of 1 minute, 28 seconds, beating the former time of 1 minute, 29.6 seconds set by L. S. U. in 1935. In the 440-yard relay, the Rice team again repeated their record breaking performance by stepping the distance in 41.7 seconds. The old record was set by Tulane in 1935 at 42.9 seconds.

L. S. U. took its share in breaking records when they bested their own time in the medley relay for college freshmen at 3 minutes, 40.2 seconds. Their old record of 3 minutes, 40.8 was set in 1934.

In the 100-yard dash, Warren of Stephen F. Austin stepped the distance in 9.8 seconds, bettering the time of Neugass, of Tulane, who stepped the distance in 9.9 in 1935. The record was not allowed, however, due to advantageous winds at the back of the runner.

In the high school division no new records were set but fast time was recorded in all events.

A strong wind from the northwest slowed down many events which probably would have broken records. In the pole vault, Weichart of Rice university tried for a record, but was unable to clear the pole at 13 feet, 6 inches.

TECH NINE MEETS CARLETON MONDAY

Two Games With Illinois College Cancelled Because Of Cold Weather

RUSTON, La., March 27.—(Special)—Weather tore up the playhouse of Coach Eddie McLane of Louisiana Tech, who scheduled 12 baseball games in 13 days to open the Bulldogs' season of 32 engagements.

Friday's contest with Illinois college of Jacksonville, Ill., booked for Ruston, was postponed because of rain. An effort was made Saturday morning to dry the infield in preparation for playing a double-header Saturday afternoon with the Illinois Blue Boys, but the task was finally given up and both games cancelled.

The Jacksonville men worked out on the Tech field Saturday afternoon and plan to leave here Sunday morning for Mississippi to play a two-game series with Mississippi college at Vicksburg, Miss.

With weather permitting, the Techmen will meet Carleton college of Northfield, Minn., here Monday and Tuesday afternoons, after which games with Purdue university will finish out the week.

The Minnesotans, who "have just taken off their snow shoes before coming south," have been denied the opportunity for outdoor practice but have been drilling for several weeks in a field house, it is said. There was the same story about the University of Iowa baseball players, who swamped the local college nine here Wednesday and Thursday.

Coach McLane said Saturday that "Lefty" Hinton would probably pitch in opening the series wtih Carleton here Monday. He also is thinking about switching Billy Mitchell from third to first and Aloys Adkins from first to third, he said.

Though winning two games from Illinois Wesleyan university here last Monday and Tuesday, costly errors largely resulted in the Techmen's double loss to the University of Iowa.

SPITBALL BACK IN MAJORS

Burleigh Grimes, new boss of the Brooklyns, instructs his pitchers from his own experience as a major league flinger. He says he'll use his outlawed spitter in batting practice—if the Dodgers can hit that, they're good!

PREP TRACK ACES IN NORMAL MEET

Ouachita High Squad Among Entries In Annual Relays At Natchitoches

NATCHITOCHES, La., March 27.—(Special)—Crack prep school athletes from leading secondary school circles of the state will parade their wares on the cinder path and the athletic field at the Louisiana State Normal college here next Saturday when the state teachers' college holds it second relay carnival for high school trackmen.

Although no official entries have been mailed Coach Harry Turpin to date, he has received numerous inquiries concerning the carnival events and an assurance that the entry list will be much larger than it was last year when 18 schools entered 200 athletes.

With no preliminaries to be staged in any of the events, the meet will get under way promptly at 2 p. m., Coach Turpin stated. All track events will be run for time so as to prevent too much strain on competitors. Both class A and B schools will compete on an equal basis.

The following events will be run off in order: Shuttle basketball relay, high jump, shot put, four men to each team; 70-yard high hurdles, five hurdles; 440-yard relay, running broad jump, discus, 120-yard low hurdles, five hurdles; pole vault, 100-yard dash; hop, step and jump; and 880-yard relay.

A feature of the one-day meet will be an exhibition of the 880 and 440-yard and mile relays between the State Normal college varsity and frosh trackmen.

Workmen have been repairing the track at the state teachers' college for the last two weeks, and authorities of the meet stated today that if ideal weather conditions prevail the track will be in perfect condition and fast for the prep school athletes Saturday.

Handsome trophies will be awarded winning teams in the various events of the meet.

Among the schools expected to enter their athletes here Saturday are Baton Rouge, C. E. Byrd of Shreveport, Bolton of Alexandria, Haynesville, Ouachita of Monroe, Coushatta, Rayville, Summerfield, Cypress, Marthaville, and Columbia.

NASHVILLE BOY WINS SOUTHERN NET MEET

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—Joe Davis of Montgomery-Bell academy of Nashville, Tenn., won the second annual Southern interscholastic tennis tournament today by defeating Louis Faquin of Christian Brothers academy of Memphis, Tenn., 6-0, 6-2.

Davis, seeded third, advanced to the finals by defeating Billy McGehee of Fortier, New Orleans, second seeded player, in the semi-final round early Saturday afternoon. Davis won by 6-1, 2-6, 6-2.

Faquin, who was seeded first in the tournament and thereby was favored to win, conquered Leonard French of Central High, Memphis, in the other semi-final, 4-6, 7-5, 6-0.

Faquin had to make a strong uphill fight to beat French, winning the match after losing the first set and trailing 4-2 in the second set.

Davis surprised with such an easy victory over Faquin in the final match. He had more trouble downing the local star, McGehee.

Faquin was runner-up in the singles last year.

Living up to the top-seeded position given them because of their excellent showing in past tournaments, Joe Davis and John Kyden, Montgomery-Bell academy, Nashville, advanced to the finals in the doubles Saturday morning when they defeated Memphis' Christian Brothers' college team composed of Louis Faquin and John Walsh.

The match was the most interesting of the tourney thus far. The scores were 6-1, 6-1, 6-3.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

REDS

TAMPA, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—A training camp holiday brought the Cincinnati Reds their first 1937 casualty today.

Al Hollingsworth, star left-handed pitcher, suffered severe injuries to his right arm when his automobile was struck by another car. Rain had caused cancellation of the scheduled exhibition contest with the Philadelphia Nationals. Trainer R. J. Rhode reported that no bones were broken in Hollingsworth's arm and an X-ray examination confirmed his finding.

ATHLETICS

MEXICO CITY, March 27.—(AP)—The Mexican All-Stars failed to appear for the scheduled exhibition game with the Philadelphia Athletics today. The Macks engaged in a two hour batting drill. They will play the All-Stars tomorrow and then break camp at night.

PHILLIES

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Postponement of the Phillies-Cincinnati Reds game at Tampa today did not mean a holiday for the Phillies. Manager Wilson sent the athletes through a two hour session after the weather cleared. Tomorrow the Wilsonmen go to Sebring, Fla., to play Newark.

DUCOTE TO BE BURIED TODAY

Honor Guard Of Loyola Lettermen To Accompany Body To Cottonport

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—Back to the little town of Cottonport, La., where he was born 39 years ago will go tomorrow the body of Richard J. Ducote, for 20 years a prominent figure in southern athletics.

The late director of athletics of Loyola university and former Auburn football hero succumbed yesterday after a prolonged illness.

Last rites will be held at the Church of the Holy Name in New Orleans on Easter Sunday.

Then the hearse with a special automobile escort will proceed to Cottonport.

Even at death's door "Moon," as he was affectionately known to thousands of southern sports followers, maintained the tradition for courage and bravery he had earned on the gridiron in football wars.

Knowing that the end was near and yet still conscious, "Moon" summoned his family to his bedside and told them he was going to die and made plans for his funeral.

Moon selected two members from the Loyola faculty to officiate at his funeral and designated as pallbearers seven intimate friends.

A guard of honor composed of letter men in Loyola athletics will serve as escort at the church and the grave.

TULANE WINS SINGLES AND DOUBLES CROWNS

AUSTIN, Tex., March 27.—(AP)—Ernie Sutter of Tulane university, national intercollegiate titlist, won the singles division of the Southwest Intercollegiate Tennis tournament here today by defeating Lindsay Franklin of the University of Texas, 6-3, 6-3, 6-3.

Tulane also captured the doubles, defeating the Longhorn team 3-6, 9-7, 6-1, 6-1.

Bobby Kamrath and George Dullnig made a flashy start toward a doubles victory for Texas but encountered difficulties after the first set when Sutter and Abrams of Tulane overpowered the Texans.

NEVILLE TO SEND LARGEST NUMBER TO BATON ROUGE

Tigers Have 11 Qualified For Tourney At L. S. U.; Strong Teams Fight

High school boxers from all parts of the state will converge on Baton Rouge this coming week-end for the Louisiana State university's annual state championship tournament Friday and Saturday, with north Louisiana again sending a strong delegation into the title scraps.

Sixty-eight mittmen, representing 15 north Louisiana high schools, are eligible to enter the state tournament from this section of the state. It is probable, however, that schools qualifying only a few fighters during the district tourneys a week ago will not enter the season boxing finale.

The Neville High school Tigers of Monroe, who were state champions in 1934 and runner-ups for the state crown again last year, will send the largest delegation from north Louisiana. Neville qualified 11 mittmen at the tournament here last week. Lake Providence's Panthers from East Carroll parish have the second largest roster of qualified scrappers, having eight battlers, six of them in the heavyweight division, eligible.

Other north Louisiana schools with qualified boxers are: Tallulah, 6 boxers; Forest, 3; Choudrant, 6; Bastrop, 4; Bernice, 3; Gibsland, 2; Farmerville, 7; Homer, 4; Dubach, 2; Arcadia, 5; Bossier City, 4; Jonesboro, 2; and Ruston, 1.

Whereas, north Louisiana had only one previous state tourney winner returning for last spring's fights, eight of last April's point winners will be back in the thick of the battles this year. The only previous state point winner to return last year was Darius Crews, Neville's defending 165-pound champion; but this season the crop is heavier and north Louisiana is in a good position to bring plenty of titles and places back home Saturday night.

Returning point winners are: Homerick Brock, Homer, who placed thrid in the 112-pound class last year; Ernest Pierce, Neville, runner-up for the 118-pound crown; B. McKeithan, Arcadia, placed third in the 126-pound class; "Shorty" Earl, Neville, runner-up for 135-pound title; John Ed Rabun, Farmerville, third placer in 145-pound class; Pipes, Choudrant, runner-up for 165-pound championship; Malcolm Lightsey, Lake Providence, defending state 175-pound champion; and L. Campbell, Choudrant, who placed third in the 175-pound class.

Preliminaries will begin Friday and continue all through Saturday, with the finals to take place Saturday night.

90 pounds: Buck Brantley, Neville, northeast district champion; D. Elliott, Bernice, northwest district champion; Bob Fairly, Tallulah; Isaac Yeates, Forest; K. Jones, Gibsland; and W. Pipes, Choudrant.

98 pounds: Ben Milam, Bastrop, northeast champion; Leon Andrews, Farmerville, northwest champion; Guy Miller, Neville; S. E. Holloway, Lake Providence; Amos Graves, Homer; and C. Bonds, Dubach.

105 pounds: Anthony Danna, Neville, northeast champion; Mitchell Brasher, Farmerville, northwest champion; Ray Campbell, Bastrop; Kenneth Nettles, Tallulah; A. Rich, Arcadia; and J. Jenkins, Dubach.

112 pounds: David White, Bastrop, northeast champion; J. Sanderson, Choudrant, northwest champion; Roy Cohen, Tallulah; Ellie Burch, Forest; G. Albritton, Bernice; and G. McGuire, Arcadia.

118 pounds: Ernest Pierce, Neville, northeast champion; Homerick Brock, Homer, northwest champion; Tony Byrd, Bastrop; Fred Edgerton, Tallulah; J. Tuminello, Bossier City; and S. Heard, Bernice.

CONNIE MACK HURT WHEN STRUCK BY BATTED BALL

MEXICO CITY, March 27.—(AP)—Connie Mack, 74-year-old manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, went to a hospital last night for treatment of an infection of his right leg.

The injury was caused by a foul ball that struck Mack several days ago.

Physicians said the injury was not serious and that the manager would be able to leave for Texas Sunday with his team.

L. S. U. GOLFERS WIN

BATON ROUGE, La., March 27.—(AP)—Louisiana State university's golf team defeated Springhill college today over the new Tiger golf course, 17½ to ½. Fred Haas, Jr., Tiger star linksman, did not participate and Paul Leslie, another L. S. U. star, played only in the doubles.

Giants Have Nothing But Standout Pitching Staff

McCarthy Replaces Terry But Falls Far Short Of Filling His Shoes

GULFPORT, Miss., March 27.—Pitching generally is considered 75 per cent of baseball, but the Cubs couldn't win the National league pennant with it alone in 1936, and what may be a splendid Giant staff wishes that William Harold Terry would do something about the other 25 per cent of the New York outfit.

A patched-up pack of Polo Grounders backed into the world series last fall, and it must be that Terry again is depending upon fickle Dame Fortune to smile serenely.

Terry does not consider the Cardinals, Cubs or Pirates improved. That make it even. Neither are the men of young Horace Stoneham.

Terry hasn't done much to help the Giants.

As his principal contributions to replace Travis Jackson and himself, long Giant standbys, Terry comes up with Lou Chiozza, the former Philly with an unpredictable side-arm throw and little experience at third base, and Johnny McCarthy, who to date has had all the earmarks of a $40,000 bust at first base.

Trained Too Fine

Terry's avariciousness and eagerness to grab a $15,000 guarantee to put up by Julio Blanco Herrera, Havana brewer, may be sending the Giants away with a handicap that will be felt sorely in September. The senior loop champions may peter out as they did in 1934 and '35.

The contract called for them to be in Havana, February 19, Cuba's Independence day, which put them in camp two weeks ahead of any other outfit. The Giants were putting everything they had into their work in a nine-inning game as early as February 24. Carl Hubbell says that three weeks under Havana's burning sun is enough to condition athletes who were far out of shape.

The Giants left Havana well baked and further advanced than most clubs are on April 1. After their current two-week stay at Gulfport, they still have a two-week barnstorming tour of Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Alabama, Georgia and the Carolinas before reaching New York.

Three good Giant pitchers were in and out last season. Hal Schumacher had water on his elbow. Lefty Al Smith suffered from arthritis. Sciatica worked a hardship on Clyde Castleman. All appear formidable now, but it's still early. If these three pitch as they did in 1935, the Giants will stir up plenty of trouble, despite shortcoming at first and third bases.

Melton Impresses Terry

Terry is impressed with Clif Melton, six foot three and a half inch southpaw from Baltimore, but the tall one seems rather shy of control.

Harry Edward Gumbert won 11 and lost three last year, but pitched only three complete games. The Galveston grinder has a Minsky curve, but no fast ball. If he could finish games he starts, what little pitching worry Terry has would be behind him. Frank Gabler pitched well for a stretch last season, but is not capable enough to be a regular starter for a major league combination with pennant aspirations.

Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons enjoyed a phenomenal return to form in 1936, bagging 10 of his last 12 starts.

Hubbell is the same old Hub, with plenty of everything and more intelligence than that. Dick Coffman strictly is a relief worker.

Terry at the outset said the first basing job was McCarthy's, but now he isn't so positive. Sambo Leslie, with his stomach injury hemstitched by Doc Hyland, the St. Louis specialist on ball players, may ease into the picture.

Terry announces his intention of going on the voluntarily retired list on May 15, but in the same breath speaks of playing a few games, which may mean 40. The pitching staff hopes the boss gets in more than that, for, when his left knee is okay, the aged Memphis Bill still is one of the best first basemen in the business, fielding or hitting.

McCarthy, supposed to be a Fancy Dan, hasn't looked too smooth in the field, although the one thing he must show is consistent hitting. Because Terry took the strap off the bankroll after personally scouting the Irishman in Newark, McCarthy will be given every opportunity to make the grade.

Powers Hasn't Got It

Leslie Edwin Powers, from Baltimore, batted 70 points more than McCarthy in the International league, but Terry doesn't appear to hold him in high regard. The impression is that Powers will be returned to the Orioles, as only a $1,500 down payment has been made on him.

The Giants are as strong as any club in the wheel around second, with Dick Bartell and Burgess Whitehead playing as they did last season. Whitehead, heralded as being frail, participated in every game and batted .278. Bartell fell only two points short of .300. This pair is a big help to the pitchers in the way of making double plays.

Chiozza is going to get the third base job unless he blows up completely. If the Memphis Italian can't make it, the Giants will have to buy a third baseman some place.

Chiozza will help the Giant attack. He always hits close to .300 and stole 17 bases last season, an innovation with the Giants, where Whitehead was the only man who could get out of his own way on the baselines.

Chiozza will be an improvement over the washed-up Stoney Jackson of 1936 at the plate, but, unless the newcomer polishes up his fielding and steadies his throwing, Jackson's level head and dependability in the clinches will be missed in the field.

Leiber, who wasn't on much more than speaking terms with Terry last season, is getting the call in center field. Opinion as to why is divided. One faction suspects that Terry realizes that Hank, on his 1935 form, is one of the finest right-handed hitters in the game, and that the pilot wants to give the blond Arizona collegian every chance in hope that he can come back.

Others say that the move is a build-up for a trade with Cincinnati which might involve a Giant pitcher and Catcher Ernie Lombardi and Third Baseman Lew Riggs. Charley Dressen, manager of the Reds, had much success with Leiber at Nashville.

Ripple Helped Last Year

Jimmy Ripple made the Giants last season when given an opportunity due to an injury suffered by Leiber. The red-head from the Pennsylvania coal regions is not a great slugger, but is consistent.

If Ripple, a left-handed hitter, is used against right-handers and Leiber against left-handers, Ripple will play three times as many games since the league is shy of left-handed pitching talent.

Naturally, the highly dependable Joe Moore and Mel Ott will take care of left and right fields, respectively, and George (Kiddo) Davis still sticks around.

Harry Danning and Roy Spencer again will assist Gus Mancuso, who rates second only to Mickey Cochrane as a receiver.

Tommy Thevenow and Mickey Haslin are experienced utility men.

The Giants may hobble to another flag, but Terry knows better than anybody else that they require an added punch.

He hopes to obtain it somewhere but no doubt would feel much better if he could put his finger on the source with some degree of positiveness right now.

BOTH SQUADS TO INCLUDE REGULAR PLAYERS IN GAME

Horton To Start On Mound For Twins While Davis Will Open For Liners

The first exhibition game of the season here will be played this afternoon at Casino park when Manager Eddie Hock's Monroe club tangles with Bill Windle's Texarkana baseball squad. The game is slated to start at 2:30 o'clock.

Yesterday's sun and wind dried off the field at Casino park sufficiently to allow the athletes to take a short workout and the two skippers said they believed the diamond would be in good shape for today's game, provided no more moisture descends from the heavens. Yesterday's workouts consisted entirely of limbering-up exercises and some running. It was too cold for any throwing.

Today's game will be a regulation affair, nine innings long. Owen Edwards, an Evangeline league umpire who has been helping out in President J. Walter Morris' office here for the past week, will work the game. An admission charge of 25 cents will be made.

The two teams will be made up mostly of regulars who are expected

MORRIS OFFERS CUP

J. Walter Morris, president of the Cotton States league, announced here yesterday that he would award a silver loving cup to the club which draws the largest opening day attendance when the Cotton States circuit swings into action late in April.

The schedule opens on April 21 with Monroe at Vicksburg, Greenville at Greenwood, Pine Bluff at El Dorado and Helena at Clarksdale. On April 23, Monroe, Greenville, Pine Bluff and Helena hold their home openers, with Vicksburg, Greenwood, El Dorado and Clarksdale as the visiting clubs.

No attendance cup was offered last year. El Dorado drew the largest opening day attendance in 1936, Mr. Morris said.

Monroe and Vicksburg are the new clubs in the circuit, having taken over franchises operated by Cleveland and Jackson, Miss., last winter.

With the new setup forming a more compact league and the new towns showing enthusiasm over the return of organized baseball, the most successful year in league history is predicted by President Morris.

NEW YORK CLUBS TEAMS TO BEAT FOR FLAGS

Braddock Ready To Accept Service Of Court Order

YANKS EXPECTED TO WIN EASILY IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

Gould Believes Giants Are Strong Enough To Turn Back National Foes

By Alan Gould

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Midway in the longest and loudest spring training show the big leagues have conducted in years, it appears the two New York entries will be the clubs to beat in the forthcoming pennant races.

The barriers will be sprung April 20, a week later than usual. Thus three weeks remain in which to continue speculative whoopla, further test the prospects of a mediocre freshman class and settle the few remaining holdout controversies.

The swaggering St. Louis Cardinals, tied by the Chicago Cubs in the runner-up spot last year, have been made the topheavy choice of expert observers and the betting fraternity. With the New York Yankees even money against the entire American league field, rated generally in a class by themselves, the Cardinals today were posted at 8 to 5 in Broadway Jack Doyle's "line." The Cubs are 2 to 1, and the Giants 5 to 2 propositions in Doyle's estimation.

Addition of Lon Warneke to the Cardinal curving corps, plus several rookies, appear compelling factors in "doping" the club's chances.

The Giants have made the most impressive showing of any National league club in the Grapefruit circuit. They have gained strength to offset the retirement of Manager Bill Terry, and figure again to get the best pitching results of any pennant contenders.

The "miracle" finish of the Giants last year, after they appeared hopelessly in the ruck in July, cannot be repeated, baseball men argue. They cannot see how Terry, with a lifetime hitting mark of .341, can adequately be replaced by long John McCarthy or Sambo Leslie. Close followers of the club, however, point to the infield improvement with Lou Chiozza on third and emphasize the potential slugging come-back of Hank Leiber.

There are no more "ifs" in the Giants' chances than the Cardinals will carry to the post. The Cards can't win unless Warneke and Dizzy Dean both have big years, as well as considerable flinging support. With Manager Frankie Frisch on the doubtful list, the Cardinals also will have infield problems. Behind the bat, the Red Birds must gamble with younger men, in contrast to the Giants' reliance on the veteran Gus Mancuso, newly appointed field captain.

In the box, the Giants expect comebacks by Hal Schumacher and Slick Castleman to support the renowned Carl Hubbell, just as the Cards hope Paul Dean will return to his 1935 form. Terry has the old reliable, Fred Fitzsimmons, along with Frank Gabler, Al Smith and a new southpaw prospect, Cliff Melton. Frisch faces uncertainties in rounding out his starting staff.

The Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates, by any yardstock, measure up as the clubs most likely to take advantage of slips by either the Giants or Cardinals. Yet shrewd baseball observers have touted the Cincinnati Reds as the fifth horse in the pennant race.

Admittedly, the Reds are young, hustling and improving, but what are they going to use for punch and pitching? Speed and aggressiveness hardly figure to offset the lack of basic power or top-notch twirling. It would be a sensation if the Reds landed in the first division.

The American league, no contest last year, hopes to develop more competition for the world champion Yankees. Of chief interest is the possibility that Bob Feller, Cleveland's sensational pitching newcomer, may do the same thing for the Tribe that young Joe DiMaggio did for the New Yorkers last season. Unquestionably DiMaggio touched off the winning spark for Joe McCarthy's club.

Detroit, with Hank Greenberg and Manager Mickey Cochrane primed for come-backs, looks like the only other American league entry with pennant prospects. The Tigers come close to matching the Yankees in power but their pitching is doubtful.

The Boston Red Sox, with the pressure off, figure to do better. Washington and the Chicago White Sox will be lucky to do as well as last year.

From the belligerent tone of training camp dispatches, it seems rivals are going to "gang up" on the Yankees. . . . It's just as well to realize now that only one team at a time can tackle the world champions, but even in a battle royal we'd take the Yanks. . . . Rog Hornsby's slugging in exhibition tilts may influence the "jury" to keep him in the Browns' lineup. . . . One of the best prospects in this spring's poor crop of rookies appears to be 19-year-old Bobby Doerr, whose second base play for the Red Sox may help Yankeesllwx ETAOIN etaoin.... help Manager Joe Cronin on the bench.

EXHIBITION SCORES

INDIANS WALLOP GIANTS

JACKSON, Miss., March 27.—(AP)—The Cleveland Indians and New York Giants put on the "grapefruit league's" dizziest exhibition today, with the Tribe outlasting the National league champions for a 10 to 9 victory.

Pitchers were worth a dime a dozen, after the starters, New York's Hal Schumacher and Cleveland's Willis Hudlin, were removed after four and three innings each. Al Smith, Giant pitcher in the fifth, gave up four runs in his first frame, and Ivy Paul Andrews, who succeeded Hudlin, did the same in the sixth.

Thereafter, the Indians had another four-run frame in the sixth, and sewed the game up with a run in the ninth, after the Giants had scored four in their half of the last session.

Score by innings:
New York (N) ..100 004 004— 9 12 3
Cleveland (A) ...100 044 001—10 13 2

Schumacher, Smith, Meketi, Coffman and Mancuso, Danning; Hudlin, Andrews, Wyatt, Milnar and Becker.

BLUES TRIM BROWNS

McALLEN, Tex., March 27.—(AP)—A team composed of most of the St. Louis Browns' regulars lost to the Kansas City Blues of the American association here today, 6 to 3.

Melvin Mazzera, Browns' left fielder, collected a triple and a single, his three-base blow bringing in two of the major leaguers' three runs.

Score by innings:
St. Louis (A) ....000 002 001— 3 12 2
Kansas City (AA)100 002 21x— 6 13 1

Caldwell, Mills and Hemsley and Huffman; Vance, Moncrief and Breese.

BROWNS SECONDS LOSE

NEW BRAUNFELS, Tex., March 27.—(AP)—The Minneapolis Millers of the American association had an easy time with a squad of St. Louis Brownies today, running up a 15 to 1 score on the American leaguers.

Jim Bottomley, manager of the Brownies' second team, experimented with pitchers Les Tietje and Elon "Chief" Hogsett. Both were pounded freely.

Score by innings:
St. Louis, squad 2..000 010 000— 1 5 1

YANKS DOWN BEES

ST. PETERSBURG, March 27.—(AP)—The New York Yankees had trouble taking their favorite punching bags, the Boston Bees, apart today, but finally won, 5 to 3, after coming from behind twice.

Hal Warstler's triple sent the Bees off to a two-run lead in the second, but the Yanks tied it up in the fourth on Joe DiMaggio's three-bagger and Lou Gehrig's fly. After the Bees scored another in the sixth, consecutive singles by Rookie Pitcher Frank Makosky, Frank Crosetti and Red Rolfe, and Gehrig's fly produced two more Yankee runs in the same frame. Jake Powell scored the final in the seventh, doubling and coming in on an error.

Makosky showed the best pitching form of the day, letting the Bees down hitless in the last three innings.

RED SOX BEAT NEWARK

SARASOTA, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—Making their first appearance of the season on the mound, Bob "Lefty" Grove and Wes Ferrell, Red Sox pitching aces, aided in turning back the Newark Bears, 6 to 4, here today.

The Bears were unable to solve the slants of the southpaw hurler and had little more success against the offerings of the big righthander.

Rookie Dick Midkiff followed Ferrell on the mound and was reached for two runs in the eighth inning and two more in the ninth.

DODGERS WHIP TIGERS

LAKELAND, March 27.—(AP)—Landing on three rookie pitchers for a dozen hits, the Brooklyn Dodgers scored their fourth straight Grapefruit league victory today by trouncing Detroit, 6 to 3.

While George Jeffcoat and Luke Hamlin were limiting the Tigers to five hits, the Brooklyns found Don French, Clyde Hatter and Pat McLaughlin easy to solve. Heinie Manush, making his National league debut this season, lead the attack with a triple and a single.

NATS BLANK CARDS

ORLANDO, Fla., March 27.—(AP)—The Washington Senators shut out the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 0, winning their eighth straight exhibition game today. Monte Weaver and Pete Appleton contributed air-tight pitching and only one Cardinal got as far as second base.

YANKEES EVEN MONEY TO WIN

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—The New York Yankees are even-money favorites to win their second straight American league pennant but the New York Giants are third choice at 5 to 2 to repeat in the National league on odds quoted today on the major league pennant race by Jack Doyle, Broadway commissioner.

Doyle has established the St. Louis Cardinals the choice at 8 to 5 in the senior circuit with the Chicago Cubs next in line at 2 to 1.

The odds:

CHAMPION TURNS UP IN NEW YORK INSTEAD OF CHI

Jersey Jim's Lawyer Says He Will Accept Service In Newark Monday

By Scotty Reston

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock will accept service Monday at Newark of a federal court order designed to prevent him from fighting Joe Louis in Chicago, June 22.

Joe Gould, the champion's manager, and Judge Samuel B. Gould, his counsel, made this announcement today after four hours of bickering over whether Braddock had been served for Madison Square Garden by deputies in Woodcliff, N. J.

Carl S. Kuebler, attorney for Madison Square Garden, first announced in Jersey City Braddock had been served. The order required Braddock to show cause April 5 at Newark why an injunction should not be issued against the Louis fight.

Later William McDermitt, United States marshal, in Newark said deputies hunting for the champion were reported to have served the wrong man.

Joe Gould in New York verified McDermitt's report and added jubilantly the deputies had served one "Gunboat Williams," whom Gould described as a former sparring partner of Max Schmeling.

"Williams went to my Jim's house this morning trying to get a job as a sparring partner and when he came out of the door about 15 of these deputies met him," said Gould. "Old Gunboat thought it was a holdup and started running, and when they caught him he said he wasn't Braddock. They served him anyway."

In addition to Gould's announcement of his willingness to accept the Madison Square Garden federal court order, the most important development of the day was the reappearance of Braddock.

The champion had been missing since last Monday, when the Garden's attorneys instituted action against him in the Miami, Fla., courts. Braddock vanished about the same time the announcement of this action appeared. He was reported variously to be en route to Illinois, New Jersey and New York.

Braddock was in Manhattan today, but his attorneys claimed the Garden could not serve him in New York with a New Jersey order.

The Garden is seeking to force Braddock to fulfill his contract to meet Max Schmeling of Germany in New York, June 3.

Judge Gould said it would not be necessary for Braddock to appear in Jersey Monday. He added he (Gould) would accept the order for the champion at any time during the day in his Newark office.

Asked what his plans were for defense, the judge said: "Our defense will simply be that our contract to meet Joe Louis in Chicago June 22 in no way interferes with our contract to meet Schmeling June 3.

"Our contract says that Braddock cannot participate in any fight with Joe Louis until after June 3, and unless I'm mistaken, June 22 is after June 3."

Paradox of the muddle at the moment is that Manager Gould yesterday expressed doubt that the Braddock-Louis bout will come off in Chicago anyway. The Illinois senate passed a bill limiting the price of tickets to $10, and Gould said the fight would not go on if this became law.

FOLEY PLEASED

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP)—Word that Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock would accept service Monday of a court order obtained by Madison Square Garden in its campaign to keep the titleholder from fighting Joe Louis in Chicago June 22, was the "best news I have heard in a week," Promoter Joe Foley said today.

"The whole situation will be brought out into the open when Braddock appears in court," Foley said. "That is what we want and we have all the answers ready. After the Garden ceases firing, it will be our turn to go into action."

ASSISTANT FOOTBALL COACH AT TECH WEDS

RUSTON, La., March 27.—(Special)—Assistant Coach J. M. (Mike) Wells of Louisiana Tech and Miss Victoria Andrews of Ruston have mixed their "I do" signals and crossed the goal of matrimony.

They were married at 8 p.m. Friday, according to an announcement Saturday, with Rev. W. J. Bolin, pastor of the First Baptist church of Ruston, performing the rites. The wedding was solemnized at the home of the pastor.

Mary Jo Colvin and "Mac" Borland were in the line-up for the climax of the engagement.

Being a young man, Coach Wells went west with his bride immediately after the ceremony. The newlyweds will establish their residence in an apartment here after the honeymoon.

The new Mrs. Wells is a music instructor in the teacher-training school at Louisiana Tech, and is a graduate of the college here. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Andrews of Ruston.

The new "Mister" Wells has been assistant coach here the last three years, having come to Tech from Birmingham, Ala. Following his graduation from Louisiana Tech in 1936, he was made an instructor in physical education at the college.

RACE STARTER NABBED ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—The treasury department announced today the arrest of Joe Nelson, identified by the department as the head starter at Arlington Downs race track, Texas. He was seized on a charge of illegal possession of narcotics, agents said.

Narcotics Commissioner Harry J. Anslinger said federal narcotic agents reported to him that they had found a quantity of opium on Nelson's person at the time of his arrest today in San Antonio.

INDIANS SIGN SULLIVAN, LAST OF THEIR HOLDOUTS

CLEVELAND, March 27.—(AP)—C. C. Slapnicka, the Cleveland Indians' business manager, announced today he had signed the last of the Tribe's holdouts, Billy Sullivan, catcher and utility infielder.

They came to an agreement in Chicago yesterday, Slapnicka said, when the business chief stopped en route to Cleveland from the Indians' New Orleans training camp.

Slapnicka did not discuss the terms. The catcher planned to leave for New Orleans today, Slapnicka said.

INDIANS OUT FOR BASEBALL DRILL

Thirty-Two Candidates Report To Coach Malone For First Workouts

Thirty-two candidates for Northeast Center of L. S. U.'s first baseball team answered Coach James L. Malone's initial call to practice last week and, with the addition of baseball as a major sport at Center, the Indian athletes have a year-round sports program.

A baseball diamond has been prepared on the football practice field at the rear of the tennis courts by NYA student labor, and bleachers from the football stadium have been moved to the baseball diamond to provide seats for prospective spectators when the locals open their season.

Of the 32 candidates already at work, most of them are freshmen, and Coach Malone said he would not reduce the squad this season as he wanted to develop all prospective players with hopes of having a stellar nine in another year, if not this season.

Six exhibition games, to begin within another two weeks, have already been scheduled with clubs in the fast semi-pro Ouachita Valley league, Coach Malone said, and it will be nearly a month after meeting the semi-pros before the Indians will go into action against teams of other colleges. The schedule of college games is not expected to be heavy, but Coach Malone promises to schedule some good nines for his Redmen.

Coach Malone will work his charges double tomorrow, there being no classes at Center on Monday, he will work them in the morning from 9:30 to 12 o'clock and again in the afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock. After tomorrow's dual drills they will resume the single afternoon sessions Tuesday.

TOP TRACK STARS IN TEXAS RELAYS

Venzke, Lash, Francis Among Luminaries Entered In Austin Meet

AUSTIN, Tex., March 27.—(AP)—University of Texas track officials today prepared to put more than 1,000 athletes through their paces next Saturday in the 10th Texas relays, which annually herald the national outdoor track season.

Topped by such names as Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania's famous miler; Don Lash, Indiana's sensational distance man; Alton Terry, Hardin-Simmons' Olympic javelin tosser, and Sam Francis, Nebraska's Olympic shot put artist, nearly 700 definite entries had been received with indications the total would exceed that of last year.

The famed Rideout twins, Wayne and Blaine, of North Texas Teachers college, will compete with Lash and others in a special event.

"Red" Cecil of Refugio, who last year won the state high school meet practically single-handed, will appear in the junior college division as a Texas A. and M. entry.

Michigan State's Spartans, the Nebraska Cornhuskers and Louisiana State's veteran tracksters, who last year placed second in the distance medley and four-man races, were expected to have competition from a likely crew representing Stephen F. Austin college.

Director Clyde Littlefield, veteran Longhorn coach, announced Governor James V. Allred would crown the queen of the relays, now being chosen by popular vote, who will award trophies.

MAY AND ARNOLD RECEIVE LETTERS AT TEXAS MINES

EL PASO, Tex., March 27.—(Special)—Eight Texas College of Mines basketball players have been voted varsity awards for the past season by members of the college athletic council, Coach Marshall Pennington has announced.

Receiving letters were: O. P. M[illegible], Monroe, La.; Horace Matthews, [illegible]mesa, Tex.; Ross Moore, Sarepta, La.; Homer Armes, Stratford, Okla.; Boyd Arnold, Bearden, Ark., and Pat Connolly, Jack Stitt and Cessar Arroyo, El Paso. Student Manager Kerby Smith was also awarded a letter.

Pennington will not lose a letterman by graduation next year.

Freshman cage numerals were given Barry Pennington, Georgetown, Tex.; Bill Gage, Hillsboro, Tex., and Vincent Andreas, Willis Bean, Salvador Mora, and John Beaty, El Paso. A manager's award went to Harry Rosenberg.

DOUBLE MAIN EVENT SLATED FOR MAT SHOW

HENRY TO MEET BACAGALUPI IN FEATURE MATCH

Wycoff And Podolak Tangle In Semi-Final Of All-Star Card Tuesday

A double main event program, presenting one match between two outstanding mat villains and another between two wrestlers who rely chiefly on scientific methods, has been booked for the weekly show at Roosevelt stadium Tuesday night, Promoter Phil Lisotta announced last night.

Jim "Goon" Henry will meet Louis Bacagalupi, rugged Italian sensation, in the main event of the all-star card, and Doug Wycoff, the former Georgia Tech football star, will tackle Walter Podolak, the former world's champion weight lifter, in the first match.

Henry needs no introduction to Monroe wrestling fans, despite the fact that he has appeared in the local ring only once. He is said to be the most spectacular wrestler now competing in this section of the country. He is enjoying a sensational winning streak at present, his victims including one former heavyweight champion and two of the toughest lads in the nation. "The Goon" has been widely publicized of late for his wild antics in the ring and local mat bugs have been requesting his presence at the stadium for the past month.

Bacagalupi is a worthy foe for the tough Mr. Henry. The Italian, who appeared here a month ago after an absence of two years, is as tough as they come, and he may provide a distinct surprise for the Goon. Bacagalupi has been bowling 'em over of late and Promoter Lisotta believes the battle with Henry will be the best roughhouse match that has been staged at the local arena in more than a year.

For the opening match of the big program, Lisotta has booked two clever grapplers. Podolak, who won several awards as the possessor of the most perfect physique in the world, returns after an absence of several months. In fact, it was in November that Walter last performed before a Monroe audience. Since that time he has been piling up victories. He worked himself up from a preliminary starter to a main eventer who is in demand all over the circuit. Podolak is a former Olympic weight lifting champion, whose unusual strength should give him quite an advantage over Wycoff.

The former Georgia Tech grid star, however, has been coming along at a fast clip for the past month and will enter the ring at least an even bet against the burly Podolak. Wycoff has used his football tactics to good advantage recently and his record includes triumphs over some of the best products of the game.

The card is a double main event and therefore both matches will be two-hour time limit affairs, instead of the first match being limited to one hour. Both matches will be best two out of three falls.

Officials for the all-star card have not been selected, Lisotta said.

London has about 600,000 telephone subscribers, including 20,000 "silent" subscribers whose names and numbers do not appear in the 2,300-page directory.

10 Three-Year-Olds To Start In Louisiana Derby Today

GIRAULT MEDALIST IN LAKESIDE GOLF

Qualifying Score Of 77 Low; Menefee Posts Low Net Score Of 69

The qualifying round in the Lakeside Country club's annual spring handicap tournament ended yesterday, and pairings for first round matches were announced last night by Winnie Cole, Lakeside pro. First round matches will start today, with one week allowed for completion of the round.

Shep Girault, who last year returned to the amateur ranks after serving as pro at the country club for a couple of years, won medalist honors with a low gross score of 77. J. L. Menefee posted the low net score. He shot a 79 for the 18 hole qualifying test and his handicap is 10, giving him a net 69.

The first round pairings are as follows:

J. M. Menefee vs. bye; H. A. McDonald vs. J. E. Godfrey; George Miller vs. Art Surguine; M. C. McDonald vs. bye; Morton Braswell vs. bye; L. E. Ducote vs. Dr. Nat Gaston; Bobby Guerriero vs. S. M. McReynolds; R. R. Barfield vs. bye; C. C. Boardman vs. bye; J. H. Trousdale vs. S. L. Digby; E. Jack Selig, Jr., vs. W. L. James; Frenau Surguine vs. bye; Bun Beasley vs. R. W. McWilliams; Albert Marx vs. Kenneth Brown; Jack Masur vs. H. L. Woods; Ben Downing, Jr., vs. bye; M. S. Biedenharn vs. bye; Guy Campbell vs. H. K. Touchstone; A. B. Clarkson vs. J. S. Washburn; E. S. Girault vs. bye; Charles Wallace vs. bye; Bobby Oliver vs. Cramer Haas; Rev. Ernest Holloway vs. J. L. Keenan; H. H. Reardon vs. bye; George Hyle vs. bye; Will Washburn vs. Ben Downing; J. L. Warren vs. B. Rickerson; Wesley Shafto vs. bye; T. O. Bancroft vs. bye; H. T. Taylor vs. Jack Rogers, Dr. T. A. Brulte vs. bye; L. G. Frost vs. bye.

One week will be allotted for the completion of each round of play.

CITY SOFTBALL LOOP TO MEET ON MONDAY

A meeting of team managers and officials of the City Softball league will be held tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock in the News-Star—World building, it has been announced.

Eligibility rules, drawn up by E. E. Meredith and Gene Daspit, of the rules committee, will be presented at the meeting for ratification by managers of teams participating in the league this season.

Dr. DeWitt T. Milam, recently elected president of the City loop, will preside at the meeting.

Eight teams already in the league are Adler's Garagemen, Doctors-Lawyers, Cooperative Dairies, Monroe Hardware, Collens' Pharmacy, Brown Paper mill, Presbyterians and Tidwell and Son. There is still room for two more teams in the league, and persons desiring to enter teams in the organization are requested to be present at tomorrow's meeting.

STRIKING GLIMPSE OF BATTING POWER

If Arnold (Mickey) Owens had connected with the ball that balloons toward the glove of Catcher Brusie Ogrodowski in a St. Louis Cardinals practice session at Daytona Beach, Fla., there's no telling where it would have gone. The unusual picture provides a vivid illustration of the power batters put into their drives. While the ball traveled three or four feet from the plate to the catcher, the tip of the bat has moved in a circle nearly 15 feet in circumference.

WINNING GOLF

by LAWSON LITTLE

One of the most common ailments suffered by that ever-patient branch of the human race, the average golfers, is that of right elbow raising. This complaint does not include the 19th hole, where such action is often fitting and quite suitable to the occasion, be it a gesture to triumph or a tribute to despair. Our criticism is based on actual play during the round in which as so often happens the right elbow is allowed too much elbow room. In other words it floats around the fairway as if it were anchored to no definite objective and the ball sails around the links as if it were trying to keep its final destination a secret.

Must Watch To Improve

Study the photographs of any of the golfers, who have established themselves in the game, and you will note that their elbow is kept somewhere near their body throughout the stroke. After noting a great many beginners, I am inclined to believe that this control of the right arm is not natural, that it has to be regulated by the player himself. The next time you watch a beginner at the game watch this member. In ninety-nine decimal point forty-four out of a hundred novices you will see the elbow go out, then up and up. It is only after the player has been advised keep it down that an improvement is noted. Even this is subject to more violent reactions than a stock market ticker. Once the golfer learns just why it should be kept near the right side, he will no doubt give it enough attention to keep it there part of the time anyway.

Causes Mishit Shots

The truth of the matter is, that if it is not regulated, it may cause more hooks than a bush league pitcher tries to unleash in his first tryout in the big time. The right elbow that is allowed to travel its own path passes its error along to the clubhead's arc in aggravated form. For instance if the elbow is kept comfortably close to the body, the clubhead will come onto the ball from an inside out arc. However, if the right arm does not control the club's flight in this fashion, the arc will travel to the outside and cut across the ball from the inside in.

If the face of the club is closed at the time of impact, the ball may very well be sent tacking to the left without even benefit of a hook. After all there is something to be said for the fact "that a straight line is the shortest distance between two points." If one can keep his ball on approximately this sort of a line he is apt to go around in figures considerably less than his usual allotment. At least it is worth trying to keep that right elbow comfortably close to the right side for.

Should Be Comfortable

There is no reason to go about it too strenuously, rigidly adhering to the suggestion in such a matter that the arm is cramped. For swinging smoothness there must be a certain amount of comfort, stiffness should occupy no part of the picture. For instance a close arm position, such as Tommy Armour maintains, would be entirely unsuitable for some other golfer, although the records reveal it has been no handicap to the Silver Scot. Experiment will locate the proper position for best results and the player can concentrate on becoming muscle memory perfect about its mechanics. When this happens the right elbow will blend in naturally with the stroke and one headache will be eliminated.

BOTH SQUADS

to be on hand when the season opens on April 21.

As leadoff man and shortstop, Manager Hock will have Pete Belko or Jyles Shaw. Both are products of the baseball school and one will start at short for the Monroe club when the schedule starts. The second batter will be Johnny Barnett, product of the Doan school at Hot Springs, who will play center field today. Barnett is not a regular but Cully Rickard, the Cleveland slugger, reported only Wednesday and is not in shape to play as yet.

Clair Bates, heavy hitting second baseman, will bat third with Clary Hack, the former Gladewater clouter, in the clean-up position. Hack is the regular left fielder. Batting fifth today will be Royce "Gabby" Lusk, regular right fielder, who hits well over .300. Then comes Fred Miggans, the rookie first baseman who has been a sensation in spring workouts. Manager Hock will be the seventh batter, playing third, with Walter Butler, hard hitting catcher, next. Hock probably will be relieved early in the game by Eddie Zelinske, another product of the Doan school. David Brownlee, rookie catcher, also will replace Butler later in the game.

Manager Hock said he would start Britton Horton, the Sterlington southpaw who has been showing up exceptionally well, on the mound. He will be followed by Bill Kent, one of the star hurlers for the Gladewater club last season. If another rookie is sent to the mound, the Monroe pilot will select "Skip" Messina, the Parkin, Ark., youngster; Charley Robinson or Elmo Hardin.

The Texarkana batting order will be as follows:

"Red" Burrage, third base; Allen Bell, second base; "Country" Hampton, a Monroe boy, in left field; Lou Frierson, home run hitter from Gladewater, in right field; Kirk Haynes, speedy Clevelander of last season, in center field; the old master, Manager Windle himself, on first (with relief early from Clifford Johnson, another Monroe product); Eddie Campbell, shortstop; and Hays Copeland, Cleveland veteran, catcher.

Manager Windle said he would start Eugene Davis, a southpaw with Cleveland last season, on the mound. Davis will be followed by Fred Thompson, with Marshall, Tex., last year, and Dale Richardson, a rookie. Walter Kopp, late of the Doan school at Hot Springs, will assist Copeland with the catching duties.

Quite a bit of rivalry has sprung up between the two squads, both of which are in the same camp, and each is anxious to get off with a win in the first exhibition game of the season.

JEWELL DORSETT AND DEAD CALM RATED FAVORITES

Despite Heavy Downpour, Track Is Expected To Be Good For Rich Race

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—Ten crack three-year-olds pawed impatiently in their stalls today and ten owners each predicted his entry would breeze in the $10,000 Louisiana Derby which ends the 113-day racing meet here tomorrow.

Despite the heavy downpour of the past two days the fast drying racing strip of the Fair Grounds track was expected to be fast or good when Johnny Morrissey sends them away from the starting stalls.

The field had been cut sharply until late today it appeared that ten horses at the most would vie over the mile and an eighth for the Louisiana Jockey club's richest purse.

Military and Pompoon were out of it and no standout horse was expected to go to the post. Chart players agreed it was a well balanced event. The comparatively small field was expected to eliminate the bumping and fighting for position on the break and at the first turn.

Form followers expressed their preference for two horses, Jewell Dorsett, three year old filly owned by the Lone Star stable and Mrs. C. Gregory's Dead Calm. Jewell Dorsett will have to beat precedent in addition to nine other horses as no filly has ever taken the derby in its 16 years runnings. Dead Calm, a Christmas present from Trainer Cecil Gregory to his wife has shown vast improvement.

Others that are given a chance to romp home in front are Southland Beau, the Millsale stable's Grey Count and another filly, Virginia J.

WOMEN'S TOURNEY SLATED AT L. S. U.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 27.—(Special)—Women golfers of Louisiana will compete for the 1937 crown over the L. S. U. golf course, May 10-14, Mrs. C. F. Reynaud, recently elected president of the organization, announced today.

Elected with Mrs. Reynaud were Mrs. J. E. Hill, vice-president, and Mrs. J. B. Hodge, secretary and treasurer.

Pre-tournament favorites will probably be Mrs. Sam Israel, Jr., of New Orleans, defending champion, and Edna Saenger of Shreveort, winner in 1935.

The last time the tournament was played in Baton Rouge was in 1930 when Mrs. William Chiddy, formerly Ruth Reymond, won the title over the then nine-hole Westdale course.

Youthful Pro Jimmy Cole has the course in excellent shape and has announced that women who plan to take part in the tournament may play practice rounds any Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday before noon.

MARION MILEY DEFEATS BABE DIDRIKSON IN FINAL

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 27.—(AP)—Miss Marion Miley, pretty veteran amateur campaigner from Lexington, Ky., defeated long-hitting Babe Didrikson, Beaumont, Tex., professional, 6 to 4, to win the seventh Augusta Invitation Golf tournament today.

Miss Miley's victory, achieved with a par-busting performance as a cold wind swept the Forest Hills course, made her a dual Augusta champion. She also won the title in 1935.

A shivering gallery of approximately 1,000 watched the pro-amateur finals of the tournament.

Miss Miley played a consistently good game from the start. Miss Didrikson had trouble controlling her long shots. Her short game also lacked finesse.

INDUSTRIAL AND BUSINESS REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES NORTH LOUISIANA'S COMMERCIAL CENTER

RADIATOR TEST METHOD IN USE

United Electric Service Inc., Installs Scientific Flow Meter

A specially designed flow meter, said to be the only scientific method for testing automobile radiators, is now in operation at hte United Electrict Service, Co., 306 North Third street, and car owners are invited to avail themselves of this service, according to G. F. Becker, general manager of the firm.

"When testing automobile radiators with this method our men can definitely determine whether or not a radiator is partially clogged," Mr. Becker pointed out. "The test is made by measuring the flow of gallons per minute through the radiator."

Mr. Becker stated that this test is recommended by the manufacturers of standard automobile radiators and is the only known method by which trouble can be accurately checked in that part of car equipment.

"The biggest enemy of an automobile cooling system is the oil which gets into the block of the engine. This oil and grease forms rock-like pellets that work into the radiator and obstruct the free flow of water," Mr. Becker said. "When this occurs the car begins to heat. Perhaps the meter on the radiator shows normal, but as an actual fact the heat, which is sealed in and cannot get back to the radiator, breaks down the oil. This causes the burning of too much oil, loss of power, and frequently car owners have much unnecessary work done on their automobiles before they can locate the cause of the trouble. It is a known fact that one-eighth of an inch of grease in the engine block has the same resistance to heat that a piece of steel 10 inches thick possesses."

Automobile owners who experience radiator troubles and whose cars appear to be using too much oil or where the water circulation is poor, are invited to visit the United Electric Service, Inc., where experts are available to repair and adjust all troubles in the radiator or cooling systems of any make of automobile.

Real Estate Transfers

The following transactions Saturday were recorded in the court clerk's office:

Sig Masur and Sons, Inc., sold to Robert Edward Davis lots 10 and 12 of square four of Fairview subdivision of the Pargoud plantation, for $2,500.

Robert Edward Davis sold to Sig Masur and Sons, Inc., a lot in block three of the Pargoud Place addition to Monroe, for $1,800.

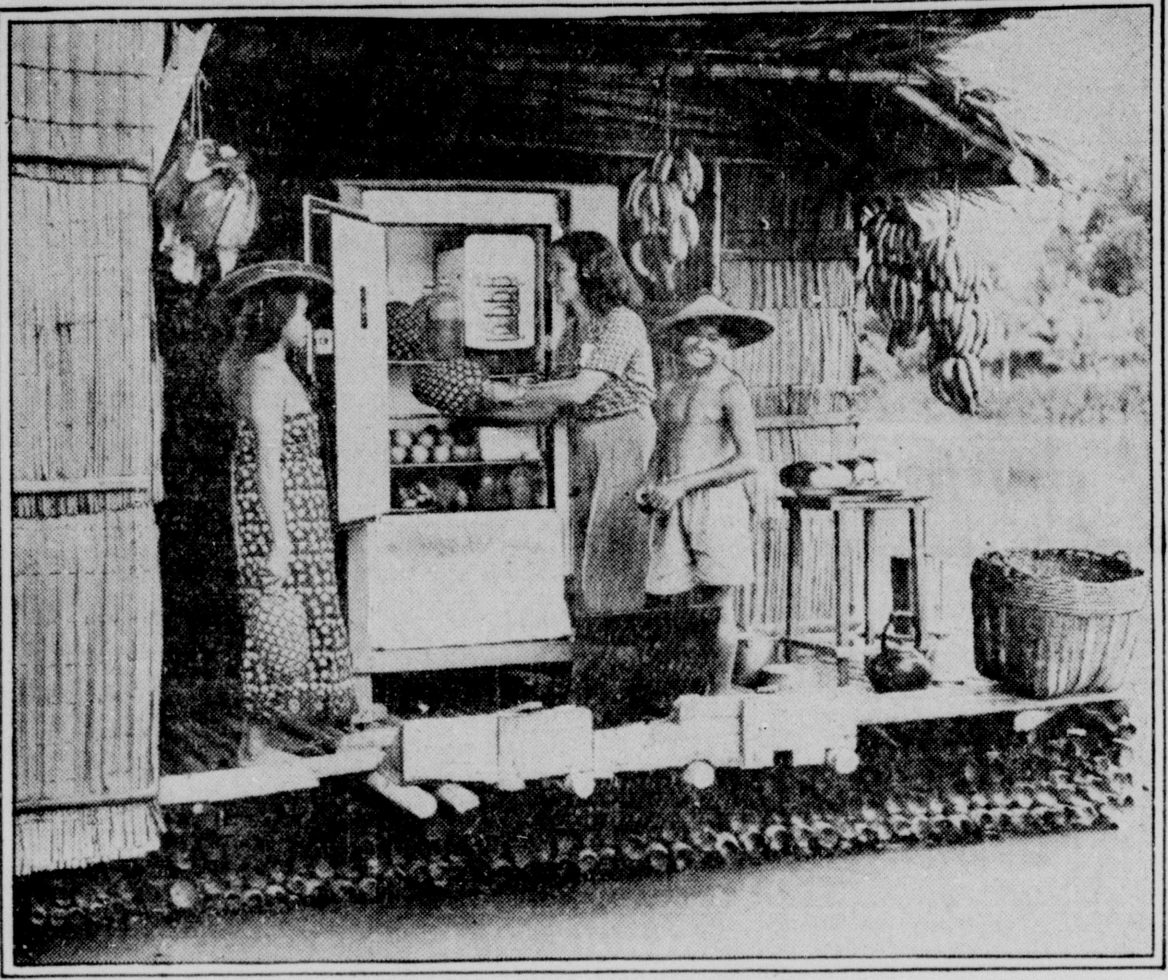
The Flournoy Corporation, Inc., and the Ouachita National bank sold to Edward Hance lot 9 of square four of T. E. Flournoy's third addition to West Monroe for $300.

Mrs. Kate Ball sold to Frank H. Ball the north third of lots five and six of square 20 of T. E. Flournoy's subdivision of lots A, B, C and D of Flournoy's first addition to West Monroe, the consideration of the sale being the assumption by the purchaser of an outstanding mortgage.

Ouachita National bank and the Flournoy Corporation, Inc., sold to T. L. Salley lot three of square three of Bell, Clark and Montgomery's first addition to West Monroe for $100.

J. T. and Roberta Anderson sold to Forest Anderson the east half of lot 33 of Siegle's subdivision of the north half of the northwest corner of section 9-11-3 east for $85.

Martin Johnson's Camera Snaps Wife In Housekeeping Mood on Last Safari



Martin Johnson's life that ended so tragically as the result of an airplane crash on a lonely snow-covered mountainside near Los Angeles on Jan. 12, though full of adventure was an extremely happy one because of the enjoyment he and his wife derived from their experiences while making motion pictures of wild life in the tropics. One of Mrs. Johnson's functions on these trips was to make life home-like and comfortable no matter how far away from civilization their camp might be.

The above photograph, taken by Mr. Johnson toward the end of the expedition in Borneo, where they spent most of last year in the jungles, shows Mrs. Johnson in a characteristic scene. The Johnsons lived on a bamboo raft that was moved up and down the Kinabatangan River, where the climate is said to be the hottest in the world. Strange as it may seem, modern refrigeration played a big role in the Borneo expedition. Two Servel Electrolux refrigerators (operated with kerosene) were part of the scientific equipment of the expedition. One of these was installed on the back veranda of the raft. Without the refrigerators, the Johnsons could not have withstood the heat of the jungles, they stated upon their return from Borneo.

Mrs. Johnson is telling the little jungle maiden what they do with fruit and vegetables in America and how good the big pineapple will be when it gets cold. The small native boy is laughing at Mr. Johnson's antics in manipulating his motion picture camera.

PRIMOS SERVES CREOLE DISHES

Specializes In Creole Foods And Cakes Prepared From Old Recipes

Gus Primos, owner and operator of Primos' restaurant, cafeteria and bakery, located at the corner of North Fourth and DeSiard streets, announces that he now features Creole cooking and cakes. Mr. Primos had the following to say in connection with Creole cooking which was introduced into this country by French and Spanish settlers:

"Since time immemorial, French chefs have been famous for their fine foods, especially their pastries. This reputation was not acquired overnight, but only after generations spent in the study of cookery as one of the fine arts.

"Two centuries ago, many French colonists settled in Louisiana. Of course, with them they brought all their time-honored recipes. Later, they were followed by the Spanish, who were also renowned for their culinary art. Both took part in the early development of Louisiana. They became neighbors; friends then began to intermarry.

"Together they built up a new culture—the world renowned Creole culture—best known, the world over, for its cuisine. Based upon such a distinguished old world heritage, aided by the wide variety of foods native to Louisiana's sunny clime, and developed by the world's most celebrated chefs, Creole cooking soon attained heights unsurpassed in any other period of man's history.

"In the mad scramble of recent years, much of this fine art has been thrown into the background. Speed was the keynote of the day. The painstaking work involved in the correct preparation of these world renowned recipes apparently took too much time.

"Several years ago I began a search for these recipes. I was fortunate in collecting quite a few and I was pleasantly surprised to find that they could be made, unaltered, with the modern equipment which was installed last autumn in our restaurant kitchen. Not only do I make and serve genuine Creole dishes, but the bakery also makes genuine Creole cakes. Our modern equipment enables us to uniformly and speedily produce the same fine cakes and pastries, made with the same rich, delicate ingredients as of yore. They are cakes of sublime flavor, tempting to the eye; cakes with romance in every bite. I cordially invite the public to try them."

LINVILLE HIGH SCHOOL PLANS SPECIAL PROGRAM

LINVILLE, La., March 27.—(Special)—A music-physical education program will be given in the auditorium of the Linville High school on April 2 at 8 p.m. The program will be a culmination of the activities of the two departments of the school. Miss Reba Kennedy is the director of the health part of the program; Mrs. R. O. Sutton is in charge of the music for the elementary grades and Miss Hilda Fuller for the high school.

The program will consist of choruses, rhythms, stunts, tumbling, speaking and piano solos. These are new departments recently added to the school and many children are taking advantage of the opportunity. Misses Novia Brown and Delphia Molnard, local recreational leaders, are assuming much of the responsibility for the program. They work hand in hand with the school in putting over such projects. The public is invited to attend. The program is free to all.

PHILCO RADIOS POPULAR MODEL

Home Furniture Company Reports Increased Sales Of 1937 Product

J. B. Lindsey, president of the Home Furniture company, 501-11 DeSiard street, reports that his firm is enjoying considerable success in the sale of Philco radios, and he attributed the increase in sales to the many new features incorporated in the 1937 Philco radio models.

"Among the new features included in Philco radios this year are high fidelity, both American and foreign reception; automatic tuning of favorite stations; Philco spread-band dial with five tuning ranges which spreads short-wave stations six times farther apart; high fidelity audio system; twin tone controls; treble-selectivity control; bass control; inclined sounding board; acoustic clarifiers; 15 Philco high-efficiency tubes; glowing beam tuning range indicator; cathedral high fidelity speaker; 27 tuned circuits with the Philco high efficiency aerial, and Philco foreign tuning system. All these features are a part of the Philco 116X deluxe model," Mr. Lindsey said.

"The Home Furniture company keeps a complete stock of Philco radios ranging in price from $30 and up and these can be purchased on terms to suit our customers," Mr. Lindsey declared.

"We also offer a wide range of table models equipped with Philco's latest 1937 improvements and we invite the public to visit the store and let us demonstrate the new Philco radio—America's finest radio."

Japan's largest recorded rice crop was produced in 1933 and totaled 22,835,000,000 pounds.

CUT COSTS FOR COOLING UNITS

S. O. S. Announces Cheaper Air Conditioning For Small Establishments

During the early spring months progressive merchants should consider the installation of air conditioning in their places of business in order to keep abreast with the times, according to A. K. Kilpatrick, president of the Standard Office Supply company, local dealers for Delco-Frigidaire air conditioning.

"Air conditioning is no longer considered a novelty or a luxury, but has become a necessity in modern business catering to the general public," Mr. Kilpatrick said.

"Air conditioning has proved itself not only an attraction to new business, but the average shopper stays longer and buys more when he is comfortable. The theaters have shown merchants how to overcome the so-called 'summer slumps' by air conditioning their auditoriums.

"The small shop need not be dismayed over the costs of large installations," Mr. Kilpatrick continued. "General Motors corporation, through Delco-Frigidaire, has developed and now has on the market 'packagedized' units of every size to meet the demands of any type and size of air conditioning installation.

"With these new products available," Mr. Kilpatrick pointed out, "the average merchant can buy air conditioning in the same way that he purchases fixtures, stock or a new front for his building. The GMAC finance plan makes it possible to finance such a purchase without a heavy initial payment. Delco-Frigidaire has eliminated much costly engineering and the complete installation takes a matter of days instead of weeks as heretofore," Mr. Kilpatrick said.

"It should be remembered that the actual equipment placed in an installation makes up approximately one-third of the total cost. The rest consists of labor and materials going into the necessary plumbing, installation, wiring, carpentry, painting and decorating. As everyone knows, these costs are on the increase and the wise purchaser buys air conditioning now while prices are as low as they will be for several years. Moreover, when hot weather comes, every air conditioning dealer is rushed in installations, and if air conditioning is installed in the spring before hot weather, the dealer can take his time in making a more complete, accurate and cheaper installation," Mr. Kilpatrick said.

"The small business with the lease that runs from year to year need not be worried over the purchase of bulky and permanent machinery. Delco-Frigidaire air conditioning offers equipment that can be moved as easily as counters, show cases, etc. There is no loss in equipment when an air conditioning system of this type is moved to a new location," he said.

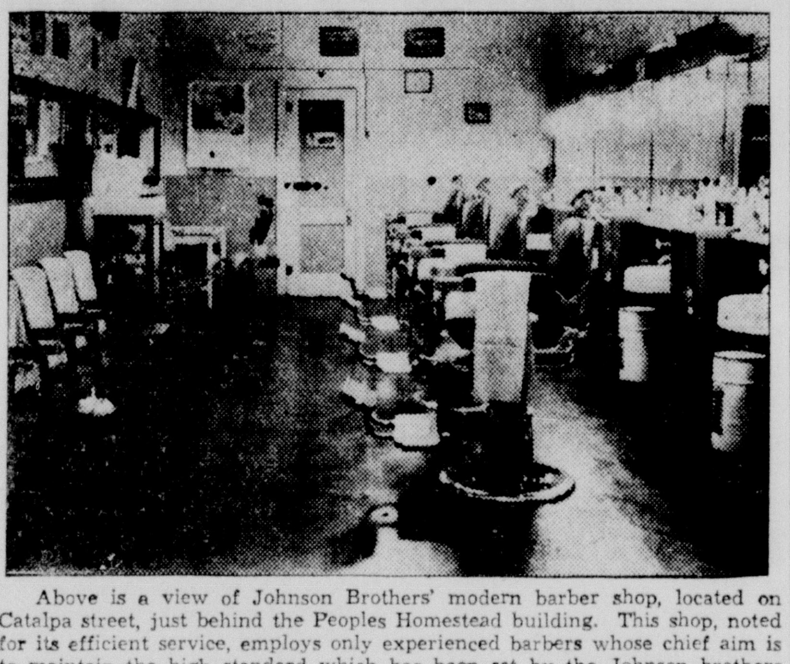
The Standard Office Supply company invites every merchant who wants to invest in the best form of modernization, Delco-Frigidaire air conditioning, to call telephone number 519, and one of their representatives will be glad to discuss the varied products and their application. "The merchant can control the cost," is the company's slogan in connection with the sale of air conditioning equipment.

WORK ON ROAD BEGUN

DODSON, La., March 27.—(Special)—Grading and graveling of the Dodson-Cypress creek road, a WPA project, was begun recently and is expected to be completed within several months. The road is a farm-to-market thoroughfare that serves a thriving agricultural area.

The Paris International Exposition which opens in May calls for an expenditure of $45,000,000.

JOHNSON BROS. BARBER SHOP



Above is a view of Johnson Brothers' modern barber shop, located on Catalpa street, just behind the Peoples Homestead building. This shop, noted for its efficient service, employs only experienced barbers whose chief aim is to maintain the high standard which has been set by the Johnson brothers for several years.

Comfortable chairs await Johnson Bros. customers. The pleasing atmosphere of the shop and the friendly, courteous attitude of the attendants have played an important part in building up a large list of satisfied customers. Only the best of nationally known tonsorial products are used at this modern shop, which is under the personal supervision of the owners at all times.

Men and women of the Twin Cities who have not visited the Johnson Bros. shop are cordially invited to do so now.

FARMERS' LOANS TOTAL BIG SUM

Half Million Dollars Borrowed For Feed, Seed And Fertilizer

The federal seed loan office, located at the rear of the old postoffice building on St. John street, reports that loans this year to Ouachita parish farmers have exceeded half a million dollars, all of which has been advanced to small farmers, according to George D. McKnight, field supervisor of the emergency crop and feed loan office of the farm credit administration.

All loans were made for the purchase of feed, seed and fertilizer, and in many cases have saved small farmers from ruin. Loans are made to farm owners who are unable to secure credit through the usual banking channels.

Mr. McKnight, who has charge of seed loans in Ouachita and Caldwell parishes, declared that since the office was opened here in 1931, it has collected 98 per cent of all loans advanced to small farmers.

"The collections in Ouachita parish have been unusually good, the farmers receiving loans having kept faith with the government," Mr. McKnight said. "They have been prompt in repaying the loans and our books show that 98 per cent have been repaid."

Loans are limited to a maximum of $400 for each person, and the government assumes a lien on the year's crop. The requests for loans this year have been slightly greater than during the previous year due to the shortage of feed stuffs, it was pointed out.

Mr. McKnight has been in charge of the local office since 1934. His headquarters are at Winnsboro and his district is under the supervision of the Memphis office which has jurisdiction over the states of Tennessee, Louisiana, Arkansas, Alabama and Mississippi. He is assisted by Miss Alyce Watson, of Calhoun, who is on duty at the office every day during the seed loan season. Mr. McKnight visits the Monroe office on Tuesday and Wednesday of each week. When the seed loan office is closed, Mr. McKnight inspects the crops of farmers who negotiated loans with the agency.

CALHOUN, La., March 27.—(Special)—G. S. Manning, principal of the Calhoun High school, and his brother, Elmo Manning, were called to Kentucky to the bedside of their only aunt, Mrs. Staples, who is past 80 years of age and is gravely ill.

GOOD USED CARS AT OLDS DEALERS

Oldsmobile Official Tells Of Service Given Purchaser Of Used Car

The importance of giving to the used car buyer the same careful attention and consideration accorded the purchaser of a new car is emphasized by D. E. Ralston, vice-president and general sales manager of Oldsmobile, according to the Twin City Motor company, local Oldsmobile dealers.

In order to hold its position in the automotive market of today a successful retail organization must treat prospects for both new cars and used cars exactly alike. One is just as important as the other.

"There are three used car buyers to every buyer of a new car," Ralston said. "When you consider that there never would be any trade-in value on a car without this vast market of used car purchasers, you begin to appreciate the importance of the used car buyer.

"There are many persons who are so well satisfied with used cars that they are regular used car buyers. Since it is so necessary for manufacturers and the new-car public to have an outlet for used cars, particular pains must be taken to see that the used car buyer is a thoroughly satisfied customer.

"The day is past when used cars can be dumped on the market in a take-it-or-leave-it manner.

"Oldsmobile long has recognized that the buyers of used cars represent a permanent market, that prospects must be treated with the same careful consideration as the buyers of new cars, and that they are just as much entitled to attractive, well-conditioned automobiles."

In line with this policy Oldsmobile dealers maintain a high standard for reconditioned cars under the symbol of "Safety Tested Used Car," which means that extra care has been taken in checking brakes, tires, steering, engine and electrical system, all factors which are of utmost importance in safe and satisfactory motoring. Oldsmobile dealers, in other words, have set up a definite standard of used car quality and value represented by the safety tested definition. Only those used cars which have been reconditioned where necessary to bring them up to this standard are designated as safety tested cars. Typical examples of such cars are many 1935 and 1936 Oldsmobiles now being offered by Oldsmobile dealers everywhere.

The World's Latest Market News

COTTON

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—Trading resumed on the New Orleans cotton market today after the holiday and in a brisk two hours of dealings prices moved ahead 60 to 85 cents a bale.

While the holiday at Liverpool kept some early activity down, there was a good volume of price fixing by domestic mills.

After opening higher the market experienced a momentary dip, but a flurry of buying in the final minutes of trading lifted prices up to close at the best levels of the day.

May finished at 14.02, July 13.90, October at 13.48 and December at 13.50.

An improved labor situation in the middle west aided speculative sentiment. Weekly spinners takings of 270,000 bales lifted the cumulative total for the season to date to a figure 120,000 bales above the previous season.

Exports today were 7,193 bales.

Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 12 to 17 points.

AVERAGE MIDDLING PRICE

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(AP)—The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 14.38 cents a pound; average for the past 30 days 13.72 cents a pound.

New York

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Cotton was firm today on trade buying with coverings restricted. Firmness of grain markets attracted local covering. July sold from 13.86 to 13.96 and closed at the high with final prices 11 to 19 points higher.

Cotton futures closed very steady, 11-19 higher.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Steels and specialties gave the stock market a brighter tinge in today's brief session, a number pushing up fractions to a point and a few considerably more.

The "blue chip" Homestake Mining, responding to a proposal for a 5-for-1 split-up of the stock in order to afford it a broader market, jumped more than 35 points.

Many issues, though, were unable to get very far ahead and others were moderate losers from week-end profit selling.

It was one of the slowest days since last August, transfers approximately 550,000 shares.

Motors stocks did little or nothing as Wall Street awaited final peace terms now being discussed at the Chrysler-union conference. Hopes for a quick settlement were seen, but the financial sector was cognizant of other labor controversies either existing or threatened.

Alcohols found a following in the face of the disclosure U. S. Industrial suffered a sizeable deficit last year compared with a profit in 1935.

Most of the rails improved but Southern Pacific was under water the greater part of the time on word some of the road's employe divisions were taking a strike vote.

Bonds were mixed. Commodities tilted forward.

Among better share performers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet & Tuges, U. S. Rubber, Macy, Woolworth, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, Deere, Western Union, Anaconda, Revere Copper, Texas Corporation, Standard Oil, Santa Fe and Baltimore & Ohio.

Usually behind were Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Cerro De Pasco, Du Pont, Libby-Owens and Canada Dry. A restricted range was held by Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, North American, Goodrich, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck.

The unusual selectivity of stocks thus far in 1937 was commented upon by statisticians who pointed out that 1,186 issues listed on the exchange more than half have been unable to exceed their tops of last year. In addition it was found 20 have not bettered their highs established in January and less than one-third of the aggregate has participated in the advance of the last two months.

Commission housese reported some customers were standing aside on the thought the supreme court when it convenes Monday may hand down a ruling on the Wagner labor relations act which might give the market a substantial shove in either direction.

Recent activity of a number of the oils was reflected in the annual statement of Texas Corporation, disclosing profits equivalent to $4.10 a share compared with $1.83 in 1935. A constitution of the uptrend for principal producers and refiners was forecast by company officials.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, March 27.—(AP)—Stocks, steady; steels, specialties advance. Bonds, quiet; governments unevenly better. Curb, mixed; specialties gain. Foreign exchange, steady; franc higher. Cotton, higher; local and trade buying.

CHICAGO.—Wheat, strong; Italian buying. Corn, strong; good spot sales. Cattle, about steady. Hogs, nominally steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 27.—(AP)—May corn soared 3 7-8 cents a bushel today, within 1-8 of the limit permitted in one day, to $1.18 1-2, the highest price since August, 1927. Corn for immediate delivery jumped two to four cents as dealers had another day of heavy business in actual grain.

The sensational activity in corn overshadowed a no less spectacular rise of two cents in wheat values to eight-year peaks. Heavy buying of wheat accompanied reports that Italy had bought some United States soft Pacific coast white wheat for shipment next month and also that Italian buyers were in the market for additional quantities.

Wheat closed 1 3-4 to 2 3-8 cents above Thursday's finish, May 1.42 5-8 to 7-8, July 1.28 7-8 to 29, and corn was 2 7-8 to 4 cents higher, May 1.18 3-8 to 1-2, July 1.12 3-4 to 7-8. Oats gained 5-8 to 1 1-2, rye 1 3-8 to 2 1-2 and provisions 8 to 25 cents.

REV. E. E. HUNTSBERRY TAKEN TO LOCAL CLINIC

Rev. E. E. Huntsberry, pastor of the First Baptist church in West Monroe, was seized with illness and removed to the Vaughan-Wright-Bendel clinic Saturday.

Rev. B. F. Wallace, superintendent of the Louisiana Baptist Children's home, will occupy the pulpit of Rev. Huntsberry's church at both morning and evening service hours today. This announcement was made Saturday morning, after it had become necessary to remove Rev. Huntsberry to the hospital.

"Deadhead," the term used to designate a person who is admitted or transported on a pass, is a literal translation of the Latin phrase "caput mortuum."

DR. EMERSON TO MAKE T. B. TALK

Will Speak Monday At New Orleans In Early Diagnosis Campaign

Dr. Kendall Emerson, managing director of the National Tuberculosis association, will address the inaugural meeting of the early diagnosis campaign against tuberculosis which is being sponsored by the Tuberculosis and Public Health Association of Louisiana in New Orleans, it was announced Saturday by Dr. W. H. Seemann, president of the state association.

Dr. Emerson's address, which will be delivered at 4 p.m. Monday in the auditorium of the Tulane university medical school, will have for its subject the importance of early diagnosis through the use of modern methods.

"An early diagnosis campaign, sponsored by the National Tuberculosis association, has been carried on throughout the United States for the past nine years in the effort to control tuberculosis," Dr. Seemann stated. "This is the first year that Louisiana has joined in the general movement with a definitely planned state-wide program." Dr. Wm. H. Perkins is chairman of the committee in charge of this program.

"Throughout April and May we hope to bring the importance of early diagnosis before the public, believing that if this importance is realized, increased support will be given to a year-round effort to decrease the mortality from tuberculosis in our state and to approach the control of the disease."

RAINS DELAY FARMING WORK IN UNION PARISH

BERNICE, La., March 27.—(Special)—Unusually heavy rains in Union parish have delayed farming activities, in many instances as much as 30 days.

Considerable acreage which has been flooded by rainwater is yet to be broken for this year's crops. Little corn has been planted.

Potatoes planted a month ago are surviving the boggy condition of the soil, but the total crop will be smaller than last year, principally because a smaller acreage was planted to the crop.

SENIOR CLASS PLANNING HOLIDAY OUTING, PARTY

JENA, La., March 27.—(Special)—The senior class of Jena High school will be given a holiday on April 1 by the school officials in order that they may celebrate "April Fool's day."

April 1 is designated as a holiday each year for the seniors who observe the day with capricious dress and customs.

The seniors decided at a meeting this week that this year's holiday would be used with a party and picnic on one of the creeks near Jena. Fishing, bathing and games will be the chief amusements and food prepared by the girls will be served. After the all-day picnic, a party will be given at night, probably in the Jena community center.

Earl Doughty, the class president, appointed a committee of four members to plan the entertainments. The committee is composed of Laverne Russell, Loena Hendrix, Merle Owens and Jessie Marie Henagan.

MADISON FARMERS MAKE TOUR OF LEGUME TRACTS

TALLULAH, La., March 27.—(Special)—J. W. Bateman, director of the extension division of L. S. U., Floyd W. Spencer, assistant director, and C. W. Davis, district agent, accompanied 40 Madison parish farmers, and C. E. Hester, parish agriculture agent, on a tour of farms of the parish. The tour was planned to give the farmers an opportunity to observe the growth of various types of winter legumes and methods of cultivation, and proved to be profitable to the participants.

Lilies Glorify Churches As City Observes Easter

Flower Never More Popular Than Now

Sherrouses Off On Another Trip; Tommy Sullivan Much Honored Student At University Of Texas

By Eve Bradford

EASTER SUNDAY! Music, rite and sermon are keyed today to the note of triumph commemorating the most dramatic and sublime event in the world's history. The vernal breezes of spring waft the perfume of lilies banking altars in churches throughout the Christian world today, and bring memories of that first Easter morn when lilies sprang up and blossomed along the path trod by the Savior when He rose from His tomb. The lily, symbol of the resurrection, was adopted long ago to interpret the spirit of Easter. The lilies banking altars and glorifying homes today are just as beautiful as those that shone in the moonlight in the Garden of Gethsemane the night before the crucifixion.

Judging from the flock of lilies on sale in the florists' shops and the number of people crowding the stores last week, Easter is becoming more of a gift day than ever. Never have flowers been so popular for Easter than at the present time. Stores were crowded last week with women thumbing over the artificial flower blossoms. The girl whose beau forgot to send her fresh flowers this morning will be prepared, and nothing daunted will sally forth with a gayly colored flower in the lapel of her coat. All last week women with a feverish gleam in their eyes bought hats laden with flowers, butterflies, birds, bees and fruits. Among the various flora and fauna seen on the hat was a large white butterfly—larger than any which ever flew—adorning a big black straw hat; pansies and buttercups on a yellow straw and humming birds on the wide brim of a wine-colored straw. A bunch of lush pink roses, suggestive of the Gibson girl era, bobbed on the wide brim of a dark straw. They will all be out today, adding color and glamour to the Easter parade.

We saw Sadye Lou Peters, home for the Easter holidays, wearing the duckiest little white hat with white grosgrain streamers down the back. A grey tailleur with white gardenia in the button hole was the very essence of chic. With her, we saw a handsome visitor in the city, Edna Trichel of Shreveport, who wore a blue outfit with one of those new swing coats of the same color.

Life treks on and on. It has to. Even if persons make their plans for early sailing to France, the Mediterranean, and the North Cape. We heard casually the other day that Helen and John Sherrouse, only just returned from a steamer trip to New York City, would be among those present when the Rotarians sail for Paris in May. Endeavoring to verify the statement, we rang the Sherrouse home yesterday only to find that she and John were off on another little giro to Culver to spend Easter with their son. We were told by one of Helen's best friends that she quite succumbed to the glamorous literature describing Paris now decked like a jewel in a luxurious case, for the exposition. Fifty nations will send to Paris the choicest samples of the products of their various races and the whole city will sparkle and gleam and resound to music as never before in the history of the world.

Home for the Easter season is Louise Gray, from L. S. U. The B. S. degree she receives in June in library science is equal to a M. A. degree in any other course. All of which means that Louise is a most ambitious person and will go a long way in her chosen profession. She received her B. A. degree from L. S. U. last year.

We heard such interesting things the other day about Tommy Sullivan, home from the University of Texas for the spring vacation. During the past year he has been made a member of Tau Beta Phi, national engineering honorary fraternity, and Phi Lambda Epsilon, national chemical engineering honorary fraternity. In fact he has had enough honors heaped upon him to quite turn his head. That, however, is impossible, as he possesses a level head and quite the nicest personality of any young man we know of.

Bert Cooley not only requests but pleads for public protection in safeguarding the wild flowers that bloom on the hillsides near Pine Top where the new sanatorium stands on its lofty perch. The hills have been beautified by Mr. Cooley—planted with violets and verbena in the midst of wild honeysuckle, the perfume of which drenches the air at this time. His labor will be all in vain, however, if vandals continue to mutilate the flowering trees and uproot the verbena and other wild flowers. The mere thought of such desecration makes us wish for some special form of punishment such as the Spanish inquisition for such men and women who plunder and destroy the property beautified by others.

This afternoon why not motor out to Adams street and hear a wonderful chorus of colored singers sing "The Seven Last Words of Christ." Melody and harmony and great depth of sincerity mark the presentation of this cantata which our negro friends have dedicated to Blanche Oliver, who has written a number of negro spirituals and concerned herself with philanthropies benefitting the negroes of this city.

Miss Barbara Quigles, Miss Dorothy Bell Quigles, Miss Ailene Quigles and Miss Sally Nell Quigles of Shreveport, will be the guests this week of their aunt, Mrs. William Quigles. Several social affairs have been planned in their honor, outstanding being Mrs. J. L. Keenan's luncheon at the Virginia hotel on Thursday. Mrs. Quigles will include them as honor guests when she entertains for Miss Melba Liner at Lakeside Country club on Wednesday.

Special Easter Music Planned In Churches

Programs At Grace Episcopal And First Methodist Will Be Unusually Elaborate Today

"How many of us ever stop to think
Of music as a wondrous magic link
With God; taking sometimes the place of prayer,
When words have failed us 'neath the weight of care.
Music, that knows no country, race,
or creed;
But gives to each according to his need."

Ever since that first Easter morn when the angel of the Lord descended from Heaven and came and rolled away the stone from the sepulcher, there has been a song in the heart of the people.

"Christ the Lord Is Risen Today" is the song on the lips of every church-goer today. Especially beautiful will be the music at Grace Episcopal church where the Holy Eucharist will be celebrated this morning at 11 o'clock. The choral numbers from Gounod's St. Cecelia are Gloria Tibi, Sursum Corda, Sanctus and Benedictus Qui Venit, Gloria in Excelis. The offertory will be "This Glad Easter Day," a traditional Norwegian carol.

Mr. Thomas Downs will sing "Agnus Dei." Other soloists are Mrs. Clyde Paine and Mr. John Winkler. The processional will be Bach's beautiful number, "At the Lamb's High Feast We Sing." The recessional will feature Sullivan's, "Come Ye Faithful."

Mr. Roger Frisbie will preside at the organ, assisted by Mr. Lowery Jefferson.

A distinct feature of the morning service will be the Easter sermon delivered by the rector, Rev. E. F. Hayward.

At the Methodist church tonight at 8 o'clock, Benjamin Loveland's glorious cantata "Rabboni" will be presented by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Clyde Sanders with Mrs. John Sholars as organist.

Members of the choir are: Sopranos—Eleanor Bennett Mrs. Clyde, Sanders; alto—Thelma Hargus; baritone—Jack May; tenor—Conrad Cage, Harold Riggs; soprano—Eleanor Bennett, Polly Cole, Mrs. A. M. Doehla, Mrs. C. V. Sanders, Eloise Temple, Mrs. Wayne Wamsley, Mary Jeannette Ziegler; alto—Mrs. Charles Bennett, Dorothy Mae Burge, Thelma Hargus, Mrs. H. H. Howell, Mrs. C. L. Moore, Jr., Marie Hunt, Ruth Morris, Frances Smith, Mildred Trichel; tenor—Conrad Cage, Otho Cagle, Harold Riggs, M. D. Swayze, Buddy Butler, Joe Finch, Marvin Gleason; bass—Wayne Benson, Frank Strohm, Frank Mullen, Jack May, Sam Walker, Wayne Wamsley, Chester Bolin and Billy Gannaway.

Art Exhibit On Display Today

The exhibition of North American children's paintings, which were classed as a "new fold art" in America in a criticism by E. F. Barnard in the New York Times, will be open to the education of this community at Barkdull Faulk school from 2 to 6 o'clock this afternoon.

More and more the schools are permitting and encouraging free experimentation by the children with brush and paints. Teachers find that the picture made of expression requires more detailed and definite knowledge than verbal expression, and that ability to express grows with practice.

Quoting the New York Times about the paintings being exhibited in the local school: "The fact that overwhelms the observer is that we have young artists of such virtuosity apparently everywhere in our midst. One comes out of the show with a new deference for the child-in-the-street, who sees life so much more sharply and rhythmically than does the custom-bound adult. The cherishing, nurturing, and maturing of this faculty through childhood and even sometimes through adolescence is one of the major triumphs of so-called progressive education. And this sort of art education has been promoted more extensively in the United States perhaps than in other countries save Mexico and Russia, where juvenile folk-art is cultivated by the national governments. Few public school systems here have undertaken it since it implies a complete revolution of the traditional methods of art study."

Miss Louise Moore, art director of the Monroe city schools, is planning in cooperation with Misses Bethea and Moffett of the art department of Louisiana Polytechnic institute to get the use of the children's paintings for the Southeastern Arts association convention in Raleigh, N. C., April 8, 9 and 10, where there will be approximately five hundred art teachers in attendance, discussing such topics as "Art in Democratic Living," and "Art in Industry."

A letter to Miss Bethea from the convention committee has this to say of the pictures on exhibition at Barkdull Faulk school: "Please investigate immediately the possibilities of bringing this exhibit. I feel sure that an opportunity to see what is being done in the progressive and said-to-be 'integrated' curriculum, where they claim to put no particular emphasis on art quality but all on art expression."

Mrs. Penelope Matthews, chairman of art committee of the school P.-T. A., has planned so that members of the committee are present at all exhibitions of the pictures. The Fine Arts club and the Sketch club, whose members are patrons of the exhibit, are showing a keen interest in this exhibition of children's artistic expression. Mr. A. E. Phillips, director of teacher training at Louisiana Polytechnic institute, has been an interested visitor, and is making plans to get the pictures for exhibit.

The children of Barkdull Faulk school, inspired by the work of other children, are active with easel and paints in school halls, in class rooms and on school grounds.

The North American children's pictures will be shown in Barkdull Faulk school auditorium Monday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 o'clock. A musical program will be presented as follows:

America, school band.

Piano solo, "Falling Waters," Yvonne Cargile.

"In the Meadow," school band.

Vocal selections, seventh grade glee club.

Piano duet, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," Patty Lee Padgett, Betty Sue Jones.

Piano solo, "When the Poppies Bloom Again," Mildred Gibson.

Clarinet duet, Luther Howell and Bruce Bairnsfather.

Cornet duet, Ralph Irving and Jack McCook.

Piano solo, "At the Dancing Lesson," "Golden Star Valse," Ralph Irving.

"Trumpeters March," school band.

The P.-T. A. art committee has planned the evening exhibition with the program of music in order that adults may have an opportunity of seeing the unusual exhibit.

Miss Sybil Renaud, state chairman of the private duty section of the American Nurses' association, will leave for New Orleans on Monday to attend the convention of the southern division of this association. Miss Renaud will be numbered among the hostesses entertaining the delegates.

Mr. Faye Bell of St. Paul, Minn., Mrs. Joseph Ryan of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mrs. C. B. Wesley of Baton Rouge, are enjoying a visit with their mother and their brother, Mayor C. C. Bell and Mrs. Bell of West Monroe.

Two Conventions Scheduled

Auxiliary Of Medical Group Plans Program

Local Women Engaged In City Beautification Campaign In Preparation For Garden Club Meeting

April showers will not only bring May flowers but a perfect deluge of conventions in which club women of this city will take an active part.

Two state conventions, one in April and one in May, will bring a galaxy of prominent women to Monroe. The women's auxiliary to the Louisiana State Medical society heads the list of April conventions. With reservations already pouring in, the event promises to be one of the most interesting in many a year. Mrs. J. P. Brown, local president, and members of her committee will endeavor to give the visiting delegates a generous sample of the brand of hospitality for which Monroe is famed. A boating party on the Ouachita will be one of the highlights of the three-day session.

The meeting of the state Federated Garden clubs in May is now engaging the interest of the local club with city-wide beautification a stepping stone in making the hostess city a beauty spot for garden lovers who will arrive here from every section of the state.

Several delegates from the federated music clubs of this city will attend the Louisiana Federation of Music clubs convention in Franklin April 1-3.

The convention will mark the tenth annual meeting of the music clubs of Louisiana and will be distinguished by an excellent musical program. Foremost on this program will be the singing of a mass chorus, composed of choral groups from all parts of the state, under the direction of Mr. Ferdinand Dunkley of New Orleans, state choral chairman. Four of the numbers which the chorus will sing are the work of American composers, one by Mr. Dunkley himself, and another by Mrs. J. A. Bumstead of Franklin, president of the state federation.

Shreveport will be host this year to the annual convention of Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers, which will meet April 15-17. Mrs. L. A. Mailhes, chairman of finance and budget, is program chairman for the convention. Mrs. Albert L. Smith of Winnfield, state president, will preside. Some of the state's most prominent educators are scheduled to appear on the programs, among them Dr. Pierce Cline of Centenary college; Dr. Albert Fredericks of Louisiana State Normal college, and Dr. Gustaf Freden of Louisiana Polytechnic institute. Dr. Murphey P. Rodgers of Baton Rouge, director of the curriculum revision study which is being made by the state department of education, will present the findings of this study in an address entitled, "The New Curriculum Study for Public Schools." Mrs. Harney S. Bogan, seventh vice-president of Louisiana congress, and Mrs. Scott Wood, past president of Arkansas congress, will lead panel discussions on "Objectives of Education."

Interest surrounds the nomination of Mrs. Mailhes, past president of Louisiana congress, for the office of eighth vice-president of the national congress. She will be one of the 13 new officers to be elected to the national body at its meeting in Richmond, Va., May 3-7. The region which she will represent is composed of Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana and comprises a membership of 160,000. This is the first time that a Louisianian has been honored by selection for the national board.

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, president of the fifth district Federation of Women's clubs, announces a meeting in Lake Providence on April 3.

Mrs. Tisdale is anticipating one of the most worthwhile and most interesting meetings in the history of the fifth district with such brilliant speakers as Mrs. R. H. Agate, state president of the Louisiana Federated Club Women; Miss Essae Culver of the Louisiana library commission; Mrs. Dr. Virginia Webb of New Orleans, commander of the "War on Cancer," Mrs. C. E. Hester of Tallulah, member of the national board, and Mrs. M. E. Girard, state music chairman, taking an active part on the day's program.

Original Pilgrimage Will Start Today

Considerable confusion on the part of the public generally has resulted from the two garden pilgrimages in Natchez this year. In answer to requests to clear up one point in particular at this time, the original pilgrimage was started six years ago by Mrs. Balfour Miller, a member of one of the oldest Mississippi families and whose home, Hope Farm, was built in 1755.

The original pilgrimage starts today, Easter Sunday, and will continue through the week. It will feature the opening for the first time of the old inn on Ellicott's hill after the passing of a century. Built during the Spanish regime, this inn has been closed to the public since 1810.

Aaron Burr and Hermann Blennerhassett held secret conclaves in this ancient building with its outside stairways and quaint hipped roof. It was built prior to 1795, and its careful restoration has been a major project of the Natchez Garden club.

In 1797 George Washington's personal friend, Andrew Ellicott, was sent to Natchez, then the farthest outpost of the southwest, to determine the boundary between Spanish territory and the young United States. In defiance of Spanish authority he raised the Stars and Stripes on this hill and when ordered to lower the flag said: "It can stay there till it rots but I will never haul it down."

The pageant next Tuesday at the old inn, which marks its rededication, will commemorate this stirring event.

In addition to the many stately mansions shown to visitors on past pilgrimages, Mrs. Joseph F. Dixon, president of the Natchez Garden club, announces that the club is this year augmenting its tour with a group of charming old-world manor houses never before opened to the public. Outstanding among these are Propinquity, Melmont, Edgewood, Mount Repose and Cottage Gardens.

The distinction of Natchez lies in her houses of colonial and antebellum periods, standing as a tribute to the culture of the young and adventurous men of America who left the east to build in the wild southwest, estates that are an architectural study today and an analysis of their dreams.

Many of the early settlers of Natchez were educated abroad and one may see the elaborate French furniture, rich brocade, crystal chandeliers and fine china, brought here by the wealthy land barons of long ago, which have passed down to their decendants for over a century. Mingled with the French hand carved rosewood, are many pieces of dainty Hepplewhite, Sheraton, Duncan Phyfe, mirrors, bronze lamps, paintings by Sully, Aububon and others. A visit to Natchez during Easter week will bring a rich reward for those who love the old, for Natchez contains many priceless relics of a golden age that is gone.

Quaint Customs Observed Easter

Many customs, beautiful and quaint, have been, and still are, observed in many countries on Easter. In most of them the "bunny" plays a part today with children in every section of the country scampering over the grass in search of the brilliantly colored eggs carefully stowed away by their good friend "Peter Rabbit."

His attention is not entirely devoted to children, however. Adults receive their gifts in the form of greeting cards, flowers, and candy. Thus with the rabbit's successful aid Easter has become an institution. In spite of commercialization Easter remains fundamentally a religious holiday and is observed as an expression of joy because Christ rose from the dead. Churches have special services for the closing of the forty days of Lent. White flowers were used to decorate church altars as a sign of purity and light. Today the Easter lily is recognized as the flower that symbolizes the holy day.

Easter in merrie old England, as well as other countries, was a royal or at least noble prerogative lavishly celebrated with feasts, prayers, and gift giving. Its festive derivation was the Hebrew "pesach," meaning Passover, considered by the first Christians as a continuation of the feast of the Passover at which time the paschal lamb, symbol of Christ, was sacrificed.

In old Russia everyone, even the tiniest baby, received eggs at Easter. The czar and nobility gave gold eggs studded with rubies, diamonds and sapphires. Examples of these bejewelled gifts now are in collection.

The peasants pierced hen eggs, at both ends, with a pin, blew out the contents and painted them with colors and designs as brilliant as the gems of the wealthy. Every nation has its special feast day, such as Noel in France or Thanksgiving in America, but no feast day was celebrated more gayly, brilliantly and simply than Easter in Russia.

The Easter we know has come a long way from the first one, but it is still a holy festival observed in many branches of the Christian churches to commemorate Christ's resurrection.

Vicksburg Gardens Opened To Public

Time marches on. The world grows more beautiful day by day, and greater each day is the desire for outdoor jaunts. The restlessness that comes with the first days of spring creates a desire for the wide open spaces, new sights, new faces and a complete change from the hum-drum life of winter.

Why not enjoy the 70-mile drive over to Vicksburg, Miss., today and visit the gardens now open to the public free of charge, sponsored by the Vicksburg Garden club.

"The South in the Spring" is a slogan nowadays for an increasingly large army of tourists who like to recapture for a few days, the spirit of the ante-bellum era and to reconstruct, from the fascinating remnants that still are left, its pre-war civilization.

What the fossil means to the geologist and the artifact to the archeologist, the old plantation homes and antique furniture mean to these visitors. They are not confined in classification to southerners imbued with sectional pride. Many come from northern and western states, anxious to conjure up for themselves, as writers have attempted to depict for them, that dignified and leisurely life unknown to the present busy, hurrying world.

Such an opportunity is offered annually in Vicksburg, whose Easter pilgrimage events fall between March 28 and April 3. Here is the battlefield, almost in its original form, where the fate of the old south was sealed in the War Between the States. When this city, besieged to the point of starvation, finally fell, the Confederacy was cut in two and small hope for southern victory remained.

The Vicksburg Garden club, sponsor of the pilgrimage, has planned a tour of the historic town; a visit to an old home where a cannon ball from one of Grant's gunboats still lies embedded in its wall and where a high-ceilinged ballroom bespeaks the dancing and flirting that went on in the shadow of tragedy; a cave where families sought refuge during the shelling of the town; a view of the Mississippi river from old Fort Nogales, the original site of Vicksburg; and a display of family heirlooms, antiques and other treasures.

The town tour will start at Hotel Vicksburg and stops will be made at the Klein home, the Hommel home and at the Flowers' gardens.

The park tour, conducted free of charge, will go through an interesting section of the National Military park. The tour will be through the National cemetery to the Illinois State memorial, back over Fort hill to Hotel Vicksburg.

Those not desiring to make the park tour will have the option of another tour, which will be to the United States Hydraulic laboratory, returning by way of the Iowa State memorial on Union avenue to Hotel Vicksburg.

The following gardens will be open to visitors during the week:

Mrs. U. G. Flowers, 2011 Cherry street.

Mrs. Rundle Smith, 2315 Cherry street.

Mrs. O. W. Catchings, 1407 Chambers street.

Mrs. Louis Switzer, 2605 Drummond street.

Mrs. Louis P. Cashman, 3208 Drummond street.

Mrs. George Sudduth, 3220 Drummond street.

Mrs. Charles E. Crook, Drummond and Mulvihill streets.

All Saints' college, Confederate avenue.

Each night during the week beginning Monday and up to and including Sunday, April 4, the show boat will hold forth on the city water front, presenting "The Drunkard," under the auspices of the Little Theatre.

Spirituals on the river front each evening during the week will be a distinct feature.

Efrem Zimbalist Gay Companion

When he is not on the concert stage, Efrem Zimbalist, the well known violinist who is coming here for a concert Tuesday night is as casually gay a companion as one could wish for. He likes good cigars, vintage wines (of which he has a delicate assortment), Chinese dressing gowns, fine Japanese silk shirts. He wears good clothes tailored in the European fashion, leaning to browns and blues which are becoming to his crisp curly brown hair, gray at the temples, and his blue eyes under scrubby blond eyebrows. He wears handsome jewelry, sparingly, and buys precious jades for his wife. He likes to eat in "dose leetle places" if he must go out; but occasionally "I feel like sahmt'ing nice tonight." Then Sherry's is in order. He likes his home best of all, is a radiant and convincing host. A winter evening at his New York house in Turtle Bay may begin with two hours of chamber music and the Bach double concerto and end at dawn over a double-stakes poker game in the dining room. A summer morning at Fishers Island starts with five hours of earnest practicing, when he walks literally miles on his studio floor, and ends in a luncheon-table wrangle over brassies and bluefish.

"Zimmie" (the violinist's nickname among his friends) has a passion for bargains and for collecting things, and for gambling, which has entertained his friends and harassed his family. He listens attentively to those who have anything—from antiques to gold-mine stock—to sell, punctuating their earnest sales talks with an awestruck "Naw!" His broad head comes forward on his shoulders, and his usually placid eyes open excitedly. Once it was auctions, up and down Broadway and the boardwalk at Atlantic City. Most recently and most seriously, it is first editions. That started in Australia, where he picked up a few English items "cheap." Now there is nothing cheap about it at all. He will buy any valuable edition of any book, but prefers modern limited editions. He almost perished of emotion during the Jerome Kern sale.

Miss Sadye Lou Peters, who is a member of the Starks High school faculty, is spending the Easter holidays with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. L. Peters. Miss Peters has as her house-guest, Miss Edna Trichel of Shreveport.

Miss Melba Liner Center Of Several Interesting Events During Past Week

Wooten Home Scene Of Attractive Tea

Hostesses Honoring Bride-To-Be Include Mesdames Keenan, Henry, Farmer, Dryburgh, Miss Farmer

Miss Melba Liner selected one of her loveliest trousseau models, a jade green chiffon with diaphanous draperies, for the charming tea in her honor with Mrs. John Wooten, Mrs. George Goodwin and Mrs. Stanley Wyatt as hostesses at the Wooten home last Thursday.

Standing with Miss Liner in the flower banked reception suite to welcome the guests who called during the late afternoon hours were the hostesses and Mrs. Virginia Hammond of Memphis. The latter wore a distinctive white lace model. Mrs. Wooten wore on this occasion a horizon blue mousseline model and Mrs. Goodwin wore a lovely London grey lace frock. Mrs. Wyatt wore a smart model of Madelon blue moire. All wore blossoms either tucked under the chin or in their hair.

Mrs. J. C. Liner, in yellow lace, and Mrs. Nathan Gaston, in cerise moire, presided over the tea and coffee urns placed at either end of the long, lace covered table in the dining room. Yellow, pink and purple snapdragons and graceful sprays of bridalwreath formed the central decor. Silver trays laden with luscious edibles were passed among the guests.

When Miss Liner stood in Mrs. J. L. Keenan's attractive suite at the Virginia hotel for cocktails on Thursday she wore a beige wool suit with accessories of beige.

Mrs. Keenan served the guests, members of Miss Liner's bridal entourage, a delectable array of canapes and hors d'oeuvres before they went on to Mrs. DeWitt Henry's luncheon in the private dining room, where the table was covered with point Venice lace doilies and centered with a flaring Venetian bowl overflowing with rose-pink sweet peas. At Miss Liner's cover was placed an exquisite corsage of Talisman roses and a handsome piece of silver in the Chantilly pattern.

A four-course luncheon, featuring several special dishes, was served to Miss Liner, Mrs. Virginia Hammond, Mrs. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. George Goodwin, Mrs. Brisco Trousdale, Mrs. Nathan Gaston, Mrs. J. C. Liner and the hostess.

At the Frances hotel on Saturday a luncheon of beautiful appointment brought Miss Liner and her bridal party together in intimate, charming manner in the private dining room, with Mrs. Arthur Dryburgh, Mrs. Frank Farmer and Miss Sarabeth Farmer the hostesses.

A few moments of conviviality were enjoyed when aperitifs were passed just before luncheon was served. Miss Liner, wearing a henna wool model of charming simplicity, was the central figure.

The oblong luncheon table had for floral adornment a crystal receptacle of unusual design overflowing with rose colored camellias, blue phlox and calendulas. An exquisite corsage of roses and valley lilies graced the cover reserved for Miss Liner.

A delicious five-course luncheon featuring several specialties, was served to Miss Liner, Mrs. J. C. Liner, Mrs. Brisco Trousdale, Mrs. Nathan Gaston, Mrs. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. George Goodwin, Mrs. Virginia Hammond, Miss Marie Collens, Miss Lela Germany and the three hostesses.

Mrs. Hyle Gives Bridge-Luncheon

Mrs. George Hyle's bridge-luncheon brought together a delightful company of visitors and their hostesses, last week.

The tables, covered with handsome linens and silver appointed, were placed in the reception suite for the serving of the delectable three-course luncheon. A profusion of beautiful spring flowers formed a decorative setting.

Bridge was introduced later and at the conclusion of the games beautiful linen breakfast sets were presented for high scores at each table.

Enjoying this gracious hospitality were: Mrs. Herman Wesel of Mobile, Ala., Miss Lydia Frazier of Ellwood, Ind., Mrs. Pendelton, Watson of Birmingham, Ala., Mrs. W. E. Lathram of Tuscaloosa, Mrs. John Frazier of Ellwood, Ind., Mrs. Charles Reid, Mrs. W. E. Reardon, Mrs. H. H. Reardon, Mrs. John Lathram, Mrs. Maurice Frazier and Mrs. Catherine Brooder of Sheridan, Wyo.

Friends extend their sincere sympathy to Mrs. E. J. Burroughs of West Monroe, in the loss of her mother, Mrs. Minnie Bryce, whose passing on occurred in Shreveport last week.

Evening Gown's A Work Of Art

There's accent on youth in every detail of the elegant gown of imported white taffeta—the boufant skirt, the simple lines of the very basque bodice, the generous decollete. It is made doubly lovely through the hand-painting of the graceful flower sprays that brighten the luxurious texture of the fabric. Jade green crystal balls are used to button the bodice. Georgia Tucker P.-T. A. Holds Varied Program

The Parent-Teacher association of the Georgia Tucker school held an enthusiastic meeting Thursday afternoon in the school auditorium.

Fourth grade pupils entertained with songs, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Gaushell.

Herbert Dickard, as guest speaker, talked on the subject, "Safety of Heating System in Schools." He said in part that "many roads to cemeteries and sanitariums were built on good intentions and that the catastrophe at New London was caused by false economy." He stressed the importance of parents insisting that all future schools be not only fire proof and storm proof, but explosion proof.

Mrs. William Harper, president, appointed Mrs. Aylmer Montgomery as chairman of the maintenance committee, together with Mrs. Elmer Richards, Mrs. Dean Selig, Mrs. M. M. Cragon, Mrs. O. M. Grisham and Mrs. T. H. Ewing, to further contact Mr. Dickard and Mayor Bernstein regarding safety of school heating system.

Miss Louise Moore, teacher of art, gave a talk on "Art in Public Schools." She told of the children's art exhibit on display at the Barkdull Faulk school and invited everyone to attend.

A short business session followed. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. B. B. Handy, and approved. The treasurer's report and a report from the social service committee were given by Mrs. W. M. Greenwell and approved.

Mrs. Courtney Oliver, as chairman of the nominating committee, reported the following names as officers for next year: President, Mrs. Thomas Sandridge; first vice-president, Mrs. Gordon Cummings; second vice-president, Mrs. Elmer Richards; third vice-president, Mrs. Seymour Soloman; secretary, Mrs. B. B. Handy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. T. Ewing; historian, Mrs. Dewey Kramer; treasurer, Mrs. Tom Hoskins; social service committee, Mrs. F. C. Bennett; assistant, Mrs. Roy Hale. A motion was made that all officers be unanimously elected by acclamation. The motion carried.

Delegates and alternates to the state convention to be held in Shreveport in April were named as follows: Mrs. T. J. Sandridge, Mrs. W. M. Harper, Mrs. Gordon Cummings, Mrs. B. B. Handy, Mrs. W. King, Mrs W M. Greenwell, Mrs. Tom Hoskins and Miss Myrtle Rodgers.

Miss Rodgers gave a short talk on curriculum and the social service work that is being carried on in the school. Compliments of a very praiseworthy nature were given the school nurse, Miss Fares, for work done by her for underprivileged children.

After room count, the meeting adjourned.

Officers Elected By Crosley P.-T. A.

Officers for the coming school year were elected at a meeting of the Crosley P.-T. A. during the past week. They are as follows: Mrs. Harry Burdeaux, president; Mrs. B. A. McKenzie, first vice-president; Mrs. W. S. Cole, second vice-president; Mrs. Peter Brooks, secretary; Mrs. Amos Hood, treasurer.

A program given by pupils of the second grade was presented. Folk dances and whistling numbers were featured.

A hat parade by the girls of the same grade furnished unique amusement, because of the manner in which they gave suggestions in spring millinery. Louise Gayle McDonald presented a military dance number, followed by a story of the Indian war dance by Miss Mary Grace Lawn.

After the story, Miss Lawn played the music which had been composed to accompany the story.

Another interesting contribution to the program were two solos, "Mother McCree," and the "Tumble-Down Shack of Athlone, rendered by Frank Mullins, student in the music department of Northeast Center.

G. W. Welch, principal of the school, introduced the safety program and the boys who are being trained in safety patrol work were presented, wearing badges and belts bearing the safety insignia.

Mrs. J. A. Rainbolt's room received the award for the largest attendance of mothers.

St. Matthew's P.-T. A. Officers Elected

Officers of the Parent-Teacher association of St. Matthew's Parochial school were elected recently at a meeting of the organization.

The officers are: Mrs. M. P. Kutz, president; Mrs. Charles Guerriero, first vice-president; Mrs. C. C. Burkett, second vice-president; Mrs. Westlake, recording and corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. J. DuBos, treasurer; Mrs. Louis Breard, summer round-up chairman.

Delegates appointed to attend the state P.-T. A. convention to be held at Shreveport are Mrs. Paul Keller, president pro tem, and Mrs. Kutz, president-elect.

The unit's meeting was opened with prayer dedicated to the victims of the school explosion at New London, Tex.

A letter from Mrs. B. K. Dorman of Shreveport, chairman of the by-laws committee of the state organization, was read at the meeting, and revision of the unit's by-laws as suggested in the letter was voted. A copy of the revised by-laws was sent to the state president, Mrs. Albert Smith of Winnfield.

The secretary, Mrs. E. J. BeDoit, gave a report of council and executive meetings. The membership committee chairman, Mrs. Charles Guerriero, reported a ten per cent increase in membership.

The safety chairman, Mrs. Louis F. Rolleigh, awarded one dollar to Hubert Breard for the best essay from a student of the high school on the subject of "Safety." Mike Kokinos was awarded a dollar for the best safety poster. The winning essay and poster were sent to Mrs. G. B. Wilson, state safety chairman.

Prior to the calling of the meeting to order, Mrs. Lois Gray, supervisor of nurses of the Ouachita Parish Health unit, gave a talk on the importance of the summer round-up, which involves physical examinations of children of pre-school age. Mrs. Gray said the health unit would give close cooperation to the round-up program in Monroe, West Monroe and the parish.

Several songs were rendered by the Mother Singers, directed by Mrs. Charles Gaushell, with Mrs. R. F. McCook at the piano.

Singers Practice For Convention

The P.-T. A. Mother Singers' chorus met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. William Watson, 2607 South Grand street, for their regular rehearsal. An interesting hour was spent practicing choruses to be sung at the state convention in Shreveport, and discussing plans for the trip. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Fred Keller.

Those attending were Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Fred Keller, Mrs. Charles Gaushell, Mrs. R. F. McCook, Mrs. Ben Stern, Mrs. Roy Bailey, Mrs. C. C. Lindley, Mrs. Cooper, Mrs. M. P. Kutz, Mrs. C. J. DuBose, Mrs. C. L. Mengis, Mrs. L. F. Gremillion, Mrs. W. Perkins, Mrs. C. N. Brazzell, Mrs. T. Quiga, Mrs. Spatafora, Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Harry Stein, Mrs. D. L. Cash, Mrs. B. H. Rust, Mrs. K. D. Lenard and Mrs C. P Guerriero

Lecture Given By Dr. Tiebout

In the fifth lecture of the series on "Understanding and Training the Child," Dr. Carolyn Tiebout, of the Louisiana State university, continued the discussion of the child's emotional development begun in the preceding lecture on "Anger and Jealousy." "Fear and the Inferiority Complex" was the topic of last week's lecture, given Thursday afternoon in the Central school auditorium under the sponsorship of the Twin City P.-T. A. council.

After a brief review of the general nature of emotion and of the physiological changes occurring in emotion, Dr. Tiebout discussed the characteristics of fear. She described fear as a primary emotion, that is, as one which may be aroused in the infant. The fear-arousing stimuli for the infant were listed as follows: Sudden and loud noises, removal of support, and pain. Other fears, such as those of the dark, of lightning, of snakes or worms, or of mice, which parents often think are inherited, are learned in the environment in which the child is placed, the speaker pointed out.

Fears are learned in two ways, the speaker stated, namely, through conditioning and through examples shown by older persons. The development of fear through its use by the adult as a means of controlling the child was discussed. While such a fear of the policeman, doctor, bogie man or other individual offers a tempting and convenient short cut to control of the young child, the speaker pointed out that the fear developed in such cases is probably more injurious to the child than the behavior which the child is exhibiting.

In training the child to meet actual dangers, such as those caused by street traffic, the speaker emphasized the importance of teaching caution rather than fear. In distinguishing between these two, she described fear as an emotional reaction and caution as an intellectual reaction. She quoted one authority as stating that fear in its extreme form is more likely to hinder than to help in larger situations of today.

The possible arousal of fear in certain children by stories and motion pictures involving fear or horror elements was discussed. It was suggested that whenever a child has night terrors or shows marked fear during the day the parent should try to determine the stimuli that produce it and make arrangements to protect the child.

The following were presented as methods of removing fears which the child had already developed: First, reconditioning or attempting to associate pleasure with the situation the child has come to fear; second, social imitation or example set by other children of his own age who do not show the fear; third, distracting or diverting the child's attention; fourth, verbal appeal or talking to the child about the feared object and presenting it in as favorable a light as posthe feared object and ETAOIN SHRD sible; fifth, the child's talking about the fear to a sympathetic adult.

An inferiority complex, Dr. Tiebout pointed out, may result from physical, mental or social inferiorities, either real or imagined. A child suffering from a feeling of inferiority may try to balance this feeling by "showing off," "bullying" or withdrawing from the group and convincing himself that he is superior to others. In closing, the speaker emphasized the necessity of understanding the "why" of the behavior of the child who has an inferiority feeling and of helping such a child to gain a feeling of security through encouraging him in activities in which he can achieve real results and feel equal to others in the group.

Miss Bristow To Deliver Lecture On April 5th

Noted Writer Will Give Talk In City

Will Be Accompanied To Monroe In Connection With Book Revues Given By Miss Duchein

When you have read "Deep Summer" by Gwen Bristow of New Orleans, now in the hands of the publishers to be released this month, you will be keenly interested in the appearance of Miss Bristow in this city on April 5.

Miss Bristow will be accompanied to Monroe by Miss Annette Duchein, who has been conducting a series of book reviews in the state under the auspices of the Louisiana State University Book circle. She will describe amusing facts that her research unearthed and will trace, for book circle members, the development of a novel.

"Deep Summer," which will appear in book stores this month, is a story of Louisiana and is one of a trilogy which will give in fictional form the history and development of the state from 1774 until the present. Miss Bristow is working on the second book in the series.

In addition to her new novel Miss Bristow is co-author with her husband, Bruce Manning, of a number of mystery novels. One of these was dramatized into the successful Broadway play, "The Ninth Guest."

Daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Louis Bristow of New Orleans, Miss Bristow has lived in Hollywood for the past several years.

Members of the Book Circle will be permitted to bring guests to hear Miss Bristow's lecture, Miss Duchein said. This is being done, she explained, in order to give additional Louisiana residents an opportunity to hear the talks. Women living in nearby towns will also be permitted to attend the lectures, she explained.

In calling attention to the lectures Miss Duchein said: "I feel that the L. S. U. Book circle has a great privilege in this opportunity to hear an extremely interesting and vital speaker. Miss Bristow's novel will interest all Louisianians and all those interested in Louisiana and in good fiction."

Plans are being made for next season's work by the book circle, Miss Duchein said. A series of club programs will be furnished to clubs desiring them and mimeographed weekly book reviews will be supplied to women in towns where the book circle does not meet.

Publicity Chairman's Work To Be Exhibited

A record book of publicity obtained for the Neville High school Parent-Teacher association through the efforts of Mrs. Nell Grigsby, publicity chairman of the unit and pioneer P.-T. A. worker in Monroe, will be exhibited at the state P.-T. A. convention to be held at Shreveport April 15, 16 and 17.

Mrs. Grigsby has experience as a newspaper writer and editor, and also has written for various other publications. With this background, she has earned a record as a P.-T. A. publicity chairman that has won the commendation of members of her unit.

The exhibiting of the record book of Mrs. Grigsby's work, at the state convention, will provide an example of the success a publicity chairman may attain by handling her task with zeal and enthusiasm, according to members of her unit.

In recognition of the years of service devoted to the educational activities of Monroe, the publicity record book of the Neville Parent-Teacher association has been dedicated to E. L. Neville, superintendent of the city schools.

Mr. Neville, who has been connected with the city school system for the past 36 years, came to Monroe in 1901 from North Carolina, and served as assistant principal of the city school, later becoming superintendent of the entire system.

During his service as superintendent, the system has grown from one building with six hundred pupils until today when it comprises six buildings and approximately three thousand students.

The half million dollar high school constructed a few years ago at the edge of Forsythe park was named for him.

The publicity record book, which contains clippings of all newspaper accounts regarding the activities of the Neville P.-T. A., is being compiled by Mrs. H. F. Felix, who is a member of the publicity committee.

Mrs. Felix, who has compiled a number of record books, has, in the past, had several books on exhibition at several national P.-T. A. conventions.

Hobbs Auxiliary Conducts Meeting

The regular meeting of the Ladies' auxiliary, Rodney J. Hobbs post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, was held Thursday night, March 25, at the club rooms on DeSiard street, with 22 members present. President Lena M. Morrow presided.

The transfer of Mrs. Lila Mae Montcalm of the Boone-McDowell auxiliary of Bastrop was presented, by a vote of the auxiliary accepted, and Mrs. Montcalm was welcomed as a member of the Hobbs auxiliary.

Mrs. Christine G. Brown, hospital chairman for the auxiliary, reported packages of chewing gum and cigars and cigarettes were passed out to the veterans at the hospital at Alexandria by the department chairman, Mrs. Mildred Duggan.

A letter was read from Elbert H. Miller, commander of the Hobbs post, in which he praised the auxiliary for its cooperation and assistance and invited them to participate in the meeting Thursday night, April 1, celebrating the seventh birthday of the post.

Husbands of auxiliary members and wives of post members who do not belong to the organization are extended a cordial invitation to be present at this celebration.

Members of neighboring posts and auxiliaries have been given invitations and it is expected that a large crowd will be present. The first objective of the auxiliary is to assist their post in any work that they may undertake and they are very proud of the progress made in the past seven years by their parent organization. Mrs. Mildred Duggan and Ben J. Rosenthal, the department hospital chairmen for the auxiliaries and V. F. W., are expected to be present at this meeting.

A splendid work has been done by this committee and members are looking forward to having them here on this occasion. President Morrow urges all members to be present at this joint meeting Thursday night, April 1.

Mrs. Treadwell Entertains Club

Members of the Welcome branch of the Twentieth Century Book club met Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. J. W Treadwell. Mrs. L. V. Tarver, was cohostess. Beautiful flowers banking the reception suite formed a decorative background. Mrs. J. Norman Coon, president, presided over the brief business session. She introduced Dr. C. P. Gray, Jr., who spoke on the subject of the pre-natal clinic that has been established in Monroe.

"Australia" was the topic of study for the afternoon. Mrs. J. R. White, in a descriptive manner, carried the members on a make-believe tour through Australia, visiting points of interest. Leaving Perth, they sailed about two thousand miles up to Derby. While there they visited the wonderful pineapple and banana plantations. Their next stop was in Broome, where the pearls come from. Then crossing the plains they went over to Adelaide, the "garden city," of Australia, noted for its wonderful orchards and swimming beaches. Melbourne, Townsville and Cairnes were also visited on this make-believe tour.

Mrs. Don Shattuck gave an unusually interesting and colorful review of "Landtakers," by Brian Penton. She said in part, "Landtakers is a story of the settling of a country by exiles—a story of stark realism. It is acclaimed by many critics as a masterpiece. English critics liken it to a story of the settling of America."

Members present were Mesdames J. Norman Coon, F. E. Black, E. C. Gibson, S. A. Caldwell, Henson Coon, H H. Douglas, C. A. Dunaway, Harold Deloney, J. T. Eubank, W. C. Faulk, V. S. Garnett, Warren Gregory, Marvyn Johnson, J. E. Kersh, D. M. Moore, J. D. Petty, J. F. Prendergast, Dean Selig, Dudley Stone, Don Shattuck, L. V. Tarver, J. W. Treadwell, J. R. White, C. E. Woodham, Elmer S. Wood, J. F. Felix, M R. Hausher. Guests were Mrs. E. R. Thompson, Mrs. Louis Breard, Mrs. W. C. Scott, Mrs. W. E. Sandel and Mrs. P. A. Poag.

EVERYBODY likes new houses . . . and how do you like the new one on wheels . . . perched on the used car lot, corner North Fourth and Washington streets. Pardon please . . . I mean, it's practically a house . . . but really called "The Covered Wagon." On the outside it looks like an automobile . . . while on the inside, it is a miniature five-room house. No foolin'! The interior is of solid Phillipian mahogany. Has nine windows, ventilated top, two rich upholstered couches that unfold into beds that sleep two each (inter-coil springs). Bridge table for fun or dining table for serving, two-burner oil stove for cooking, heater for heating, and a really smart looking bathroom fully equipped! . . . Full length mirrors, radio table with electrical connections, ice box, utensil cabinets, sink, dish cupboard, food storage, 20 gallon water tank with marine type pump. Inlaid linoleum floors, steel frame and side wall construction (two wheels) equipped with electric brakes, (comes in three sizes) 16 ft., 19 ft., 22 ft. Fully wired for use on car battery or otherwise. See the Covered Wagon . . . It can be bought just like the Studebaker —same finance plan.

EASTER morning and your chance to make some one happy. How about old Mrs. Jones on the east side or the sick friend in that lonely bedroom . . . or maybe your own loved ones! . . . Mary's Flower Shop is ready "right by the telephone" to receive that phone call for a word from you to say . . . "Send flowers" and they can surely send them to all parts of the world. Phone 682 . . . Do this . . . yes, this morning . . . this very minute.

IN YOUR enthusiasm for a new spring wardrobe, don't fail to care for your fur coat. This is the time of the year when Mr. and Mrs. Moth start house hunting and who knows but they may pick one of your garments in which to rear a family. Monroe Steam Laundry, the old and reliable cleaning establishment, will see to it that your coat has no moth tenants and will protect it from theft and fire as well if you'll just give them a call. The newly installed Cold Storage Vault is "Certified," which means . . . you can't possibly buy more protection for your money. Phone 102 and 103 . . . a representative will gladly call and explain this new feature.

ODES HAVE been written to the nightingale, the skylark and lots of other things but to my knowledge, not a single one has been dedicated to a pie. Gee, that's unfair! After all one hears the nightingale on rare occasions and skylarks maybe once in a lifetime—(of course if you were in England you'd hear one oftener)—yet two or three times a week we have a chance to eat one of the pies I would glorify in song. Glorious things they are, made with fruits, nuts, cream and krunchy crust and holding a filling of lemon and orange custard. The top is of whipped cream. Need I say more? This heavenly pie is fresh at Jitney Jungle Bakery on North Fourth.

EASTER . . . morning . . . everywhere . . . and is Walgreen's ready to serve those Easter gift givers! I saw a perfectly adorable Cety's (triplet) purse set holding three odors of the most popular sorts that sells for $3.00. Or, a Leon Loraine Manicure Kit for $2.35. As for candy . . . the new kind that Walgreen is showing is a honey! . . . An egg box like you buy regular eggs in but filled with candy eggs. Carton of 12 for 10c. Time to play baseball and your gloves are at Walgreen's for only 98c. Just drop in this beautiful store . . . look until you eyes hurt at the many new and lovely Easter things. Today is not too late. Remember your friends with gifts this afternoon.

IT WAS CHILL and wintry yesterday outdoors, but spring bloomed in Ruth Shops. A grand fashion show was responsible for it and made us forget for a couple hours that March was playing one of its mean tricks. Dozens of lovely costumes were being unpacked and included street, daytime, dinner and formal models as well as accessories galore! I can't begin to describe the many things that caught my fancy, but I want to tell you about a few. A pale beige costume was one, a navy with white pique touches another, and any number of bolero suits in striking colors and combinations. A dramatic evening gown was doubtless the piece de resistance of the lot. It's a famous designer's inspiration and shown for the first time in Monroe by Ruth Shops.

FASHIONS are popping up like crocuses this spring and every day brings more. Yesterday the express brought loads of new things at Bella Scherck Davidson's. Let me tell you about the suits displayed —or a few of them at least— because they were as lovely as any I've seen this season. Cape suits predominated, though there were plenty of 2 and 3-piece ones with topcoats too. Rough fabric, Scotch wool, poiret twill and other rich materials were used in these ensembles. A rough fabric of plaid in tones of brown made the skirt and cape of another stunning model, a short jacket and ascot of dark brown making an interesting contrast. Famous designers' models were shown in originals and copies. But don't let that frighten you if you must dress on a limited purse. Prices of costumes in this shop start as low as $10.98 up to $29.75 and all are extremely smart.

THE PARAMOUNT Theater is the place to spend your dimes this week! Gee! Kids . . . but that old "strong friend" Popeye causes a lot of trouble when he is put in the movies . . . Know what I mean? . . . Well, it's just this: For the first time since POPEYE was born, his managers have made a full two-reel picture of his doings in color . . . "SINBAD" and did it cost money! Why more than 200 colors were used to produce this funny picture. Isn't it just great, kids, that you can see twice as much of Popeye in this picture than you have seen in his other pictures? Say . . . you won't have to sit through the show two or three times either . . . Ooooooo, but you don't really do that, do you? . . . Anyway . . . You're going to see him SUNDAY and the grown-ups will enjoy it just as much as you kids will. Your old friend, James Cagney, will also be there in "Great Guy." Gee! What an Easter treat!

Former Texas Governor To Address Annual P.-T. A. Meeting In Shreveport

Mrs. Frank Announces Naff On The Program

Large Representation Expected To Be Present At Annual Convention Scheduled April 15-17

Ex-Governor Pat M. Neff, of Texas, who is now president of Baylor university, at Waco, will address the state convention of the Louisiana Parent-Teachers association to be held at Shreveport, April 15-17, according to an announcement made by Mrs. Leon Frank, state P.-T. A. publicity chairman.

The state convention is expected to attract a large representation from the 220 state P.-T. A. units comprising approximately 16,000 members. The sessions will be held at the Washington-Youree hotel, and members in this district are urged to attend the convention.

Officials of the national P.-T. A. congress and other state P.-T. A. organizations will take part in the program, including Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, third, vice-president of the national P.-T. A. congress, Austin, Tex.; Professor Pierce Cline, Shreveport; Dr. Murphy Rodgers, Baton Rouge, state expert on curriculum study; Mrs. Scott Wood, past president of the Arkansas P.-T. A.; Mrs. Albert L. Smith, president of the Louisiana P.-T. A.; Professor Albert Fredericks, Shreveport; Professor Alvin Good, Louisiana State Normal college, Natchitoches; Dr. Gustaf Freden, Ruston; Mrs. E. Fay Walter, first vice-president of the Louisiana P.-T. A.

Mrs. Howard L. Brown will act as convention chairman, with Mrs. W. C. Youngblood, associate chairman. Both of these ladies are from Shreveport.

Other convention officers include Mrs. Lawrence A. Mailhes of Shreveport, chairman of the program committee, who will be assisted by Mrs. E. Fay Walter, Mrs. A. N. Boucher, Mrs. A. G. Alexander, Mrs. P. A. Blanchard, Miss Josephine Thomas, Mrs. Harney S. Bogan, Miss Eleanore Rayne, Mrs. Rene Baus and Mrs. R. L. McHenry.

Other committee chairmen include Mrs. George P. Meade, Gramercy, La., hospitality conference; Mrs. L. A. Mailhes and Mrs. Bryan Bell, Shreveport, membership conference; Mrs. J. E. Rooks, health and summer round up conference; Mrs. Scott Wood, Hot Springs, Ark., leadership conference; Mrs. Leon Frank and Mrs. J. L. Creed, publicity conference.

A number of important panel discussions on curriculum study, "School Tax Dollar vs. the Training For Living," the three "R's," and other important subjects will be a feature of the convention.

Mrs. Mailhes will conduct a membership conference, assisted by Mrs. Bryan Bell of New Orleans. A hospitality conference will be conducted by Mrs. Meade, past state president of the Louisiana P.-T. A. The health and summer round up breakfast will be held on Friday, April 16, with Mrs. J. E. Rooks, of Shreveport, presiding.

One of the most important talks of the convention will be delivered by Professor Freden, of Ruston, who will speak on the subject, "Onward Education."

Two luncheons will be given during the convention by Mrs. Albert L. Smith, president of the Louisiana P.-T. A., and Mrs. E. Fay Walter, firse vice-president.

The annual banquet will be held at the Youree hotel Friday night, April 16. The principal speakers will be Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, and Mrs. Albert L. Smith.

A 45-minute presentation of "Carmen" will constitute the entertainment feature of the convention.

Mrs. Mailhes, of Shreveport, was recently honored by her nomination to the post of eighth vice-president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and will represent regional district six which includes the states of Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

CHAPTER I

Smart and trim in her new spring outfit, Judith Howard stepped briskly from an elevator of the town's tallest office building and made her way through the noon-hour crowd to the wide entrance. There she took up an unobtrusive spot beyond the main stream of pedestrian traffic, and waited.

There were other girls waiting in the shadow of the big entrance, and there were scores of them passing hurriedly on their way to lunch. But none was more pert, more honestly attractive, than Judith Howard. She had the assurance that comes only to those who have made, and are making their own way in the world. An assurance that is different from poise, and somehow more genuine—because poise is something which can be acquired in idleness and so has nothing at all to do with character.

She was medium tall, rather slender in build, and while perhaps none of her features were classic in themselves, nevertheless they formed a composite whole which was the very essence of beauty. Judith's eyes were neither blue nor gray, but something intriguingly in-between. The color of her hair was delightfully definite. In the day of Judith's mother it would have been called "taffy" or "tow." When older men glimpsed it they were reminded happily of ripe corn in the fields of their youth. When younger men saw it they remembered no fields of maize, but they were just as pleased. And there was plenty of it. Not too much, but just enough. Her absurd fall hat (which looked not at all absurd on Judith) made no secret of how she rolled it up at the nape of her neck, sensibly and securely.

She was somewhere between 20 and 26, and it was almost impossible to tell to which age she was nearest. About the time you decided that she was hardly past 20 she would look grave and serene, and nearer 26. But if you happened to be a young man—or even an old one—you did not care particularly because, whichever age she was nearest, Judith Howard was charming.

It was just this strange quality of change, this alternating gravity and gaiety, which had attracted Stephen Fowler four years ago—and held him steadily since then. Four years is a long time when one is young, and, as Judith stood there waiting for Steve, she wondered how much longer it would be before they would marry. Four years they'd known each other, and had planned to marry for at least three of those.

Oblivious to the passing throng, forgetting to be impatient at Steve's tardiness, Judith fell to musing about those four years. As clearly as if it had been day before yesterday she remembered their meeting. It was at a skating party arranged by Virginia Bent, and it had been Virginia who had fixed the "date" between Judith and Steve. On the way home that night, snug with a robe in the back seat of Robert Bent's car, Steve had talked with her in a low, bantering tone.

"Do you remember the October of 1929?" he had asked.

Judith laughed. "I've heard my elders talk about it. Wasn't there a market crash?"

She remembered his lugubrious answer. "Crash? Say, airplanes crash sometimes, and automobiles crash frequently. But a market does something worse than that. I don't think there's a word for it!"

Judith smiled when she thought of that. Everyone had still been talking about "the crash" then. Nobody—yet—was willing to believe in a depression.

"But the reason I brought it up," Steve had said, "was because I . . ."

"Well?"

He looked down at her, and she had been unable to tell whether or not he was serious. "If I'd met you before that fatal October, I think we'd be Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Fowler by this time."

Judith remembered that, standing there in front of the big office building where she worked. In front of the big office building where, because of the depression, she had dropped from a position as secretary down to a job as typist—and an overworked typist at that.

He had taken her skates with him on that first night because, he said, he knew of the "only place in town" where they could be properly sharpened. And of course, once they were sharpened, he had to return them to her. That was the beginning. She did not remember so clearly all that had happened between then and now. There had been happy moments; but there had been tearful ones, too, because they were in love.

She wouldn't have traded any of them. She wouldn't have wanted to go back to that first day, and relive these last four years without Steve Fowler. And yet . . . yet she knew that they couldn't go on forever, being engaged and in love. Steve knew it, too. But he always wanted to wait a little while longer. It had been a blow to him when he had stopped being a sales manager and became only a salesman with a quota to meet instead of a quota to set. But gradually he had forgotten that, and had started to work with a will. Gradually he was climbing back—but not fast enough to suit him. Not to the point where he felt he should marry.

From the very first, Judith had favored a marriage wherein she retained her job and helped out with the expenses. But Steve could never quite see it. Steve had always had the idea that a husband should support his wife wholly, and support her well. Because he couldn't do it he had become increasingly bitter and difficult.

"I'm tired of hearing these kids out of school wailing because they can't get a job," he told Judith one day. "And I'm just as tired of hearing these old boys in their white-lined waistcoats yelling that things aren't what they used to be. At least the kids have everything before them, and the old boys have something to remember. But the fellows around my age are stuck right. A little too old to learn, and a little too young to have piled up any advantage before the crash came."

"You mustn't get bitter," Judith had warned sensibly. "You have to remember that few men held on to the 'advantage' they'd managed to pile up. Right now, Steve, you're better off than the man I work for. You don't owe any money, and you haven't any obligations to keep people employed. You haven't taxes that—"

"Just the same, sometimes I wonder if I don't belong to the fabled lost generation."

"It's not like you, Steve, to indulge in self-pity," Judith told him.

That conversation had been typical of dozens they had gone through the past year or so. It seemed to Judith that all their recent meetings degenerated into bickerings that got nowhere. And the frightening thing was that Steve was changing. He was no longer the old, considerate Steve. It was as if his impotence against economic conditions had turned him inward toward himself instead of outward toward the girl he loved.

Judith was afraid—and because she was afraid she had resolved to make one final effort to convince Steve that her original proposition had been right. He had a good job with a promising future; and she had a passable job which would help things out until Steve's future transformed itself into the present. It was so utterly simple. It was so utterly sane. And Stephen Fowler must be made to see that it was both.

If he didn't—

Protectively, Judith's mind clicked shut against that possibility. Days ago she had made up her mind as to her course if he still refused to be sensible. But she did not want to think about it now. She did not want to believe that he'd fail to choose Judith Howard if he had to choose between her and his foolish pride.

"Hello, Judith. . . . Darned sorry I'm late. Fellow dropped in just as I was leaving, and I couldn't get away."

Startled by Steve's voice at her shoulder, she turned swiftly, and there must have been a part of her thoughts reflected in her eyes, for he added: "What's up, Judith? You look as if you had something on your mind."

"I have, Steve. Can we go somewhere for lunch where we can talk?"

"Sure thing," said Steve, troubled. "We can get a booth at this place around the corner."

He did not speak again until they were settled in the little cafe. When they had ordered, he leaned toward her and said, "Shoot, darling. I hope nothing serious has happened."

"I hope it isn't serious, either." She smiled weakly. "This is leap year, Steve. I'm going to propose to you."

He sat back, relief written large on his face. "Gosh . . . when I saw you there in front of the building I thought you'd had bad news from home or something. If it's just a leap year proposal, why—I can take it!"

"Can you, Steve? That's what I want to know."

He regarded her a moment. "Look here, Judith, what are you getting at? I hope you haven't got me in a corner just to bring up the old question."

"That's just what I've done," she told him evenly. "I'm doing it here where you can't put your arms around me and argue me out of it, Steve. There's going to be no kisses and no tears this time. I don't want to go on like this. We've waited four years. What if we waited four more?"

"But that's absurd!" he exclaimed. "Things are picking up in fine shape. Why, only today the boss was saying that—"

"Then we might as well marry, Steve. I promise you I'll quit my job the moment you're getting what you consider an adequate salary."

Steve's eyes narrowed. "You know how I feel about that. I won't have my wife working. If a man can't support a girl, he hasn't a right to ask her to marry him."

"It appears that I'm asking you, Steve. Would that make any difference?"

Re reached for her hand across the table. "Let's not juggle words, Judith. You know what I think about it."

"Bob and Virginia Bent made a go of it. I don't see why we shouldn't."

"Bob Bent!" snorted Steve. "What's it done for him? It's developed him into a weakling who'd be scared to death if his wife lost her job. No, Judith—that's out."

She looked at him a long moment. She drew in her breath, exhaled it sharply. "Then . . . I'm out, too."

"You don't mean that, Judith?" But already he could see in her eyes that she did mean it, every word of it.

"I know," he said suddenly, bitterly. "Virginia Bent has been talking to you! I can hear her saying it—'You've fooled around with Steve's pride for three or four years now, and you're getting no younger fast.' That's probably what she's been feeding you."

"Virginia had nothing to do with it. You know me well enough to know that I can come to a decision on my own, Steve."

"But that's what Virginia thinks, and I know it. She never misses a chance to tell you how delightfully happy she and Bob are—"

"And they are happy."

"No doubt," said Steve shortly. "But I'm not Bob Bent."

Uncertainly Judith got to her feet. "I'm afraid I don't feel like eating. I'll . . . just go back to the office."

"Judith! Judy, darling." Steve was instantly contrite. Hastily he grabbed his hat and walked out of the cafe close to her side. "I didn't mean to get so completely sore. We can't discuss this thing sensibly on the street, Judith. Let me come to your apartment tonight."

She shook her head. "That's no good, Steve. I—"

Heedless of passerby he took her by the shoulders and turned her to face him. "Look here, Judith. We've been in love for four years. We're in love right now. It can't be cut off in a minute like this. I won't let it be."

"But it's got to be," Judith told him, trying to keep back the tears and not succeeding very well. "I've thought it all out, Steve. It isn't just a spur of the moment thing. I've—I've seen it coming for a long time. Now please let me go. Please . . . people are staring."

"All right, then." His hands dropped to his sides. "But I'm coming over tonight."

As fast as possible Judith sped toward the building, scurried into one of the "up" cars. She reached the office dressing room none too soon, for hardly was she inside the door before the tears welled up in her eyes. Unmindful that the rest of the girls would soon be returning from lunch, she leaned her head against the wall and sobbed.

The door opened suddenly and Virginia Bent entered. Quickly her arms went around Judith and she led her to a chair. "I saw you and Steve outside, and I gathered something was up. What happened, Judith?"

"I—I told him I was through."

Virginia nodded sagely. "You'll live to thank yourself for it. He's a stubborn fool. A girl can't grow old waiting for a man to become a millionaire, Judith. Let me tell you something. Any man who can't understand that a girl might like love in a kitchenet apartment today, rather than an ermine coat tomorrow maybe, is too dumb to make a good husband!"

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
St. John and Grammont Streets
L. T. Hastings, Pastor
D. C. Black, Director of Education and Music

With 749 in Sunday school and two great crowds, last Sunday was a red letter day with us. We are expecting a greater day in every way this Sunday. If the weather is favorable, why should we not get our 1,000 in Sunday school? We will try to find places for them if they come. The large welcome will make up for the small space. The church voted last Sunday to renew, as soon as possible, building operations and to close in the four stories of the educational building. The pastor will bring a special message to the intermediate department members at their opening exercises. At the 11 o'clock hour, he will speak on "Come, See . . . Go, Tell." It will have a resurrection and missionary application. The women of our Missionary society will have their alabaster box service and home mission pageant Monday night at 7:30 in the main auditorium. Everybody is invited. After the B. T. U. service, 6:10 to 7:25, there will be a baptismal service. The pastor will bring a brief evangelistic message and then the ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed. This will allow doctors, nurses and others who cannot attend the morning services to take part in this service. The choir will sing at the morning service, "King of Kings" (Simper). You are always welcome at the First Baptist church.

GOOD HOPE BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe, La.
Charles W. Freeman, Pastor

Sunday school at 10 o'clock, Mr. A. R. Harris, superintendent. The Sunday school will make its offering to home and foreign missions. The pastor will bring a message Sunday morning relative to the "Greater Louisiana College Campaign." The Brotherhood will meet at 6:15 p.m. The B. T. U. will also meet at 6:15 p.m. The pastor will preach Sunday night on the subject, "The Church That Jesus Built."

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH
West Monroe, La.
E. E. Huntsberry, Pastor
O. J. Thompson, Educational Director

Rev. E. E. Huntsberry will bring two messages Sunday in keeping with Easter. His message for the 10:50 hour will be "The Risen Lord." The Lord's Supper will be observed at that hour. "The Blood and Remission" is the subject for the 7:30 hour. Special music under the direction of Otis J. Thompson and the chorus choir will be rendered at both services. Sunday school 9:45, B. T. U. 6:30. Gipsy Smith will begin a two weeks' meeting with the First Baptist church Sunday April 4. The meeting will run through April 18. Plans are being made to care for 2,500 people through medium of loud speakers throughout the church plant.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH
George H. Dierlamm, Minister

Easter day celebrates the resurrection of Jesus. Christmas and Easter form the two poles of interest in the Christian year. The original name was Pascha, the "Pascha of the Resurrection," but gradually the name Easter was adopted from the traditional celebration held in ancient times in honor of "Eastre" (Fagley). "Why seek ye the living among the dead?" (Luke 24:5). The devotion and courage of women is marvellous. On the way to Calvary, women of Jerusalem had braved the mob to give Jesus friendly companionship and sympathy. And the women of Galilee had not fled with the disciples. The last at the cross and the first at the tomb. It was fitting that they should be first to get the glad tidings. It came as a challenge to their sorrow. They were looking for the one they loved, but looking in the wrong place. The challenge meets us all at the grave of our loved ones. With loving care we tend those hallowed spots, in God's acre, putting flowers there, and watering them with tears. We want to ease the ache of our hearts. But there is a greater comfort for us when we remember that our dear ones are not there in the ground. Our faith has buried them not in the earth, but in the sky. The grave contains their dust, but it cannot house their spirits. They themselves have not tarried here, where dust returns to dust, but have gone on into the silent land. They are not dead, but alive. Probably far more alive than we are. Why seek ye the living among the dead? This day consecrated to sad memories, is still more consecrated to immortal hopes. Jesus said "I am the resurrection and the Life." Easter services Sunday morning at 11 a.m. at Union church; 2:30 p.m. at Drew.

CHURCH OF CHRIST
South Second and Apple Streets
J. P. Lowery, Minister

Bible study, 9:45 a.m. Preaching 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Communion morning and evening. Women's Bible class, Tuesday 2:30 p.m. Prayer service Wednesday 7:30 p.m. Young people's class Friday 7:30 p.m.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth and Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

Christ is risen! Such is the shout which encircles the earth, as this Easter morning's sun wakes up the world! Today ten thousand temples are crowded; ten thousand altars spread; ten thousand voices sing, "Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us, therefore let us keep the feast!" The altars are decorated with flowers, emblems of the resurrection, and of our faith in the promises. Surely, if ever it is right to use such demonstrations of joy as the disciples did of old, it is on this festival, which Prophecy itself has proclaimed to us, in the words: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated on Easter day at 7 o'clock for the Easter communion of the people. The church school will hold its Easter day service at 9:30 a.m., and the mite boxes will be presented at this service. The 11 o'clock service will be the festal service, consisting of an Easter procession and the choir singing the musical parts of the service. The rector will journey to St. David's, Rayville, for a 4:30 evensong and the preaching of an Easter sermon. The desire of every communicant to present himself at the altar, on this festival, in obedience to the recognized duty of partaking always at Easter of the blessed sacrament of Christ's body and blood, does not need very much emphasis. The great service of the day is the Easter Eucharist. Oh, what a happy day! Like those who kept the first Easter with Christ, our hearts have burned within us all the time; for He hath made Himself known to us in the breaking of bread. The public is cordially invited to attend any and all services in Grace church. The church is open daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. "Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate."

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST SCIENTIST
Corner Auburn Avenue and North Second Street

Sunday services 11 a.m.; Sunday school 9:30 a.m.; Wednesday evening testimony meetings, 8 o'clock. Reading room, 602 Ouachita National Bank building, open daily except Sunday and holidays, 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. The public is welcome to all services and the use of the reading room. "Reality" is the subject of the lesson sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, March 28, 1937. Among the citations which comprise the lesson sermon is the following from the Bible: "Many, O Lord my God, are Thy wonderful works which Thou hast done, and Thy thoughts which are to us-ward; they cannot be reckoned up in order unto Thee; if I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered." (Ps. 40) The lesson sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The Scriptures imply that God is All-in-all. From this it follows that nothing possesses reality nor existence except the Divine Mind and His ideas." (p. 331)

GORDON AVENUE METHODIST CHURCH
J. M. Alford, Pastor

The revival meeting which began two weeks ago will close with the Sunday night service Easter Sunday. A program of special songs will be rendered at 11 a.m., at which time the pastor will deliver a discourse suitable for the occasion. At the evening hour (7:30), "Moses' Choice" will be the theme, and following the sermon the class of new members will be received into the church. The church school will open at 9:45, with E. K. Reeves as general superintendent. The young people will meet at 6:30 p.m.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH
Stone Avenue and South Third Street
I. L. Yeager, Pastor

The worship program of the day begins with Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. At the 11 o'clock service an Easter program will be rendered. There will be no Christian Endeavor service. At 7:45 p.m., a two-scene drama, "The Easter Miracle," will be presented. The women's auxiliary will meet at the church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Bible study and prayer service Thursday evening at 7:30. An invitation is extended to all to worship with us.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH
3400 Lee Avenue
D. D. Cantrell, Pastor

Central Baptist church anticipates a great series of services on Easter Sunday. At 9:45 a.m., the Sunday school will study "Christ's Resurrection." The pastor's morning message will be "Scriptural Baptism." At 3 p.m., observance of the ordinance of baptism will be held for our church at the First Baptist church of Monroe, due to the fact that Central Baptist church as yet has no baptistry. The First Baptist church is kind enough to offer to us this kindness. The B. T. U. will meet at 6:45 p.m. All groups will be on time with prepared topics for discussion. Mr. Nelson will have charge of the music. Rev. W. L. Stagg, Sr., will bring the evening message.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH
Jackson at Wood Street
W. C. Scott, Pastor

"Christ, the Lord, is Risen Today." This is the certain glad faith for believers in Christ; this is the great hope of Easter morning and by faith in the Risen, Reigning Christ we may all enter into everlasting life at this Easter time. Let us join forces with all Christian worshippers today in proclaiming to the world the news of the empty tomb. You are cordially invited to worship with us at all services. "Easter Dawn" will be the theme of the pastor's sermon at the morning hour. A large class of adults will be received into church membership at this time. The Knights Templar will worship with us at this service. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon there will be a special service for the baptism of infants. At the evening hour, the choir will render the cantata, "Rabboni." The public is invited. Easter Sunday is Orphanage day. All Methodist churches in the state set aside the offerings of this day for the Methodist orphanage at Ruston. How better can we serve the resurrected Christ than by sharing liberally with these little ones of whom Jesus was speaking when He said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto Me."

SALVATION ARMY CHAPEL
Wood and St. John Streets
G. W. Washburn, Adjutant

The Salvation Army, 201 Wood street, will hold a special Easter service Sunday at 7:30 p.m., consisting of songs and short talks. Children of the Sunday school will participate. Other services of the day will be Sunday school at 9:45 a.m.; holiness meeting 11 a.m., and Y. P. I. at 6:30 p.m. The public is cordially invited to all services.

TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH
Harrison And D'Arbonne
Sherrouse Addition
Vernon C. Grosse, Pastor

The members of the Sunday school are urged to meet at 9:30 a.m. Easter service at 10:45 a.m. Each of the great festivals of the church year has its own message. Easter is the royal festival; it is "the day of the Lord" in a special sense. And, therefore, it has a message that is fundamental. This message is expressed in the words "Christ is risen." Whatever text may be chosen, the resurrection of the Lord must be the center and heart of the sermon.

NAZARENE CHURCH
Thomas and Richmond Streets
G. M. and Ina L. Akin, Pastors

Sunday school will open at 9:30 a.m., S. P. Quigley, superintendent. Evangelist Jack Frost will bring the morning message at 11 o'clock. His theme will be "The Resurrection." At the close of the sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. Rev. Frost will use as a subject for the evening evangelistic service "Pentecost."

New James Cagney Returns To Screen In 'Great Guy'

Latest Hit Showing At Paramount

Mae Clarke Again Cast Opposite Star; Popeye Comes To Screen In Color

A NEW and greater Cagney is forecast in the vivid characterization of the dynamic red-headed star in his first production for Grand National, "Great Guy," which plays at the Paramount theater today. Because he believes that the public's interest in "mugs" and "molls" as screen characters went out with the gangster films, Producer Douglas MacLean has attempted to take some of the hardness out of this latest Cagney role.

The appearance of Mae Clarke opposite Cagney in this new production undoubtedly conjures up visions of the famous grapefruit-in-the-face scene which these two did in "Public Enemy," but MacLean explains that in casting Miss Clarke as Cagney's leading lady in "Great Guy," he did not do so with any intention of repeating anything like the memorable scene in the earlier film.

"While that scene helped to make Cagney famous, he is too fine and sensitive an actor to be kept tied down in screen characters of that type," the producer states. "He still remains Hollywood's most rugged individualist, but in 'Great Guy' he acquires a certain brightening polish, and e believe the public will like him better in his new guise."

As for Cagney, he heartily agrees. "When I made 'Public Enemy,' the gangster was something of an American hero," he says. "Studio officials, however, held up their hands in horror when we planned the grapefruit scene, but it developed that, although that bit of action with Mae Clarke did not accord with the rules of heroic action, the public went for it in a big way. It was in line with the entertainment tastes of that day and audiences which had been surfeited with drawing room dramas welcomed a hero who didn't wear a morning coat and speak with a broad A."

In "Great Guy," Cagney is the rough-and-ready, fearless fighting character that has endeared him to screen fans, but he doesn't sock Mae Clarke or any other feminine member of the cast. He reserves his wallop for the broad-shouldered guys who try to keep him from running the weights and measure department on the honest plane he insists on.

As an honest and fearless deputy in the weights and measures department of a large city who faces a new kind of public enemy when he is forced to clean up a band of crooks and grafters who are preying on the purchasers of every-day necessities, Cagney has plenty of opportunity to display the brand of acting that has made him distinctive. That he does so in a manner that will be eminently pleasing to his admirers, in true Cagney style, and at the same time reveals a histrionic art that can truly be termed "the Greater Cagney," is the opinion of those who have seen this first essay of his for Grand National.

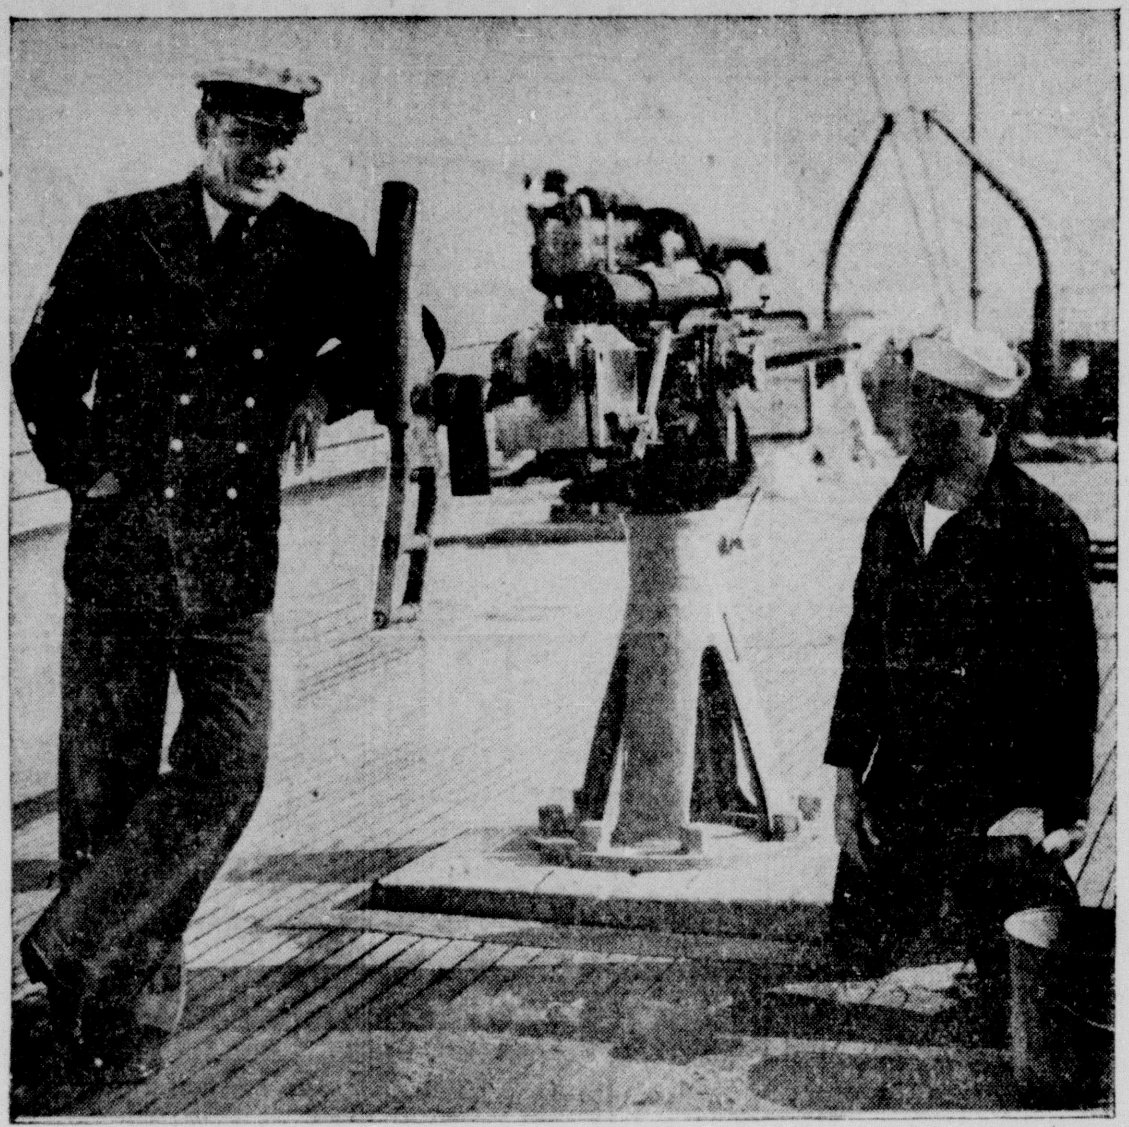
Mae Clarke, of course, plays opposite Cagney in the feminine featured role and the cast boasts such favorites as James Burke, Edward Brophy, Henry Kolker, Bernardine Hayes, Edward McNamara, Robert Gleckler, Joseph Sawyer and Edward Gargan. The picture is based on the popular "Johnny Cave Stories" by James Edward Grant, originally published in The Saturday Evening Post. John G. Blystone directed.

Popeye In Color

The film cartoon of the future gets a preview today at the Paramount theater, where Max Fleischer's full-color, third dimension two-reeler, "Popeye the Sailor Meets Sindbad the Sailor," is a part of the bill which opened yesterday.

The super-short is the longest animated cartoon ever made for the screen by Fleischer, Popeye's animator. It is the first colored Popeye, as well, and the first to be photographed in Fleischer's new "cartoon depth photography," utilizing miniature sets instead of flat backgrounds.

The story, of course, is one built for Popeye; it tells of the meeting of the two greatest sailors in the world, and their ultimate earth-shaking battle. Settings were chosen to give full play to the advantages of the full-color and third-dimension features.



Those two-fisted sons of the sea, Victor McLaglen and Preston Foster, are co-starred in a lusty drama of the coast guard, entitled "Sea Devils." Ida Lupino furnishes the romantic interest as Victor's daughter. Donald Woods heads the supporting cast of distinguished players. At the Capitol Sunday and Monday.

'Sea Devils' Is Feature At Capitol

Victor McLaglen, Preston Foster And Ida Lupino Starred In New Hit

RIDING THE SWIRLING WAVES of adventure and romance, Academy Award Winner Victor McLaglen as a chief bos'un's mate in the U. S. coast guard and Preston Foster as his rival score a bull's eye in stellar entertainment in RKO Radio's stirring drama, "Sea Devils," showing at the Capitol theater today.

Sharing spotlight honors with McLaglen and Foster in this thrilling vignette of an unsung but heroic branch of the government service, is Ida Lupino with Donald Woods heading the supporting cast.

Seaman Foster, a globe-girdling adventurer, no sooner joins the crew of McLaglen's ship, than trouble starts between the two. Boasting of his prowess with the weaker sex, Foster begins courting McLaglen's daughter, Ida Lupino.

Foster is about the last man in the service McLaglen would choose as a son-in-law, but it happens that his daughter has a mind of her own, so McLaglen initiates a bitter feud with the sailor.

Terrific combats between this pair of Titans vie with thrilling rescues from storm-battered ships as dramatic highlights of this action-crammed photoplay.

Using the United States coast guard cutter Tahoe and its crew, a perilous rescue of passengers from a burning vessel is effected, and later other lives are saved from a hurricane-grounded boat, in which full beach equipment, including surf boats, a Lyle gun, a breeches-buoy and other apparatus, is brought into play in a revealing demonstration of live-saving technique.

An authentic reproduction of coast guard procedure was assured by the retention of Lieutenant H. C. Moore as technical advisor throughout the production.

Both McLaglen and Foster played together in RKO Radio's prize-winning film of 1935, "The Informer," and it was as the result of his performance in that film that McLaglen won the Academy Award for the outstanding male performance of the year.

Miss Lupino, attractive English actress, and Donald Woods, popular leading man, add histrionic luster to the screen drama.

Outstanding in supporting roles are Gordon Jones, Helen Flint, Pierre Watkin, Murray Alper and Billy Gilbert.

Frank Wead, a former lieutenant-commander in the United States navy, and John Twist are credited with the story and screen play along with P. J. Wolfson.

Edward Small produced the photoplay, directed by Ben Stoloff.

Folks meet "Oiwin," the human jeep! "Three Men On a Horse," the funniest farce ever filmed, shows at the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday. Joan Blondell, Guy Kibbee, Carol Hughes, Allen Jenkins, Sam Levine and Teddy Hart, from the stage production, support Frank McHugh as "Oiwin."

"Great Guy," James Cagney's comeback picture, is the attraction at the Paramount Saturday, Sunday and Monday. Mae Clarke again is cast as the foil for Cagney. Cagney plays one of the tough guy roles which made him famous. Completing a gala program is Popeye the Sailor's debut in color. Filmed entirely in color, "Popeye the Sailor Meets Sindbad the Sailor" offers splendid entertainment.

Deanna Durbin, radio's sensational songbird, makes her debut in "Three Smart Girls," the attraction at the Paramount Friday. Returned by popular acclaim, this show features Binnie Barnes, Alice Brady, Ray Milland and Charles Winninger.

Ricardo Cortez and Gail Patrick are co-starred as a married couple in "Her Husband Lies." This story of gamblers and cheats plays at the Capitol Thursday.

"God's Country and the Woman" is the picture at the Paramount Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Starring Greorge Brent, the picture is adapted from the famous novel of the same name. Beverly Roberts, Barton MacLane and Robert Barrat are featured.

That singing buckaroo, Gene Autry, is back again in another of his musical westerns, "Round-Up Time in Texas," featuring Smiley Burnette and the Cabin Kids. This film shows Saturday at the Capitol.

"They Wanted to Marry" and they had quite a time doing it. "They" are Betty Furness and Gordon Jones who are featured in the sprightly film at the Capitol Friday.

DRILLING OF WATER WELL AT BERNICE COMPLETED

BERNICE, La., March 27.—(Special)—Drilling of the new Bernice water well has been completed at a depth of 593 feet, where an abundant supply of water was found. The well is now being swabbed and washed.

A sample of water from the well has been sent to a state chemist at Baton Rouge for a test of its purity.

In the past, during unusually dry summers, a shortage of water has existed at Bernice, but with the new well operating there, is expected to be no shortage at any time in the future.

Importance Of Appraising Lumber Used In Dwellings Built In South

By W. H. O'Brien
(Field Engineer, Southern Pine Association)

The importance of carefully appraising lumber in residential construction cannot be over-emphasized. Especially is this true at the present time when home building activities are approaching "boom" proportions. It is conceded that lumber is the material most widely used for home building in America. In cities of 2,500 and over more than 80 per cent of the single dwellings and in farming communities and towns under 2,500, more than 95 per cent of the houses are of wood frame construction. That lumber has performed satisfactorily is evidenced by the fact that innumerable lumber-built homes throughout the country stand today in excellent condition after a century or more of service.

Knowledge of the proper use of lumber is important even if the home builder decides to have the walls of his house of brick, stone, or some other material, for he will still be obliged to use lumber in considerable quantity, requiring probably three-fifths as much as if full wood construction were used.

The important function that lumber fulfills is not always given the consideration that it deserves. Many people think of lumber as a simple building material cut from trees and requiring only the ability of a man with a saw and hammer for its use. They overlook the vitally important factors that should be considered in connection with the framing of a home. These are: the species of lumber; the grade; seasoning condition of the lumber; the size of the various members, and the framing details.

Unless measures are taken to insure the use of quality material and good methods of construction, home-owners and financing institutions will again be faced with the grief experienced because of the "jerry-built" structures of previous building "booms."

During the late depression few apprentices were in training for the building trades. As the volume of home building grows, it is likely that many inexperienced men will be drawn into this field. Many of them will doubtless engage in the field of speculative building and the dangers and disappointments of "jerry-building" again will be present. Strict adherence to sound standards of construction and materials may not always be maintained. Who will protect the unsuspecting home-owner?

Building a home is not as simple as buying an automobile. An automobile may be discarded after a few years if it does not please the owner, but this is not so easily done in the case of a home. The average home-owner builds only once in a lifetime and expects to live in the home for many years with a minimum of upkeep. Oftentimes the purchase of a home taxes the owner up to the limit of his capacity to pay, and no provision is made for upkeep or costly repairs. The moderately priced homes, which comprise the majority of those erected, in most instances are built without the services of an architect, and frequently competent supervision is lacking. No matter how responsible the contractor, specifications for construction and material, as well as competent inspection, should be required, and they should be the requirements for a loan on the structure. Not only will greater confidence in home-ownership result, but the mortgage risk will be materially improved when a soundly constructed home stands behind the mortgage.

Home financing institutions are in a position to take the initiative in establishing sound mortgages. The best way to do this is to set up protection against shoddy construction. All responsible branches of the building industry would like to see this done. Often the home buyer is more concerned about fancy decorations and mechanical gadgets than about substantial construction. Because the frame is covered up, he can easily become the victim of an unscrupulous "jerry-builder." It is considered a function of the financing institution, through its appraisers and inspectors, to protect the interests of the owner.

Since lumber is the mostly widely used material for homes, it is reasonable to ask, "What responsibility does the lumber manufacturing branch of the construction industry have in providing sound homes?" Perhaps no group has done more to promote good practice in construction and the use of proper materials than the lumber manufacturers through their associations. The greatest obstacle to this work has been the indifference so often shown towards lumber. This indifference is due primarily to a failure to appreciate that there are variations in qualities and grades. The lumber industry, through its trade associations, is responsible for the following improvements:

Establishment of standards of seasoning for framing lumber.

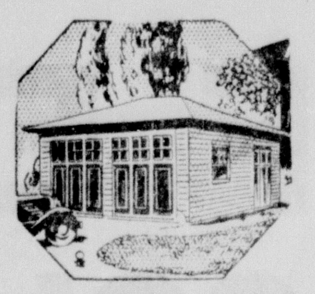
Publication of literature covering grades, sizes and construction practices.

Development of a sound system of grade-marking for the consumers' protection.

When a home is constructed of lumber that is bought under names, such as "A-1," "first quality," or just "lumber," no standards are provided for the most important part of the house. Framing lumber always should be purchased in official standard grades, which in southern pine provides for moisture content limitations. And care should be exercised by the home builder and his contractor and financing agency, to see that the lumber used in his house conforms to the official standard grades for the species used, assuring correctly manufactured, graded and seasoned lumber is employed in his home.

A group of responsible retail lumber dealers in this city, in cooperation with the Southern Pine association, have undertaken to acquaint home builders in this community with the advantages of using sound construction methods and correctly manufactured, graded and seasoned lumber in home building. The services of a lumber expert are furnished to all who request such service to advise on building problems and check the lumber used in homes here to assure it is properly seasoned and manufactured.

A HOME



Build me a home, I am lonely,
Lonely for a chimney and cat.
I've been about and I've found out,
Life's too big for a flat.

Build me a home, I am hungry
For the bark of a dog in a lane,
For the sight of a light in a window at night,
And the song of a roof in the rain.

Build me a home in a garden,
With my window flush with the lawn,
Where life overflows on the heart of a rose,
Where birds may wake me at dawn.

Inspection Of Heating Plant Is Suggested

Wise householders will cause rigid inspection of heating arrangements in their homes to be made during the summer and plan for any necessary repairs before cold weather.

If a new heating plant is indicated, modern burners may be purchased and installed through the federal housing administration's modernization credit plan, whereby monthly payments may be made up to a five-year period.

A home cannot be comfortable without adequate heating facilities.

UNUSUAL COLOR FOR DINING BACKGROUND

An attractive dining room has a floor painted deep blue, almost black. Chairs are upholstered in blue leather, with the same shade carried out in window, door, baseboard and cornice trim.

The federal housing administration program makes artistic home decoration possible through the advancement of funds by private financial institutions.

MOTH DAMAGES REACH MILLIONS

Parasite Called 'Public Enemy No. 1' Of American Householders

Public enemy No. 1 of the American housewife is mobilizing for the annual sweep that causes damage estimated at $200,000,000.

The moths are coming! With no warning buzzing or whizzing like the flies or mosquitoes, silently and stealthily under the cover of darkness they carry on their invasion of furniture, clothes, furs and other habiliments. They are, says A. Edison Badertscher, Ph.D., prominent entomologist of Baltimore, Md., the scavengers of civilization. Originally they lived outdoors, but as man moved indoors into fine houses, the moths moved with him and constantly improved their standards of living until now they delight in attacking the finest garments, the costliest furs and the most cherished furniture.

"A single moth may be the cause of a hundred holes," said Dr. Badertscher. "A buxom female moth can lay 40 or 50 eggs in a period of 10 days. These hatch and the tiny worms eat their way to adulthood, and if unchecked are able to bring forth a new brood of lusty youngsters before the season is over. A patriarchal insect may be able to number thousands of grandchildren in the neighborhood during a single season. With such fecundity, the estimated moth damage of $200,000,000 annually in the United States is not difficult to understand."

"Clothes moths have probably been the distraction of housewives ever since the human race began to live in houses and to wear woolen and fur garments. The Bible refers to a moth-eaten garment as an odious thing. Our ancestors were completely at the mercy of the moths, but now, modern science has provided the housewife with several types of weapons to control the pests, which are efficient and effective when correctly used."

Cold storage has been the housewife's greatest aid in combating moths and other household insects. Scientists at the bureau of entomology in Washington discovered that the larvae of insects are dormant at a temperature of 50 degrees Fahr., and the furriers found that cold air revived the furs and preserved the pelts. These discoveries of the 90's introduced a new industry. Storage depositories, furriers, installed refrigerating machinery and devoted sections of their buildings to cold storage departments. The quantity of goods that is annually stored in these cold storage vaults is unknown, but its value runs into the hundreds of millions. Furs and garments, rugs, trunks and boxes of clothing in vast quantities go into these cold storage depositories all over the country every spring.

There are also sprays and flakes, the result of modern scientific research, that if efficiently and frequently used, enable the housewife to defeat the moths, so that today a moth hole in a garment is usually the sign of a careless housekeeper.

POSITION OF WINDOW FEATURE OF LIGHTING

The size of windows is not really as important as the position of the windows in the wall. The best light comes from the upper part of the window, as that is thrown farther back into the room and increases the reflected light of the room itself. As far as ventilation is concerned, the high window again has the advantage, as it allows the warmest air to escape.

The life of the average family automobile is 8.4 years as compared to 7.4 years a decade ago.

Mr. & Mrs. Wisdom are going to build a home

—AND THEY BUY FROM A RESPONSIBLE DEALER

They know that quality lumber . . . the kind that assures permanent homes . . . is obtainable from responsible dealers. Sure, they could have saved a few dollars by buying on "price" . . . but in all probability such lumber would be poorly manufactured . . . "green" or unseasoned . . . unfit for use in GOOD home construction.

• Cheap lumber causes sagging floors . . . windows that pull out of plumb, and other faults. Quality lumber precludes the development of such failures. So . . . the question of first cost isn't the important one in home-building . . . it's the cost in the end that counts. That's why Mr. & Mrs. Wisdom demand quality lumber . . . and get it from a responsible dealer.

• The lumber dealers sponsoring this service are thoroughly responsible. In co-operation with the Southern Pine Association . . . they offer you aid in planning your home . . . and have ample stocks of quality lumber for your building needs.

This program is brought to you by the Retail Lumber Dealers of your city and the Southern Pine Association in the interest of better construction. . . .

DICK TRACY
By CHESTER GOULD
HELLO EVERYBODY!
WELL! WHAT'S ITCHING YOU? YOU LOOK AS EXCITED AS A DEBUTANTE DOING HER FIRST CHARITY FAN-DANCE.
GUESS WHO DROVE ME HOME IN HIS OWN CAR?
MAHATMA GHANDI?
"TRADE" SMITH?
NO, YOU'RE BOTH WRONG! NONE OTHER THAN THE GREAT DETECTIVE, DICK TRACY!
YEAH?
WHAT?
LISTEN, MADELINE! YOU'VE HAD SOME SCREWY IDEAS IN YOUR HEAD AT TIMES - BUT THIS TOPS 'EM ALL - WHAT'S THE GAG?
IT'S THE TRUTH! I ATTENDED COURT AND CONGRATULATED HIM ON HIS SMASHING UP OF THE PURPLE CROSS GANG AFTER THE TRIAL - AND HE DROVE ME HOME!
MEANWHILE
BUT TESS - I TOLD YOU I'D PICK YOU UP AT THAT CORNER AFTER THE TRIAL - AND I WAS THERE! JUST BECAUSE SHE WAS IN THE CAR WAS NO REASON FOR YOU TO TAKE A CAB HOME.
ABSOLUTELY! WHEN I HAVE A DATE WITH YOU I DON'T EXPECT YOU TO SHOW UP WITH ANOTHER WOMAN.
BUT SHE'S NOT A WOMAN. SHE'S ONLY A SILLY AUTOGRAPH-SEEKING KID. I ONLY INTENDED THAT YOU AND I SHOULD DROP HER OFF AT HER APARTMENT ON OUR WAY HOME.
SLAM
HALF HOUR LATER
I DON'T THINK THERE'S A MAN LIVING THAT UNDERSTANDS WOMEN!
WHAT'S THIS?
PUL-LEESE MISTER!
LISTEN, BRIGHT EYES! BY WHAT REMOTE REASONING DO YOU FLIRT WITH A COP - A FLATFOOT, OF ALL PEOPLE!
OH, GREAT JUPITER! OW!
WHAT'S THE MATTER?
I JUST REMEMBER! I LEFT MY PURSE IN HIS CAR!

CAPTURE OF THE LAND OF GOLD

© 1937 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

GOLD in unheard-of quantities, silver, rare gems lured Francisco Pizarro, in 1524, down the west coast of South America. Arriving in the country of the Incas, he was met by a large force of savages bearing gifts of precious metals, for they saw in this pale-faced stranger the white man who, legend said, would bring destruction upon their great empire, and they sought to appease him.

With only 26 men, Pizarro dared not attack. He sailed for Spain and induced King Charles to outfit him for the conquest of the wealthy Incas. In 1532, he returned with a band of scarcely 100 men, and the great chief Atahualpa went forth to meet him.

On a richly ornamented throne borne aloft by four giant Incas, Atahualpa arrived. A priest advanced and demanded the Inca's allegiance to the Christian God. Atahualpa scorned him.

Immediately, Pizarro's men struck. Atahualpa was captured. His men fled. Bidding for freedom, the Inca offered to fill his prison cell with gold to as high as he could reach, and a similar cell with silver to the same height. The Spaniards were dazed when they saw the prisoner's offer fulfilled. Yet, fearing that Atahualpa would lead a fresh attack upon him, Pizarro put his prisoner to death.
